SCHOOL HEAD OUSTED BY BOARD, DEMANDS HEARING

C. W. Crouse, Superintendent at Lebanon, Ill., Tells Directors They Have Done Him an Injustice.

ROW CAUSED BY HIS STRICT DISCIPLINE

Majority of Teachers Backing Him and Some Will Quit If He Is Not Reinstated.

"Who steals my purse steals trash;
'tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;
But he that filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed."

With no attempt at being dramatic, C. W. Crouse, superintendent of the public school system of Lebanon, Ill., recited these lines from Shakspeare Friday night. His audience was composed of members of the high and grade School Boards of Education of Lebanon. His theater was the directors' room of the First National Bank of Lebanon.

The Superintendent told the boards—which, earlier in the week, because of dissatisfaction of parents whose children he had disciplined, had voted to "fire" him—that they had done him an injustice, not to be measured in money, but in honor. He said some of the members had elected to meddle in his private affairs, had listened to street gossip and back alley talk, had questioned his professional honor and business integrity, impugned his personal honor and invaded his home.

Had Sought Public Hearing.

Furthermore, he had asked for a public hearing to clear himself of any charges, insinuations or innuendos and they had refused to hear him except behind closed doors.

The Superintendent continued. He said the Lebanon schools were in a "most deplorable" condition when he took charge of them four years ago. Their present high ranking is common knowledge. Despite this, he charged, the School Boards virtually had placed him on trial as a school man, in his absence, last Monday night, and had tried him from every possible angle except as a school man. Then, having decided against him, they did not see fit to notify him that he was no longer desired for the 1924-25 term.

Outlining possible sources of opposition to him, Crouse cited instances where he said three board members had been concerned to their discredit. He concluded by making application for reappointment and inviting the boards to consider it from the school standpoint without trying to please "any faction or clique or to gratify any personal prejudices." He challenged the members to inform the public then how they had voted on his application.

Scene of the Meeting.

Though barred by two doors, teachers from the grade and high schools and a Post-Dispatch reporter were spectators to the proceedings within the directors' room, thanks to the plate glass. Dr. Phil Griesebaum, president of the Community High School Board of Education, sat at the head of the conference table, around which seven other members were gathered. As Crouse stated his case, Dr. Griesebaum penciled down notes. When the former had finished, after half an hour, he withdrew from the room, bidding the board members a courteous "Good night."

Prior to the meeting the school teachers, hearing that one of the allegations against the Superintendent was that he had lost the loyalty of his teaching staffs, had adopted resolutions of confidence, signed by the six high school teachers and all but two of the 10 grade school teachers. That adopted by the high school teachers follows:

"Resolved, That in consideration of the fact that Supt. Crouse is about to leave a much better school system in Lebanon than he found, and because this improvement is due to his efficiency as a school administrator we, his co-corkers, deeply regret that he is about to relinquish his services in this capacity."

Sentiment of Grade Teachers.

The grade school teachers' resolution was:

"We, the undersigned, deeply regretting the decision of the board in regard to Mr. Crouse, sincerely ask the board, if possible, to reconsider its action. We can truthfully say we never worked under a more loyal school man. He has been exceedingly kind and patient

PORTRAIT OF KING GEORGE CAUSES MILD SENSATION

Painting by Charles Sims at the Royal Academy Exhibition Has Weak Face.

(Copyright, 1924.)

LONDON, May 3.—The sensation of this year's exhibition of the British Royal Academy is a state portrait of King George by Charles Sims, R. A. The exhibition opens Monday, but at a private view yesterday the crowd stood before the portrait and denounced it.

It shows the King seated on the throne, in the magnificent robes of the Order of the Garter, holding the scepter and with the crown resting beside him. In the rendering of the magnificent apparel, and the jewels of the orders and the velvet canopy, the picture is impressive. But the King's head is that of a weakling.

The Daily Express, on the front page, calls the portrait astounding and hints it will shock Dominion visitors to the empire exhibition. In extenuation of Sims, it is said he painted the portrait from sketches, since the King had not time to sit in the robes himself.

OPERA COMPANY IN CLEVELAND

SANFORD BALKS AFTER DECIDING TO WAIVE IMMUNITY

Head of Defunct Bank Yields to Advice of Lawyer and Refuses to Appear Before Grand Jury.

HOLLAND BANK INVENTORY IS FILED

It Shows Loans of $519,156 to Directors or Former Directors and $351,249 to Their Relatives.

By a Stafft Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 3.—E. L. Sanford, president of the defunct Holland Banking Co. of Springfield, startled Springfield today when he went to the county courthouse and demanded the right to appear before a special grand jury investigating the Holland failure. After all arrangements for him to waive immunity and testify apparently had been consummated, he surprised the grand jurors by yielding to urgent advice of an attorney that he remain silent for the time. He departed without having told his story.

Sanford's break through the leashes which have been held upon him by attorneys and friends vied in public interest with filing by the State Department of Finance with the County Recorder here of the inventory of purported assets in the Holland Bank at the time it closed, Jan. 15 last. It showed that loans had been made to directors and former directors for $519,156 and that $351,249 had been loaned to relatives of directors and to companies in which directors were financially interested.

Doubtful Securities Listed.

The Department of Finance has declared that of the pretended assets of the Holland company at least $2,000,000 consists of slow, doubtful and incollectible securities. In this list are said to have been grouped about $700,000 of securities upon which the department looks with little if any hope. Included are the notorious "cats and dogs," irregular evidences of transactions frowned upon by the department, and which to its auditors offer no hope of salvage.

In its efforts to get cash for the depositors the department has made claim upon the Fidelity and Casualty Co. of New York for payment of a $50,000 surety bond guaranteeing the bank against loss through "dishonest acts of its employes" and charging in that connection that the bank lost $561,102 in money and property through misapplication of funds and manipulations by Sanford.

Sanford, except for brief explanations of specific transactions made some time ago to the Post-Dispatch correspondent, has obeyed the insistent demands of his advisers that he keep still for the present at least until outcome is known of the grand jury inquiry which has been in progress two weeks.

About 40 Witnesses Heard.

About 40 witnesses have been to the grand jury room so far. Acquaintance with their information and connections has indicated that for the most part they have known about transactions of the bank during the latter part of its history.

Sanford, though a banker here for many years, entered the Holland only four or five years ago. Early in 1921, a few months after he had resigned as chairman of Gov. Gardner's State Highway Commission, he sold control of the bank to J. L. Hine and C. E. Randall of Springfield who kept the bank 10 months and then resold to Sanford, who operated it until it collapsed last January under shortage of cash due to a run.

Since the Holland has been under investigation, Sanford has insisted vigorously that he did not make any of the loans of which the Department of Finance has complained and has declared that "somebody else got the bank into trouble while I sunk everything I had trying to pull it out."

"Tired of Misrepresentation."

Today he declared outside the grand jury room that he was "tired of being misrepresented" and that he "wanted to tell my side of the story."

He went to the courthouse early in the morning and declared himself. Prosecuting officials conferred with the grand jurors and then admitted Sanford about noon. At beginning of the noon recess he emerged and departed from the building, returning about 1 p. m. and soon being joined in a conference behind one of the big marble

3 WORLD FLYERS RESUME JOURNEY WITHOUT MARTIN

Fly From Dutch Harbor to Atka Island, Distance of 350 Miles, and May Go On to Attu.

NO REPORT FROM MISSING LEADER

Dog Teams and Gasoline Launches Join in Hunt—Martin Seen by Natives Headed for Chignik Lakes

By the Associated Press.

CORDOVA, ALASKA, May 3.—Three United States Army aviators, who continued their world flight today from Dutch Harbor, Unalaska Island, arrived at Atka Island at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon, according to a wireless message received here.

The planes, piloted by Lieutenants Lowell H. Smith, Eric Nelson and Leigh Wade, had been waiting at Dutch Harbor for Major Martin who has not been seen since he left Chignik for Dutch Harbor last Wednesday.

Orders were telegraphed to them yesterday from Washington, D. C., to speed westward without their commander.

By the Associated Press.

BREMERTON, Wash., May 3.—An improvement in radio communications with the North was noted at the Puget Sound naval station here today, but messages in the afternoon from the western end of the Alaska peninsula and the eastern end of the Aleutian chain of islands continued to report that Maj. Frederick L. Martin, American globe flyer, had not been found.

From Chignik came news that while a quest of waters and islets south of the peninsula continued, a party with dog teams was going across the portage from the Chignik Lakes to the Bering Sea, to hunt along the northern coast of the peninsula. Boats also were putting forth from Bering Sea points to search the northern coast of the peninsula, where a tundra, 100 miles long, covers the shore for 20 miles inland. Natives told searchers that they had seen a plane going from Chignik toward the lakes Wednesday.

May Continue on to Attu.

The first stage set for the flyers was Atka Island, but it was thought that if the trio found the weather and the visibility favorable when they reached Atka they might go on to Attu Island at the end of the west Aleutian chain, and 530 miles from Atka.

Earlier fears that Major Martin and Sergeant Harvey, his mechinician, would suffer severely from hunger were dispelled by the news from Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the squadron that proceeded from Dutch Harbor, that Martin carried emergency rations for several weeks and had plenty of matches. The Major's plane was well provided with arms, ammunition and fishing tackle.

Martin's three comrades in the world flight, Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, Lieut. Erik Nelson and Lieut. Leigh Wade recalled it was reported in dispatches today, that in flying to Dutch Harbor from Chagnik they had passed countless lakes and small coves. They believed that Martin might have alighted in one of these and said that it would be difficult to find the plane and men in such a place.

Dog Teams Leave Chignik for North of Peninsula.

By the Associated Press.

FALSE PASS, Alaska, May 3.—A party with dog teams left today from Chignik, Alaska, to the north side of the Alaska peninsula, to search for Maj. Martin along the Bering Sea.

Maj. Martin, who took the air at Chignik Wednesday with the mechanician, Staff Sergt. Alva L. Harley, to fly to Dutch Harbor, 400 miles southwest of Chignik, was believed to have flown over a portage across the peninsula to its north side. Soon after their departure a stiff northwest wind arose and snow began to fall.

Reports received from King Cove stated that vessels had searched unsuccessfully for Martin in two harbors and five bays. Efforts to find him in Leonard and Adolgo Harbors, and Coal, Belkofsky, Volcano, Bear and Pavlof bays proved unavailing. Latest dispatches declared the ships went as far as Ivan Island at the foot of Pavlof Volcano.

Overland searching groups from Chignik returned late yesterday without and definite trace of the American aviators.

At daylight today renewed efforts were being made by everyone

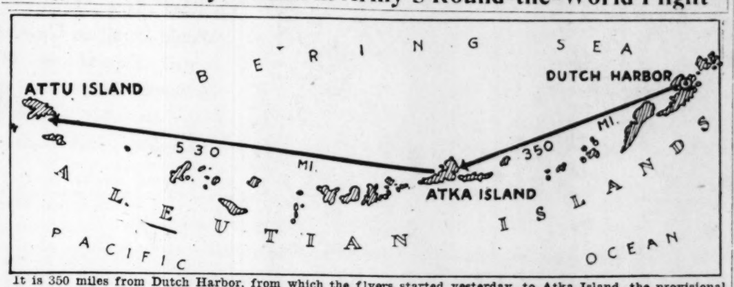
Leg in Yesterday's Dash in Army's Round-the-World Flight



It is 350 miles from Dutch Harbor, from which the flyers started yesterday, to Atka Island, the provisional objective, but it was announced that if the engines were all working well, the airplanes would continue to the island of Attu, making only a brief stop, if at all, at Attu. It is 530 miles from Atku to Attu, or a total of 880 miles from Dutch Harbor to Attu.

SAILOR ADRIFT IN LIFE-BELT FIGHTS SHARKS 23 HOURS

Man Who Leaped From Ship Decides to Live When Sea Monsters Attack Him.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—To the list of plain men made heroes by caprice of the sea was added today the name of Clarence L. Staden, erstwhile able seaman on the tanker Frederick W. Weller, which arrived this morning from Panama.

Staden, adrift in a life belt in the Gulf of Panama, alone except for sharks, fought the man-eaters for 23 hours with the long blade of a sailor's jack, until the steamer Dorset picked him up. He had eaten no food and had had no sleep. He was rescued unscathed.

Staden's shipmates and officers said he was inclined to be melancholy, which they assumed was the reason he jumped overboard. Their belief was that once adrift, fear of the sharks dethroned any other thought he may have had and he desperate slashed and stabbed at the encircling fins.

The story was told by Capt. Purdy when questioned regarding the entry in the log at the office of the United States Shipping Commissioner. The Captain said officers of the Dorset had told him Staden virtually was out of his mind when rescued, but had recovered on being put to bed and treated in the hospital at Balboa.

ARGENTINE STRIKE AGAINST NEW PENSION MEASURE

Shipping Is Tied Up, Restaurants Closed and Stores Expected to Lock Doors.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, May 3.—The scheduled general strike against the pension law began quietly but effectively today, resulting in a tie-up of shipping, the closing of most of the factories in the city, the cessation of building operations, disappearance of taxicabs, and closing of numerous restaurants and bakeries.

The Government has taken extraordinary measures to prevent disorders. Troops have been quartered in various parts of the city and detachments of police armed with rifles have been out in camions to patrol the streets.

The strike is unique in the history of any country for the reason that it is virtually a common protest from both capital and labor against what is termed an absurd piece of legislation.

The law provides for the deduction of 5 per cent from salaries, to be applied to a pension fund, the employers contributing a like amount.

$1,834,201 IS AMOUNT DUE ON INCOME TAXES IN STATE

Revenue Is Delinquent After June 1 —Returns Increase $81,622 in Year.

St. Louisans who made out State income tax returns this spring will receive bills this week for their share of the $1,834,201, which returns in Collector Koeln's office show to be due on incomes in the city.

The tax is payable this month and becomes delinquent after June 1. Returns showing a tax amount of $788,566, an increase of $81,622 over last year, were made out this year by 71,181 individuals. A tax of $1,045,645, an increase of $267,172 over last year, is shown on returns filed by 5744 corporations.

No Sodas for the Thirsty.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 3.—An ice-cream-less Sunday faces Chicago tomorrow, the result of a strike last Thursday of the city's force of 357 truck drivers who deliver the output of 26 ice cream plants. The drivers, now working for $14 a week in summer and $20 a week in winter with 7 cents a gallon commission, want increases to $21 a week in summer, $27 in winter, and 10 and 11 cents a gallon. Manufacturers offered a compromise after declaring that drivers' salaries mounted to as high as $7000 a year and averaged more than $3000; but the drivers refused.

PORTUGUESE AIRMEN AND FRENCH FLYER ARRIVE IN INDIA ON WORLD FLIGHT

By the Associated Press.

LISBON, Portugal, May 3. THE Portuguest aviators(Capt. Brite Paes and Lieut. Sarmento Boires, flying to China, have landed at the Indian frontier, according to advices received here.

The Portuguese aviators were last reported May 1 at Bushire, Persia, where they had been detained because their passports had not been vised.

AGRA, India, May 23.—Lieut. Pelletier d'Oisy, French aviator, flying from Paris to Tokio, arrived here today at 1:30 p. m., having made the 1300 kilometers from Karachi, British India, in less than seven hours despite fogs and torrid heat. Lieut. d'Oisy expects to continue his flight at Calcutta tomorrow.

The French aviator today overtook Stuart MacLaren, the British round-the-world flier, who has been delayed at the Northern Indian town of Parlu because of motor trouble.

NEW CAMERA MAPS LAND WITH PLANE OUT OF SIGHT

Entire City of Dayton Photographed from Height of 31,450 Feet.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., May 3.—McCook Field officials today announced development of an aerial camera that can photograph salient topographical features of land although the plane is completely out of sight of the ground.

Successful pictures were taken with the camera yesterday by Lieutenants John A. Macready and A. W. Stevens, McCook Field, during a flight in which the aviators established a new unofficial two-man altitude airplane record of 31,450 feet in a Lepere plane. The pictures were taken from this height.

A photograph of the entire city of Dayton was made. More territory is shown on this negative, McCook officials announced, than on any other made before.

Instruments on the plane registered a height of over 36,000 feet but calibration reduced this to 31,540 feet. The former record was slightly under 30,000 feet.

FIVE CHILDREN ILL FROM FOOD POISONING

All Pronounced Out of Danger After Treatment at City Hospital.

Five children, four of them of one family, were taken to the City Hospital last night suffering from food poisoning. The stomach pump was used on each patient and physicians pronounced them out of danger.

Crystal Brooks, 16; Viola, 14; Herman, 12 and Frank, 8 years old of 4064A McPherson avenue and William Farris, 3 years old of 4064 McPherson avenue were the sufferers.

Doctors suspected rice pudding they had all eaten, but the cause of the poisoning has not been determined.

COPELAND PROPOSES FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK

New York Senator Introduces Bill Authorizing Operation Under Treasury.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—A system of "Federal home loan banks" to finance building of homes of moderate cost would be authorized under a bill introduced today by Senator Copeland (Dem.), New York. The banks would be formed through joint action of building and loan associations and would operate under the Treasury.

Keenan Collapses at Wife's Funeral

LOS ANGELES, May 3.—Frank Keenan, actor of stage and screen, collapsed today at the funeral of his wife, who died while witnessing his triumph on the stage about a week ago. He is said to be in a critical condition at his home in Hollywood.

ST. PAUL BANK MERGER LIKELY AFTER CRASH

Two of Largest Institutions May Unite Following $5,000,000 Failure.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 5.—Two of the larger banks in St. Paul may be merged as a result of the closing of the Capitol Trust and Savings Bank of St. Paul today by J. Veigel, State Superintendent of Banks. The report of the merger emanated from a meeting of the leading bankers of the city tonight.

The Capitol Trust had a capital of $500,000 and deposits of $5,000,000. It was ordered closed because of "frozen assets" in the form of North Dakota and Montana mortgages, Veigel said.

Closing of the bank caused a run on the Capitol National Bank, which is in the same building. There is no direct financial connection between the two institutions. When the Capitol National closed, after its regular business today, there was a long line of depositors waiting to withdraw their savings. It is not thought the run will affect that institution as officials announced tonight they would continue to do business as usual.

A statement issued by J. L. Mitchell, president of the Capitol Trust, said "that because of the general depression in land values it has been impossible to make collections on these mortgages.

"A large number of foreclosures has been necessary with the result that the bank has acquired a large amount of land which is a frozen asset at the present time.

"If the bank could dispose of these assets for close to the normal value, it would be able to pay its liabilities in full."

BOBBED HAIR GIRL HELPS MAN IN HOLDUP OF TAXI

Answers Description of Woman Assisting in Several Recent Robberies.

A woman, young, and with bobbed hair, believed by police to be the same confederate who has assisted in several similar holdups lately, got in the taxicab of Edgar Horn, 1314 North Taylor avenue, at the Forest Park Hotel, 4910 West Pine boulevard, last midnight and directed him to drive her to an address in the 4000 block of Forest Park place.

Telling Horn to wait a few minutes after they reached the place, she appeared to go inside. Ten minutes later she re-appeared. Horn opened the door for her, to find on the running board a man with a revolver. The robber, who answers the description of the young woman's partner in other holdups, took $10.85 from Horn, and drove away with the woman. The car was found abandoned later.

LIBERTY BELL COSTLY TO CLEAN

Girl Falls While Dusting and Claims $3240 Damages.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 3.—Dusting off the Liberty bell may cost the city of Philadelphia $3240 because Margaret Marter, an employe in Independence Hall, where the relic is kept, fell while cleaning it.

The State Workmen's Compensation Board today awarded her $10.80 a week while she is disabled. The maximum period over which the compensation can be paid is 300 weeks, which would make $3240. Mrs. Marter said she fell off a stool while dusting the top of the bell and "skinned her shin." An infection developed, she said, which she alleges has totally disabled her.

Boy Scouts Radio to England.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Greetings between Franklin D. Roosevelt, president of the Boy Scouts' Foundation of New York, and Sir Baden Powell, head of the British Boy Scouts in London, were exchanged by radio today. More than 2000 Boy Scouts, gathered in a public school building for a boys' week celebration, assisted with the broadcasting of Roosevelt's message. Sir Robert's reply was received in 12 minutes.

M'DONALD QUITS SCHOOL BOARD AFTER RELIGION ROW

Resigns Because He Feels He Is Not Performing Any Public Service of Value — Recently Left Caucus in Apparent Disgust Over Controversy.

SUPPORTED McNAMEE TO SUCCEED MASON

Opposition to Candidate for Secretaryship Because of His Belief and Other Bickerings of Members Distasteful to Former Judge.

The feeling that he was not accomplishing anything, as a member of the Board of Education, caused Jesse A. McDonald, former Circuit Judge, to send his resignation, as a member, to the President of the Board. The resignation will be placed before the board May 13. It became known yesterday, though Judge McDonald had desired that it should not be known until the meeting.

Judge McDonald said he had found it difficult to spare the time needed for board work, and that this, together with the feeling that he was not performing any public service of value, had caused his decision. He declined to comment in more detail upon his reasons for leaving the board.

Bickerings Distasteful to Him.

Bickerings in the board, for several months past, have been distasteful to Judge McDonald and some of the other members. The deadlock over the election of a secretary, which still continues, is familiar to the public. Another cause of strife has developed recently, in the charge made by a board member that religious teachings were being given, contrary to the board's rules, in one of the public schools. The general belief in the board is that the charge is groundless.

The story of religious exercises in the public school was first told to another member of the board by the complaining member, who said he visited the school at the opening of the day's exercises, and saw and heard children repeating prayers at the instance of a teacher. The board member is said to have related to his colleague that, when he spoke to the woman principal, she said she had the approval and backing of a member of the board.

Investigation Is Demanded.

The member to whom this story was told made a complaint at the superintendent's office, and the fact of the complaint became known to the woman principal and to the board member who was mentioned as having sanctioned the school exercises. The principal and the board member denied the story emphatically, and demanded an investigation. There the matter stands at present.

While this matter has been known to all the members of the board, it is not believed that Judge McDonald has been especially interested in it. He said last night that this matter had not influenced him in his resignation.

In the contest over the election of a secretary-treasurer, to succeed the late Charles P. Mason, Judge McDonald is one of four members who has favored Hugh McNamee, long the assistant secretary-treasurer, who performed the chief duties of the office for the last two years, while Mason was incapacitated. Much of the opposition to McNamee is said to have had a religious basis. Four members, at the last caucus held on the matter, supported E. R. Brown, Supply Commissioner; three supported Harry Schollmeyer, brother of a member of the board, and one was for E. A. Mepham. McDonald left that caucus, apparently in disgust.

Precedent in Board Broken.

Last October, when Henry A. Rosskopf was re-elected president of the board, a precedent was broken which had required party alternation in the office of president, a Republican to serve one year and a Democrat the next. Rosskopf, a Republican, explained by saying that the board was no longer equally divided as to party, but that the Republicans were in the majority.

U. S. TO SELL CUBA ARMS TO HELP END REVOLTION

Every Expectation in Washington That Plan for Delivery of the Munitions Requested Will Be Perfected in a Few Days.

SALE AUTHORIZED BY LAW OF 1916

President Zayas Goes to Scene of Uprising to Investigate — 13 Rebels Captured — Government Sets Up Censorship.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Sale of a quantity of American war material to the Government of Cuba, which is confronted with a revolutionary uprising, is under negotiation in Washington.

Such a transaction, unlike the recent sale of arms to the Obregon Government of Mexico, is specially authorized under a law passed in 1916, and there is every expectation here that an arrangement for delivery to Cuba of the munitions requested will be perfected within a few days.

The material for which application has been made is worth about $100,000 and includes 3,000,000 rounds of rifle ammunition and about 30 machine guns, all of which would be supplied from surplus materials now in army depots.

No Request for Airplanes.

No request for purchase of airplanes has been made by Cuban officials and reports from Havana that a shipment of planes is on its way to the island republic were interpreted here as indicating that the Cuban Government may have made a purchase from some private concern in this country.

Under the 1916 law, airplanes are not included in the materials which can be sold to Cuba, but under a general clause in an appropriation bill already passed by the House and pending in the Senate the sales to Cuba could be extended to include other war material than ordnanced.

The appeal of the Cuban Government, facing a "condition of violence" in Santa Clara province, caused by revolutionists, for purchase from the Washington Government of a considerable amount of arms and ammunition for use by the Zayasforces against the revolutionists, was approved by the State Department and forwarded to the War Department.

In the absence of Secretary Weeks, War Department officials indicated there would be no trouble in filling the order from the supply of excess war supplies held by the army.

Embargo Decree Not Affected.

Under the proclamation issued yesterday by President Coolidge establishing an embargo against shipment of war munitions to Cuba, specific provision was made by which it will be possible for the Government to supply the Zayas forces with arms and at the same time rigidly enforce the embargo against any commercial shipments of war materials to Cuba which might find their way into the hands of revolutionists.

The Cuban army was largely equipped with service rifles, machine guns and revolvers when it was organized. American officers who worked with the Cuban authorities in organizing the army point out that the practice of selling arms to Cuba has been followed since that time, and sales of munitions to the Cuban Government has been legally authorized by Congress.

Old Order Unfilled.

There is an old order for purchase of war munitions still partially unfilled before the War Department under which war materials have been sold to Cuba since 1916.

Because of these circumstances it will be an easy matter to comply with the emergency request.

The transaction with Cuba differs in this respect from that recently negotiated between the Washington Government and the Obregon Government of Mexico. No authorization existed at the time Mexico asked for arms for use against the de la Huerta revolutionists and the decision in that case had to be taken by President Coolidge.

President Zayas Reaches Cienfuegos to Investigate Revolt.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, May 3.—President Zayas, the first Cuban chief executive here to go to the scene of an armed revolt, arrived safely late today at Cienfuegos where, it was officially explained he desires to investigate personally the anti-Zayas and antire-election outbreak by armed bands.

The President left Havana this morning on a special train with a military guard. With him were Acting Secretary of War Betancourt, Secretary of Interior Iturralde and Gen. Herrera, chief of staff. Coincidentally with the President's departure came official announcement of several minor engagements between loyal and rebel forces and of the capture of nine rebels, including Solano Romero, who was a colonel in the Cuban war of independence against Spain. Five other rebels surrendered and 10 rifles and 12 horses were captured by government troops, but there is no word of any casualties.

The entire island is quiet, except in the rugged country around Cienfuegos and Trinidad, in the southern part of Santa Clara Province, the War Department stated today in its first formal communique since the outbreak started Tuesday.

Reports From American Consuls.

That the remainder of the island is quiet, at least outwardly, was confirmed by information received from the American consuls who have sent reports. Word that quiet reigns has also been received from a high official of the United Railways of Havana.

Statements by Mario Garcia-Velez, brother of Gen. Carlos Garcia-Valez, that from 500 to 600 men are in arms in the vicinity of Cienfuegos were declared untrue by Government officials today, as was also the announcement credited to Gustavo Gutierrez, secretary of the Veterans' and Patriots' Association at New York, that a battle took place recently near Cienfuegos, each side having about 200 men.

While information as to the exact number of troops sent to the scene of the operations is withheld, it is said that Cuba has 10,000 men in the standing army, including about 5000 members of the rural guard, which is a part of the army and is used whenever necessary.

Planes on Way to Havana.

The Government is negotiating with Washington for the purchase of war material from the United States Government, it was learned today, and at the Palace it was said that airplanes were on the way here. No details were given out, but at the War Department, the information was vouchsafed that negotiations have been opened with private firms in the United States for the purchase of airplanes. Cuba has about six or eight aviators who were trained in the American army.

Announcement was made that news dispatches from the scene of the revolt are being supervised to prevent misleading statements and the disclosure of military secrets. By both the Government side and Mario Garcia-Valez the belief is held that Frederico Laredo Bru, a prominent lawyer of Cienfuegos and veteran of the Cuban war of independence, is in command of the rebellious forces around Cienfuegos.

Senor Velez, who with four other members of the Veterans and Patriots' Association is in jail here, made a statement today that the outbreak was not ordered by the heads of the organization, as has been charged, but was started by impatient members who grew tired of delay in their campaign against alleged evils of the Zayas administration.

Two Engagements Reported.

Details of two engagements yesterday near Cienfuegos between forces of Government and rebel troops and notice that he had other news which he "cannot give" were sent to the newspaper La Prenza today by its correspondent at Cienfuegos.

Baroni, Newspaper Director, Ordered Expelled From Cuba.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, May 3.—Aldo Baroni, one of the directors of the newspaper El Heraldo, who was ordered expelled from the country as a pernicious foreigner, tonight was aboard the steamer Maasdam, due to sail for the Canary Islands and French and Spanish ports, as soon as loading of her cargo is completed.

Efforts to prevent the expulsion of Baroni, who is an Italian, were made late today in habeas corpus proceedings, but it is not believed they will be successful.

Articles which appeared in El Heraldo relating to the present rebellious movement in Cuba, were responsible for the expulsion order.

Insurgents Said to be Training Aviators in Florida.

By the Associated Press.

OSCALA, Fla., May 3.—A party of aviators, claiming to be in the employ of the "West Coast Air Line Co., operating airplanes between Texas and St. Petersburg, Fla., who arrived here a month ago, in order, they said, to have their six machines repaired, still have their planes parked in what 30 years ago was Marticity.

While here the aviators have taken individuals on occasional flights.

Failure of the flyers to engage in regular passenger service has given rise to persistent reports that they are training flyers for Cuban insurgents. Marticity was a rallying point for Cubans in the revolution of 1895, which led to the Spanish-American war.

U. S. Cruiser Cleveland, at Havana, Ordered to Mexico.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Cuba, May 3.—The United States cruiser Cleveland, which came into port here Wednesday, received orders today to sail Monday for Mexican waters. When the vessel arrived it was announced it would stay 10 days or two weeks to give officers and men shore leave.

The dispatch referred to the rebel troops as the "forces of Federico Laredo Bru."

The engagements occurred at El Juno and at Buenos Aires, a correspondent said, the rebels being surprised and losing eight rifles and 12 horses, while one of their horses was killed.

The War Department here later confirmed the account of the two engagements in Santa Clara Province in a communique, which added that at Manicaragua the forces of Capt. Trujillo captured nine men with their horses and equipment after a brush with 11 men. The surrender of two rebel soldiers at Ciefuentes also was announced.

"In all other provinces total tranquillity reigns," the statement declared.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The cruiser Cleveland was ordered from Havana to Frontera, Mexico, to relieve the light cruiser Tulsa, which has been stationed here, but which is due to return north for final trials.

OMNIBUS PENSION BILL VETOED BY THE PRESIDENT

Coolidge Says Measure Would Entail an Unwarranted Expenditure of Money of Taxpayers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Exercising the veto power for the first time, President Coolidge returned to the Senate today without his approval the Bursum-Fuller omnibus pension bill.

The President, in doing so, informed the Senate that he objected primarily to the bill because it would entail an "unwarranted expenditure of the money of the taxpayers" at a time when "the burden on the taxpayers must not be increased, it must be decreased."

"The desire to do justiec to pensioners, however great their merit, must be attended by some solicitude to do justice to taxpayers," the Executive said in his message. "The advantage of a class cannot be greater than the welfare of the nation."

Veto Likely to Be Sustained.

The President's message reached the Senate soon after it convened but was not taken up until late in the day. After it had been read, Senator Bursum (Rep.) of New Mexico, who, with Representative Fuller (Rep.) f Illinois, is author of the bill, moved that the matter be laid on the table to be taken up next Tuesday. Senator Bruce (Dem.) of Maryland, proposed that the bill be taken up immediately, but the presiding officer ruled that Bursum's motion had precedence.

Bursum, pointing to the vote of 51 to 10 by which the Senate passed the bill April 1, declared the measure would be passed over the President's veto, but Republican leaders both in the Senate and House expressed the belief that the Chief Executive would be sustained in his veto. The House approved the measure without a record vote.

The veto given the measure was in effect the second executive disapproval of the bill. A somwhat similar measure was passed by the last Congress and vetoed by President Harding on the grounds of economy and also on the grounds that it was loosely drawn and would have put on the pension roll almost every widow of a Civil War veteran, regardless of when she was married.

Provisions of the Bill.

The bill provides for increases in the pensions of the veterans of all wars up to and incuding the Spanish-American war and of widows and dependents of veterans of all wars from 1812 to 1902. Civil War veterans would have their pensions increased from $50 to $72 a month and their widows, now getting $20 a month, would receive $35 and $45 a month, dependent on age. Spanish-American War and other wars, excepting the World War, veterans and their widows would receive proportionate increases and a few maimed World War veterans would receive additional compensation.

The President estimated that the bill would cost $58,000,000 annually and bring the total pension bill of the country to a point higher than ever before reached.

The measure had the indorsement of a number of veterans' organizations, including the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Spanish-American War Veterans. Headed by Carmi Thompson of Ohio, one of the Coolidge campaign managers, a delegation of representatives of veterans' organization recently urged the President to approve the bill.

Text of Veto Message.

The veto message was as follows:

"I am returning herewith Senate bill 5, 'An act granting pensions and increases of pensions to certain soldiers and sailors of the Civil and Mexican wars, and to certain widows, former widows, minor children and helpless children of said soldiers and sailors, and to widows of the war of 1812, and to certain Indian war veterans and widows, and to certain Spanish war soldiers and certain maimed soldiers, and for other purposes,' without my approval.

"For the next fiscal year the effect of this act will be to take an additional $58,000,000 of the money paid by the taxpayers of the nation and add it to the pension checks of the veterans of the wars from 1812 to 1902 and their widows and dependents. This is the effect for the first year, but the burden upon the taxpayers will continue for many years to come. While impossible of accurate estimation the Commissioner of Pensions states that the proposed addition to the pension roll will total approximately $242,000,000 for the first five years and $415,000,000 for the first ten years.

Burden Not Justified.

"No conditions exist which justify the imposition of this additional burden upon the taxpayers of the nation. All our pensions were revised and many liberal increases made no longer ago than 1920. Every survivor of the Civil War draws $50 per month, and those in need of regular aid and attendance, which already includes 41,000 of them, draw $72 per month. As others come to need this the law already gives it to them. The act also proposes to extend the limits of the war period from April 13, 1865, to Aug. 20, 1866, so that those who enlisted during this year and four months of peace now become eligible for the same treatment as those who fought throughout the war. There are other questionable provisions providing for the pensioning of civilians, and relating to the pensioning of certain classes of widows.

"But the main objection to the whole bill is the unwarranted expenditure of the money of the taxpayers. It proposes to add more than 25 per cent to the cost of the pensioh rolls. It is estimated that it would bring the total pension bill of the country to a point higher than ever before reached, notwithstanding it is now nearly 60 years since the close of the Civil War. A generous nation increased its pensions to well over a quarter of a billion annually, and has already bestowed nearly $6,250,000,000 in pensions upon the survivors of that conflict and their dependents. While there has been some decrease in the annual expense, it is now proposed by a horizontal increase to pay all survivors $72 each month, without regard to age, to their physical condition, or financial condition. With the other proposals a new high record of cost would be established.

Taxes Must Be Decreased.

"The need for economy in public expenditure at the present time cannot be over-estimated. I am for economy. I am against every unnecessary payment of the money of the taxpayers. No public requirement at the present time ranks with the necessity for the reduction of taxation. This result cannot be secured unless those in authority cease to pass laws which increase the permanent cost of government. The burden on the taxpayers must not be increased, it must be decreased. Every proposal for legislation must be considered in the light of this necessity. The cost of commodities is diminishing. Under such conditions the cost of government ought not to be increasing. The welfare of the whole country must be considered. The desire to do justice to pensioners, however great their merit, must be attended by some solicitude to do justice to taxpayers. The advantage of a class cannot be greater than the welfare of the nation."

BELIEF IN SENATE PRESIDENT WILL VETO BONUS BILL

Coolidge Receives Measure—Mellon Will Be Asked to Give Estimate of Cost.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The soldiers' bonus bill was sent to President Coolidge late today from the Capitol, where legislative action was completed with the signing of the measure by President Cummings of the Senate.

The measure reached the White House within a few hours after the President had sent a message to the Senate announcing that he had vetoed the Bursum pension bill because it would add many millions of dollars annually to the cost of Government. A reading of that message strengthened the belief by a number of Senators that Mr. Coolidge will veto the bonus bill.

The executive will not take immediate action, however, as the measure first will be sent to the Treasury for an estimate of cost, and the views of Secretary Mellon. Later, it probably will go to the Veterans' Bureau, in which its administration would be lodged.

Should the President return the bill to Congress without his approval, an effort will be made to pass it over his veto, and proponents in both the Senate and House assert that they can muster the required two-thirds vote.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Opponents to the soldier bonus insurance bill converged on the White House today and asked President Coolidge to send the legislation back to Congress without his signature.

Objections were two-fold, the first, made by advocates of the cash bonus, was that the act just passed is inadequate, and the second, that there should be no form of bonus for able-bodied ex-service men. Dissatisfaction, for different reasons, was expressed on behalf of groups of the veterans themselves and revealed that the compromise insurance plan of gratuity has pleased neither the extreme probonus forces nor those who began their opposition to an outlay of cash.

It is taken for granted that Mr Coolidge will veto the bill, but officers of the Ex-Service Men's Anti-Bonus League wanted to make sure what their position was to him. A delegation headed by Knowlton Durham, president, and representatives of 13 state organizations of the league, gave Mr. Coolidge a brief, summarizing arguments against the bill, entitled "The Bonus vs. the People."

"I think he will veto it," Durham said after the interview. "I not only think it—I assume it. He has twice said he was opposed to it. However, he did not tell us what h eintends to do." Durham declared the interested agitators for the bonus number about 10 per cent of the war veterans.

Sanford Balks After Immunity Waiver Decision

columns by O. E. Gorman, chairman of the Greene County Republican Committee, an attorney. Grand jurors were gathering outside their room. Sanford, through talking to the attorney, joined them and said that he had deided not to testify.

"I won't go in boys," he told newspaper men, "I took the bull by the horns this morning and came over here to tell my story. I want to tell it. I haven't anything to hide. But they fixed up a waiver for me to sign. It covers not only immunity from prosecution, but would mean that I would waive all technical errors in indictments and everything. My attorneys tell me I mustn't sign it, so I guess I won't."

No Indictments Yet.

Sanford having gone, the grand jury remained in session only a short time. No arrests have been made in connection with the bank case yet, and no indication is available as to when the grand jury will conclude its work.

Waivers of immunity always are required of grand jury witnesses against whom there is any possibility of subsequent prosecution in connection with the subject upon which the grand jury is taking testimony. Otherwise appearance of an individual before such a body immunizes him from such prosecution.

The policy which Sanford attempted to pursue is quite contrary to the usual procedure. Ordinarily persons whose affairs are under inquiry and their attorneys as well prefer to remain silent until forced into the open, rather than to court expressions. Hence the excitement Sanford caused.

Loans to Former Officers.

Among the loans shown by the Holland note inventory are 15 notes bearing Sanford's name, aggregating $231,046, three bearing that of E. N. Ferguson for $20,544, and one for G. S. Mitchell of $15,000. C. E. Randall, formerly an officer and heavily interested in the Holland, is shown to have had seven notes aggregating $112,792. J. L. Hine, who was in the bank at the same time as Randall, is listed with three notes totaling $55,409.34.

E. E. E. McJimsey, publisher of the Springfield (Mo.) Republican and defeated for the Republican nomination for Governor in 1920, is listed as having borrowed $41,964 personally and $42,384 for his paper. McJimsey is a former director. Controversy exists whether his resignation as a director ever was properly entered on books of the bank.

The publisher denies having signed two of the notes aggregating $26,480 in which he is corroborated by Sanford. The latter explains that the note did not mean anything so far as McJimsey is concerned, merely having been put in the note case temporarily to cover a stock transaction for the bank.

McJimsey, who has said that he was a director only for a limited period, also appears in the inventory as nominal trustee in a trust agreement executed by Sanford and Ferguson by which Sanford put up 1250 shares of stock in the Hermann-Sanford Saddlery Co., of which he was president and Ferguson put up 150 shares of stock in the State Savings Trust Co., both Springfield concerns, to strengthen a collection of notes totaling $75,391 to which the Department of Finance had made objection. No liability attaches to McJimsey in this connection.

Details of Inventory.

Included in the list of notes in the inventory are all of those classed by the Department of Finance as irregular and previously discussed at length in the Post-Dispatch.

One loan is of $53,500 made Oct. 1, Sept. 1, 1921, to the Modern Burial Park Co., and secured by purchase notes on cemetery lots in Springfield and in Wichita, Kan., most of which are long past due and regarded by bank examiners as of doubtful value. Other stocks of unknown value. Other large loans included the following: Hine & Ferguson, four notes aggregating $44,159; Hine-Fleming Co., three notes, $11,500; Hine & Randall, $21,443 (secured by stocks in local concerns); Domino Macaroni Co., four notes, $26,313; Interstate Milling Co., 11 notes, $90,500; Holland-Oneal Milling Co., two notes, $20,000; Lightfoot & Ferguson, one note, $31,526; Newton Grain & Seed Co., $19,509, secured in part by stocks of Randall; Frank T. Oneal, $60,000, secured by stocks in Holland-Oneal Milling Co.; B. P. Price Co., three notes $23,100, guaranteed by Sanford Rubber Tire Supply Co., $56,353, indorsed in part by Randall.

Tolerton's Name on Note.

The name of Jesse A. Tolterton, president of the Southern Missouri Trust Co., and who was State Game and Fish Commissioner under Gov. Hadley, appears on one note for $10,000, while that of John F. Aven, member of the Republican State Committee and formerly an officer in the American Savings Bank here, is on one for $5000. Aven and Bert Ellis, another officer in the American Savings appear as indorsers on a second note for $15,000 bearing the name of Aven and Ellis.

The inventory shows total overdrafts of $76,255. Besides those of the directors, referred to, the others include:

Hine and Randall, $821; Hine and Ferguson, $784; Interstate Milling Co., $10,201; C. E. Randall, $5832; E. E. E. McJimsey, $495.

Customers' Bond Item.

Another item of considerable interest is that of customers' bonds deposited for safe keeping, of which the inventory shows $252,650 These bonds were not in safe deposit boxes of customers, but were left with the bank, bond deposit slips having been received in return.

Attorneys differ whether these bonds are ordinary deposits, on which their owners are entitled to receive 40 per cent initial refunds and additional payments as the bank is liquidated, or whether they are preferred claims on which claimants are entitled to receive full payment before other depositors get their money. If they are in class with other deposits, it would mean initial payment of only $50,530; if placed in preferred class they will decrease by $202,120 the sum to be prorated among depositors. Litigation over the point is expected, as it has never been determined judicially in Missouri.

ROW CAUSES M'DONALD TO RESIGN FROM SCHOOL OFFICE

He said that, while the bipartisan balance no longer existed, he would try to handle the board's affairs in a nonpartisan way.

In re-electing Rosskopf as president, the board defeated Judge McDonald, who had expressed a willingness to accept the presidency, on the supposition that the bipartisan rule was to be preserved. McDonald served one term as president of the board.

McDonald's term on the board would have ended next year. He resigned from the circuit bench before completing the term for which he was elected, in order to resume private practice. He was chairman of the Board of Freeholders which drafted the 1914 city charter, but he did not support the charter, because he disapproved of some of its important provisions as finally framed. He lives at 4542 Pershing avenue.

BANK CROMWELL KEPT HIS MONEY IN TO BE ABSORBED

Nell Gwyn Was Depositor in Institution That Has Occupied Same Site Since 1560.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 3.—Child & Co., the oldest private bank in England and perhaps in the world, is to be absorbed by Glyn, Mills & Co., in accordance with the will of the eighth Earl of Jersey, who died Dec. 31.

Child's Bank was founded about 1560, has occupied the site of its present offices in Fleet street ever since and is full of historic associations. Oliver Cromwell, Samuel Pepys, Dryden, Charles II, and his famous paramour, Nell Gwyn, were among those who had accounts at the bank, which is identical with Tellson's in Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities."

The latest balance sheet of Child & Co. showed deposits of £3,000,000 ($15,000,000). The merged banks will have assets exceeding £30,000,000.

SIX MEN CONDEMNED TO DIE WIN LEGAL SKIRMISH

Counsel Obtains Order in Federal Court in Effort to Save Prisoners.

NEW ORLEANS, May 3.—Counsel for the six men sentenced to hang at Amite May 9 for the murder of Dallas Calmes, won a preliminary skirmish in their effort to save the lives of five of them when they obtained in Federal District Court today an order to the Sheriffs of Tangipahoa and Orleans parishes to appear before Judge Rufus Foster Monday and show cause why the prisoners named should not be produced in court on a certain day, yet to be named. The order resulted from a petition for release of the prisoners on a writ of habeas corpus. The crime was committed in Tangipahoa parish and the men have been held in the Orleans parish jail here for safe keeping.

Judge Foster's order was merely a citation and counsel for the State an dthe prisoners will argue Monday. If the court decides the writ of habeas corpus should not be issued then the six prisoners will be executed at the time set unless the defense can force an appeal from such a decision to a higher court.

Comrades Believe Martin and Aid Are Safe.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—His comrades who left Dutch Harbor, Alaska, today, believe Maj. Martin, missing commander of the army round-the-world flight expedition, and his companion are safe and will be located.

A message from Lieut. Lowell Smith, senior officer with the planes at Dutch Harbor, received today by Major-General Patrick, chief of the air service, declared Martin and Sergt. Harvey had matches and emergency rations with them sufficient for several weeks.

"We believe he (Martin) is safe and will soon be located," Lieut. Smith's telegram said.

The message said the weather was good there yesterday, which helped in the search. No ship was expected to reach Dutch Harbor until Friday, it said, from the "most likely location" of the missing fliers. It was pointed out that "there are numerous harbors for possible refuge."

Lieut. Smith added that some published accounts as to the bad weather on the day Martin set out on his flight were exaggerated.

C. E. SMITH FAVORS DISCUSSION NOW O U. R. SITUATIO

Consulting Engineer f City Believes Consider tion of Reorganizati Will Be Helpful.

KIEL WOULD WAIT FOR A PROPOSA

Newman Expected to A rive Tuesday to Beg Unification of Vario Financial Interests.

Although Mayor Kiel is dis clined to discuss any phase of reorganization plans for the Un ed Railways, explaining that prefers to wait for a plan from organizers and then submit it vote of the people for acceptan or rejection, C. E. Smith, consu ing engineer for the city, belie the subject is one for the wid discussion.

Smith told a Post-Dispatch porter yesterday that a broad cussion of the reorganization by concerned would be valuable in riving at an acceptable plan. is a warm advocate of the Cle land plan, which the reorganiz have indicated would be accepta to them.

Smith said any plan of str railway operation that conte plates service at cost, with an ad quate return on investment, whi the organizers of the United Ra ways seems to have in mind, m parallel in principle the Clevela plan or adopt that principle as basis.

Representation of People.

As to preliminary discussio which Mayor Kiel wishes to av Smith said they would be help in reaching decisions on many i portant points and could do harm if entered into with an u derstanding of the city's needs.

Whatever plan may be submitt by the organizers, said Smith, mu contain a provision for represent tion of the people within the co pany so that the interests of t people can be duly conserved, pa ticularly as to service and its co

This, said Smith, is a feature the Cleveland plan that preclu the possibility of overcapitalizati or curtailment of operations detriment of service. Under th plan the investor has no advanta above a fixed return on his inve ment, while the public pays for more than is given in service.

The Cleveland street railway sy tem was reorganized in 1907 w fixed valuation of $30,000,000, a an indeterminate franchise w granted. It is the opinion of Smith a others in the St. Louis city admi istration that any plan of reorga zation of the railways here mu make some disposition of the m torbus as a problem affecting se ice at cost. All appear to agr that the bus has its place in t transportation system, particular as a feeder to the traction syste

Bus Situation Here.

The People's Motorbus Co., no operating a total mileage of 19. in St. Louis, has asked for permi for 49.54 additional miles of rou ing that will take bus service nearly all parts of the city. The a plication for these permits, ma the Board of Public Service, h been referred to Director of Stree and Sewers Fisk for investigatio and he said he would have a rep to make within the next two week

The permits sought are for b lines on South Broadway, Osa street, Russell boulevard, Natur Bridge, west of Kingshighwa Florissant avenue, Easton-Hant ton-Page line, crosstown lines o Kingshighway and Union Bou vards an dlines to the Southwe ern part of the city, embracing Li denwood.

The United Railways has prote ed against the granting of th permits on the ground that b patronage is cutting into the stre railway revenue at the rate $2000 a day and if extended wo result in higher street car fares

The Reorganization Committee the United Railways expects J. Comrades Believe Martin and Aid Are Safe.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—His comrades who left Dutch Harbor, Alaska, today, believe Maj. Martin, missing commander of the army round-the-world flight expedition, and his companion are safe and will be located.

A message from Lieut. Lowell Smith, senior officer with the planes at Dutch Harbor, received today by Major-General Patrick, chief of the air service, declared Martin and Sergt. Harvey had matches and emergency rations with them sufficient for several weeks.

"We believe he (Martin) is safe and will soon be located," Lieut. Smith's telegram said.

The message said the weather was good there yesterday, which helped in the search. No ship was expected to reach Dutch Harbor until Friday, it said, from the "most likely location" of the missing fliers. It was pointed out that "there are numerous harbors for possible refuge."

Lieut. Smith added that some published accounts as to the bad weather on the day Martin set out on his flight were exaggerated.

C. E. SMITH FAVORS DISCUSSION NOW OF U. R. SITUATION

Consulting Engineer for City Believes Consideration of Reorganization Will Be Helpful.

KIEL WOULD WAIT FOR A PROPOSAL

Newman Expected to Arrive Tuesday to Begin Unification of Various Financial Interests.

Although Mayor Kiel is disinclined to discuss any phase of the reorganization plans for the United Railways, explaining that he prefers to wait for a plan from the organizers and then submit it to vote of the people for acceptance or rejection, C. E. Smith, consulting engineer for the city, believes the subject is one for the widest discussion.

Smith told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that a broad discussion of the reorganization by all concerned would be valuable in arriving at an acceptable plan. He is a warm advocate of the Cleveland plan, which the reorganizers have indicated would be acceptable to them.

Smith said any plan of street railway operation that contemplates service at cost, with an adequate return on investment, which the organizers of the United Railways seems to have in mind, must parallel in principle the Cleveland plan or adopt that principle as a basis.

Representation of People.

As to preliminary discussions, which Mayor Kiel wishes to avoid, Smith said they would be helpful in reaching decisions on many important points and could do no harm if entered into with an understanding of the city's needs.

Whatever plan may be submitted by the organizers, said Smith, must contain a provision for representation of the people within the company so that the interests of the people can be duly conserved, particularly as to service and its costs.

This, said Smith, is a feature of the Cleveland plan that precludes the possibility of overcapitalization or curtailment of operations to detriment of service. Under this plan the investor has no advantage above a fixed return on his investment, while the public pays for no more than is given in service.

The Cleveland street railway system was reorganized in 1907 with fixed valuation of $30,000,000, and an indeterminate franchise was granted. Investors are guaranteed a return of 6 per cent and as a surplus is accumulated fares go down or the extra 1 cent for a transfer is taken off. The fare started at 3 cents and is now at 6 cents and 1 cent for a transfer, which is the maximum fare that can be charged in the agreement with the city.

City Has Supervisor.

All expenditures for equipment and material is under the direction of the city's supervisor, and capital investments are added to the original $30,000,000. The company is not allowed to float bonds and depends altogether on current revenue and sales of stock as the capital increases.

The same supervisor, who is paid $7500 a year by the city, after the company pays the city this sum for his services also sees that adequate service is given. He is subject to recall by the Board of Aldermen.

It is the opinion of Smith and others in the St. Louis city administration that any plan of reorganization of the railways here must make some disposition of the motorbus as a problem affecting service at cost. All appear to agree that the bus has its place in the transportation system, particularly as a feeder to the traction system.

Bus Situation Here.

The People's Motorbus Co., now operating a total mileage of 19.82 in St. Louis, has asked for permits for 49.54 additional miles of routing that will take bus service to nearly all parts of the city. The application for these permits, made the Board of Public Service, has been referred to Director of Streets and Sewers Fisk for investigation, and he said he would have a report to make within the next two weeks.

The permits sought are for bus lines on South Broadway, Osage street, Russell boulevard, Natural Bridge, west of Kingshighway, Florissant avenue, Easton-Hamilton-Page line, crosstown lines over Kingshighway and Union Boulevards an dlines to the Southwestern part of the city, embracing Linenwood.

The United Railways has protested against the granting of these permits on the ground that bus patronage is cutting into the street railway revenue at the rate of $2000 a day and if extended would result in higher street car fares.

The Reorganization Committee of the United Railways expects J. K. Newman, head of the committee, to arrive from New York Tuesday. He will begin work at once to consolidate and unify the various financial interests, after which a plan for the reorganization will be worked out and presented simultaneously to the city, the Federal Court and the Public Service Commission.

Wife and Sweetheart in the Baring Poison Case

MISS MILDRED E. BEAM. MRS. CLARENCE O. BARING.

SCHOOL HEAD, OUSTED BY BOARD, DEMANDS HEARING

with his teachers and has helped us to put forth our best efforts for the good of the school. We feel that his removal will weaken the system."

When Crouse came from Louisville, Ill., to Lebanon four years ago the Community High School, which is supported by Lebanon and adjoining districts, was housed on the third floor of the old grade school building. It had three rooms and two teachers. Today the new high school building, erected in 1921, is one of the sights pointed out to visitors in Lebanon, McKendree College being another. Its graduates are accredited everywhere and its superintendent says: "Speaking professionally, and not boastingly, I am willing to have it compared with any other school in the State of Illinois, to be judged impartially by school men."

Perhaps the strongest problem confronting Crouse upon taking charge of the Lebanon schools was discipline, or the lack of it. Some of the pupils had harried the teachers by word and action, the action sometimes going so far as throwing of fruit. Crouse, with the experience of 25 years' teaching behind him, put into effect strict rules and gradually the school children earned the reputation of being well-behaved.

Complaints by Parents.

There have been complaints by indulgent parents, in some instances, against what they deemed severity of discipline. For gross misconduct some pupils were deprived of playground privileges. Practices which previously had shamed the school were eradicated. Intercession of parents was useless. The superintendent permitted nothing to interfere with discipline. Parents who came to berate teachers were not permitted to see them, but had to state their grievances to the superintendent, who gave them scant comfort. So, there was a growing list of malcontented parents who wanted him removed.

Up until the grade school board election, April 12, Crouse's supporters on this and the other board had outnumbered his opponents. This majority was changed to a minority at the election, when three "dark horse" candidates defeated three supporters of the Superintendent.

The "dark horses" were Heinecke, who is a cashier of the First National Bank of Lebanon,. R. V. Gilchrist, who is connected with a light and power plant, and Ben Riebold, an insurance agent. Heinecke succeeded Ed Nichols as president and the other two succeeded Mrs. John Faulkner and Mrs. Ada Abernathy as members. Mrs. Faulkner now teaches school outside of Lebanon and Mrs. Abernathy and Nichols formerly taught.

Little Interest in Election.

Little interest was taken in the election generally, as only one ticket—bearing the names of Nichols, Mrs. Faulkner and Mrs. Abernathy—had been entered. The polling place at the grade school building was opened at 1 p. m. and at 3:30 only 15 votes had been cast. Then began a steady procession of the element opposed to Crouse, and when the poll closed at 4 p. m. the total vote was 67. Heinecke received 52 to Nichol's 15, and the votes for the others were much the same. The names of the "dark horses" written in on the ballots.

There was criticism of the secrecy with which the coup was accomplished, to which the elected persons replied that it was done without their knowledge. The defeat of Nichols was deprecated because he was acknowledged to have done valiant work in securing the township high school, and there was imputation of lack of gallantry in the displacement of the two women.

It is pointed out, as showing that the result could not have been accomplished openly, that, when a member of the High School Board was to be elected the following week, a similar effort to elect a dark horse was defeated by a vote o nearly two to one, John Dausman, a supporter of Crouse, being re-elected.

Source of the Strategy.

It is asserted by his supporters that the strategy of the first election was directed from the village poolroom.

At the first meeting of the newly-constituted joint boards last Monday night, there was about three hours of debate of the superintendent, which extended to matters which are about equally divided but at the last only three of the 11 members stood by the superintendent. They were Dr. F. A. Renner, C. B. Peach and John Dausman, Renner and Dausman are members of the grade school board. The members who voted against the superintendent were Dr. Phil Griesbaum, C. W. Robinson and Ed Braun of the High School Board and O. F. Heinicke, R. V.. Gilchrist, Ben Reibold, E. J. Weber and Mrs. Dora Pfeffer of the Grade School Board.

It was expected, when Crouse asked for a joint meeting of the boards for Friday night, that it would be held at the High School auditorium and that it would be public. The teachers and friends of Crouse planned to make a showing of their displeasure with the board members' action. When it was learned that the meeting would be at Heinecke's bank, the teachers went there in a body and asked admittance, but after a parley were excluded on the ground that they were not "the public," but only school teachers.

Other Teachers to Quit.

Three of the present staff of teachers have announced that they will not sign new contracts which have been offered them and it is said to be likely that others will follow their example.

Another meeting of the joint boards will be held Monday night, at which final action will be taken on the superintendency.

BARING PLANNED TO TAKE TRIP SECRETLY

Man Charged With Giving Wife Germs Tried to Keep Voyage Quiet.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Clarence O. Baring, who is charged with feeding his wife disease germs and arsenic, tried to keep his projected trip to Europe with a mysterious "Mrs. C. O. Baring" a secret from his friends.

This was substantiated today by a clerk from the office of Thomas Cook & Son, 585 Fifth avenue, when he appeared before District Attorney Rowland.

The record of Baring's expensive tour of Europe, planned to begin June 7, were turned over by the travel agency to District Attorney Rowland on his request subpena. At the same time the clerk, with whom Baring planned his trip, appeared and told Mr. Rowland what he knew.

He told of Baring coming to Thomas Cook & Son early in April and requesting the itinerary for a trip through Central Europe. He also said Baring spke of L. Ward Prince, an intimate friend of the Barings, and asked where Prince had planned to travel.

"I want to avoid meeting Prince while I'm abroad," Baring told him, the clerk told Mr. Rowland. Baring did not explain this statement.

On his request, Baring's itinerary was drawn up and changed several times so that he and "Mrs. Baring" might avoid Prince in their travels. The real Mrs. Baring has said she had no knowledge that her husband planned such a trip. District Attorney Rowland charges Baring's trip was planned as a flight after he had poisoned his wife and that he meant to go with "another woman."

Baring, through his attorney, has said he planned the trip as a "surprise" for his wife.

Baring's attorney announced today that he will go before County Judge Bleakley in White Plains and ask for the minutes of the April grand jury which indicted Baring. He said further he will ask for delay of the trial now set for May 12.

The State troopers of White Plains have been taken off the hunt for Miss Mildred E. Beam, the young school teacher friend of Baring. District Attorney Rowland still expects her to come forward this week voluntarily to tell what she knows of Baring. It is reported that she broke down nervously after her name was brought into the case as a witness for whom subpenas had been issued, and that she has since been in hiding trying to recuperate.

It is said Baring has been in communication with Miss Beam and that she may be called as a witness for the defense. Opposed to this was a report that she felt bitterly angry at Baring for bringing her name into the case and that she gladly will tell whatever she knows to the authorities.

CURRICULUM IS CHANGED

A change in the curriculum of Washington University prescribes that hereafter candidates for the A. B. degree shall be required to take courses in American history and American Government and that they take either mathematics or Greek or Latin. Special emphasis has been placed on the study of natural science. Other requirements are not essentially different from those of preceding years.

"I regard the adoption of this change as a distinct and important advance in the methods of education in this part of the country," Chancellor Herbert S. Hadley said. "We are getting away from the illogical, if not ludicrous, position which education has been placed for some time through leaving freshmen and sophomores to determine what courses are best for them because the faculty could not make up its mind what is best for the students.

"We adopted these new requirements on the theory that teachers know better than the students what the essentials for an educaion are."

KU KLUX 'PATRIOT' QUITS AS SEQUEL TO COURT ACTION

Publication, Which Printer Alleged Ruined His Business, Is Succeeded by the "Klan Kourier."

"KRAWFORD KUTTING KRACKS" ALSO CEASE

Slogan Contest Involving "Gift" of Farm to the Winner Disclosed Fraud by Klansmen.

The "Patriot," local Ku Klux Klan weekly publication, has passed out of existence and has been succeeded by the "Klan Kourier," which made its initial appearance on the streets here Friday.

The "Patriot" was founded last year by individuals to herald the doings of the klan in and about St. Louis, and last December fell into the hands of the Rev. C. C. Crawford, pastor of the Fourth Christian Church, Blair avenue and Penrose street, who became publisher.

The Rev. Mr. Crawford conducted a half-page department bearing the caption, "Krawford's Kutting Kracks at Ku Klux Kritics," in which he attacked opponents of the klan or sought to put a constructive phase on ku klux policies.

Crawford Also Passes.

The end of the "Patriot" also marks the passing of Crawford from the "Invisible Empire," as he has been suspended from membership because of his part in a fraudulent slogan contest conducted by the paper. His case has been sent to the "Kloncillum," at Atlanta, for disposition.

It will be recalled that the "Patriot" last fall began advertising a slogan contest, in which it offered to give a farm in Illinois to the reader who submitted the winning slogan for its editorial page.

This contest did not go along so well, and when Crawford took charge of the paper he inherited the contest. The time came for selecting the winner, but Lincoln E. Slick of Peoria, Ill., who owned the farm and was directing the contest, was loath to part with it.

Slogan "Contest" Award Exposed.

It was at this point that Crawford stepped into the situation. He wrote a slogan and then arranged with a klansman, Howard Bowers, to award the farm to him and for Bowers to turn it back immediately to Slick, so the thing would have an aspect of genuineness.

In the next issue the "Patriot" contained a two-column article on the editorial page headed, "Meet Mr. Bowers, farmer," and the article went on to explain that Bowers had submitted the winning clogan, which was "Let only native-born Americans enjoy the suffrage right."

But the Post-Dispatch exposed this situation and showed that title to the farm, which was mortgaged for $17,000, had never passed to Bowers and was still in Slick's name.

Forgiven by Church Board.

Crawford got out a special edition of his paper denying that the award had not been made properly and denouncing the Post-Dispatch.

But Ku Klux officials in Kansas City took up the Post-Dispatch story and made an investigation within the klan, with the result that the Rev. Mr. Crawford admitted the whole transaction, as related by the Post-Dispatch, and threw himself upon the klan, and his church board for forgiveness. He was forgiven by the church board, but quietly dropped by the klan, pending an investigation by Atlanta officials.

Last week H. C. Hicks, a printer at 420 Market street, who had done some printing for the Patriot, filed a receivership suit against the paper. He named as defendants the Patriot Publishing Co. and its officers, W. B. Carleton, president; the Rev. C. C. Crawford, vice president and editor, and Harry Catlin, secretary-treasurer. He alleged that Carleton and Crawford were using the corporation as a means to defraud various persons; that they were guilty of gross misconduct in management of the paper, and were guilty of misappropriation of funds to their own use. He said the company owed him $453 for wages and material used in work.

Printing Business Ruined.

Hicks said his printing business was ruined by affiliation with the paper and that he filed the suit to protect 600 stockholders against total loss of their investment.

The "Patriot" was owned by the Patriot American Publishing Co., which was incorporated at Dover, Del., Dec. 17, 1923, with a capitalization of 1000 shares of stock of no par value. Some of this stock was sold to klansmen and others in St. Louis. But no permit was granted by the State Department of Finance to sell it in Missouri, as required by the statutes.

The new "Klan Kourier" goes in largely for politics and devotes less space than the "Patriot" to topics touching religious and racial questions.

PAINTERS TO VOTE ON COMPROMISE WAGE SCALE TODAY

New Agreement of $1.20 an Hour Expected to Be Accepted at Meeting of Union.

CHIEFS FEEL WORKERS WILL RETURN MONDAY

Latest Pact Calls for One Year on Closed Shop Basis, It Is Reported.

Union painters and paperhangers here, who quit work March 15 when their $12 per day wage demand was rejected by employers, are expected to accept a compromise scale of $1.30 an hour, $10.40 per day, at a mass meeting held at Unity Hall, Grand and Page boulevards, this morning.

At the time they went on strike painters and paperhangers were receiving $1.12½ an hour, $9 per day. The new scale was agreed upon at a conference of the Wage Committees of the Master Painters and the union yesterday. Charles Eisenring, secretary of the union, said last night that he expected the 2500 men in the union to accept the new wage rate at the mass meeting today. "I cannot speak for 2500 men," Eisenring said, "but indications are that they will return to work Monday. I am sure that everyone connected with the building industry is pleased that the strike seems to be at an end. I'm sure I am, and if the men accept the compromise I feel sure the public will be satisfied, too."

Dowling Pleased.

James S. Dowling, president of the Master Painters, also expressed pleasure at the termination of the strike. "We have all suffered because of the strike," Dowling said, "and I am glad that an agreement satisfactory to both sides has been reached. I understand that it may take a little persuasion to swing some of the men in line, but it is to be hoped that this can be accomplished." The new agreement is for one year on a closed shop basis. This necessitates all nonunion painters and paperhangers employed during the strike joining the union or being discharged.

The union originally demanded a five-day work week at $12 per day. The men later changed their demands to $11 per day, on a five and a half day basis. The Master Painters offered the men $10 per day, an increase of $1 over the old scale, and, until the conference yesterday refused to raise this offer.

Some Union Men Employed.

During the seven weeks of the strike a number of smaller contractors employed union men under temporary agreements at $11 per day. All union men working under these agreements were assessed $2 daily to help the strike fund, strike benefits totaling $15,000, weekly having been paid during the seven-week period. Larger contractors employed nonunion men at the $10 scale originally offered the union. Both employers and the union ran advertisements in the newspapers setting forth their respective arguments.

The strike resulted in numerous acts of vandalism on jobs worked by nonunion men. This consisted chiefly of throwing tar and other discoloring mixtures on newly painted buildings. In some instances these defacements are permanent, it being impossible to remove tar or creosote from stone or cement. Nonunion workmen were also subjected to frequent attack, several being injured by being thrown from ladders on which they were working. The union denied all knowledge of these acts, declaring them to be the work of private detective agencies wishing to create a demand for their services.

Bakers Offered $2 Week Wage Increase.

A wage increase of $2 a week was offered last night to members of Bakers' Union No. 4 by employers as a compromise to the union's demand for a general increase of $3 a week, effective May 1. The offer came at the close of a conference between employing bakers and heads of the union. The bakers will vote today on whether to accept the compromise or not, and the consensus of opinion is that it will be accepted.

The wage increase undoubtedly will effect an increase in the price of bakery products, an official of one of the larger baking companies said after the conference.

"It is impossible to estimate now what increases in prices will be necessary or whether the price of bread will be increased at all," he said. "We hope to absorb the increased cost in bakery goods other than bread."

The new scale, if the employers' offer is accepted, will be: Foremen, $44 a week; spongers, $40; assistant spongers, $38; oven hands, $40; bench hands, $36 and $37; helpers, $29; bread counters, $30, and second-year apprentices, $26.

Y. W. C. A. MAY CHANGE RULES ON CREED OF VOTING MEMBERS

Convention Approves Eliminating of Protestant Requirement—Final Approval Delayed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The foremost issue confronting the Young Women's Christian Association during the past few years was brought to a conclusion today when delegates to the national convention voted, by a large majority, to allow women of all faiths full voting membership in the association. The amendment to the constitution accepting this change, however, will not become effective until it has been approved by the 1926 convention.

Each local association, under the amendment, retains the right to decide whether it desires to adopt the new policy, or adhere to the old, which provides that the organization's voting and office-holding membership be limited to members of protestant evangelical churches.

Voting privileges under the amendment would be extended to "any woman or girl over 18 years of age, provided she makes the following declaration: 'I desire to enter the Christian fellowship of the association. I will loyally endeavor to uphold its purpose in my own life, and through my membership in the association'."

The issue of whether the privileges of full membership would be extended to women of other faiths, has created within the association two factions. The faction opposing the change consisted largely of the older members, while the faction favoring the change consisted mostly of younger members. Two years ago a commission was appointed to make a thorough study of the subject. This commission's report was the basis of the change voted today.

PROHIBITION IS PRAISED BY METHODIST CONFERENCE

Missouri Negro Delegate Offers Anti Ku Klux Klan Plank. It Is Considered.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 3.—Youth will meet with age at the Methodist Episcopal general conference next Monday, in accordance with a resolution presented and passed at today's session. The Rev. Dorr F. Diefendorf, of East Orange, N. J., a delegate from the Newark conference, asked that three representatives of the national conference of Methodist students which met for the first time at Louisville, Ky., last month, be allowed to speak on the floor of the conference.

The main feature of today's session of the conference was the unanimous passage of a resolution praising the attitude of several college presidents and president emeritus Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard, in support of prohibition enforcement.

A resolution proposed by a negro delegation was referred to a committee. It assailed individuals and organizations which defied the laws by "hidden methods" and disturbed the harmony of the country.

CHAMBER COMPLETES PLANS FOR TOUR THROUGH SOUTH

Members of Local Body Will Visit 46 Cities on Good Will Trip.

Arrangements have been completed for the "Good Will Tour" of Chamber of Commerce representatives through 46 Southern cities and towns during the week of May 11 to 17 inclusive. The trip will conclude with a visit to Memphis May 17 and the 100 members of the Touring Committee will return to St. Louis the following day.

The purpose of the trip is to bring the St. Louis business interests into closer touch with those of the South. Souvenirs will be distributed by the party at each stop. The principal ground to be traversed by the committee lies in Mississippi, where 39 cities and towns will be visited. Two stops are planned in Louisiana and five in Tennessee.

URGES CAHOKIA MOUND FOR EAST ST LOUIS PARK

Surveyor of Spot Says Properly Would Make One of Finest Parks in World.

The saving of Cahokia Mound (Monks' Mound), as a municipal outer park for East St. Louis, is proposed in a letter written to the Post-Dispatch by Warren K. Moorehead, director of the survey of the Cahokia Mounds, made under auspices of the University of Illinois.

The chance to save the mound will pass with this summer, Prof. Moorehead says. After September 1, the tract with surrounding land, is to be sold for residence purposes.

Finest Mound of Group.

"The finest mound of the group," Prof. Moorehead says, "in point of Symmetry, perfection and preservation, stands on the property of Powell and his sons, less than four miles from the heart of East St. Louis. The land is to be subdivided and sold. I am told by Powell that the mound is safe until September 1.

"A few thousand dollars will buy the structure, and several acres surrounding. Cherokee roses planted upon it would give the people of East St. Louis one of the most picturesque small parks in the world. The adjoining low place could be deepened; water will collect there, and aquatic flowering plants would give the effect of a sunken garden, over which would tower a pyramid of color.

There could be no comparison between this little inexpensive park of a few acres, preserving that wonderful mound, and the wretched and highly artificial park now within the corporate limits of East St. Louis."

Used as Picnic Ground.

Prof. Moorehead says that in the last 11 months, large numbers of small buildings have been erected along the national highway leading northeast from East St. Louis, past the mounds. The tract about the mounds has been used as a public picnic ground, and an outdoor meeting place for the Ku Klux Klan. Certain owners of property adjoining the highway are preparing to subdivide their tracts.

This, in Prof. Moorehead's belief, means the failure of the plan to create a large park, for the preservation of the mounds. However, the city of East St. Louis could save the best of the mounds, he says, in the manner suggested.

"UNDER COVER MEN" WITNESS IN MOBILE LIQUOR RING CASE

T. A. Thomas Shown a Letter From Springfield, Mo., Asking for Champagne Prices.

By the Associated Press.

MOBILE, Ala., May 3.—T. A. Thomas, Federal "under cover man" who worked here as the operator of a junk and bottle shop while gathering evidence against Mobile's rum ring, was the chief witness today in the trial of 49 defendants charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act. A letter was introduced by Thomas, which he said he seized during a raid on Dave's Tire Shop, dated Oct. 21, 1923, from Springfield, Mo. The letter asked for champagne prices and complained of a lack of a market. It said the writer had visited Oklahoma, but had had no luck. The writer asked for names of parties to sell Scotch at $40 a case and American whisky at $50 a case. It was signed by James Yarbrough, Box 242, S. S. Station, Springfield, Mo.

Political Organization to Meet.

The Missouri branch of the National Progressive League will hold a meeting in the assembly room of the Public Library, Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Charles K. Cohn and other speakers will explain the purposes of the league, which is a political organization.

UNTERMYER TELLS OF "BACKFIRE" IN PIERCE OIL SUIT

Quotes Virginia Court as Referring to the H. S. Priest Contract as "Unconscionable Bargain."

NEW YORK ACTION ALLEGES CONSPIRACY

Attorney Fordyce Issues Statement Regarding the Receivership Suit Filed by Mrs. Priest.

The suit of Mrs. Henry S. Priest, wife of the former counsel of the Pierce Oil Corporation, demanding a receivership for that company, is characterized as "backfire" by Samuel Untermyer of New York, present counsel for the company, who is assailed in Mrs. Priest's petition.

What is meant by "backfire" was indicated when in New York yesterday, the record of an earlier suit was made public. This was the suit of the Pierce Oil Corporation against the Cities Service Co., the Empire Petroleum Co., the Empire Gas and Fuel Co., Henry Clay Pierce, Alton B. Parker, Henry S. Priest, Henry L. Doherty and others.

The action, an Associated Press dispatch states, was based on charges that the defendants conspired and seized the Pierce Oil Corporation to the irreparable injury of its business and the interests of its stockholders.

It is complained that they executed seven promissory notes by the Pierce Oil Corporation aggregating $1,200,000, and one by the Pierce Pipe Line Co., for $2,072,256, and delivered them to Doherty, the pipe line company notes being submitted as collateral for the seven oil corporation notes.

Seizure of Business Alleged.

Among the documents is an affidavit by Henry B. Thorne, vice president of the Pierce Oil Corporation, describing a complaint not yet filed, in which Pierce and Doherty are especially named in connection with the agreement of October, 1922, whereby the property and business of the corporation were seized for the benefit of Pierce, Doherty, the defendant companies, and their associates. It is complained that the seizure was accompanied by loss, waste and payment of money to the alleged conspirators from assets of the Pierce Oil Corporation, and that the execution and transfer to Doherty of the eight promissory notes was unlawful.

Justice Giegerich of New York has issued an order, directed specifically to Doherty and Pierce, to show cause Thursday why they should not be permanently enjoined from selling or otherwise transferring the notes.

Two statements regarding Mrs. Priest's suit were given out yesterday at the office of the corporation's St. Louis counsel, Fordyce, Holliday & White. One was by Samuel Untermyer of New York, the other was by Samuel W. Fordyce of the St. Louis firm.

Statement by Untermyer.

Untermyer said the Priest suit was "backfire" resulting from the action filed in New York, and after outlining that case, added: "Mr. Priest has also sued the corporation in Missouri for $39,000 further fees, which the corporation is vigorously contesting. Most of the charges in the complaint just filed have been decided adversely by the courts in Virginia in a suit in which Mr. Priest was both counsel and witness. The Virginia court promptly declared the election of Mr. Priest and his associates unlawful, and ousted them. Mr. Priest was acting for Henry Clay Pierce when he made the futile attempt to seize control of this company from the preferred stockholders. He participated in the making of the deal between Pierce and Doherty, which the Chancery Court of Virginia described in the following language referring to the contract that was witnessed by Mr. Priest:

"'The most iniquitous contract I ever heard of, especially that part wherein Pierce should be silent and Doherty be permitted to get control of the company and divide profits with Pierce.

"'That its provisions for secrecy for stock-jobbing ventures in which both Pierce and Doherty were to participate and for the surrender of the control of the corporation to Doherty if he desired it, in utter disregard of the rights and interests of the nearly 50 million par value of stock outstanding, common and preferred, make it one of the most inequitable if not unconscionable bargains ever made.'

"This decision, with its strictures upon the transaction, was ultimately approved by the full Supreme Court Bench of Virginia."

Attorney Fordyce's Statement.

Attorney Fordyce said:

"At the proper time we shall ask the Court merely to follow the many decisions of this circuit, and dismiss Mrs. Priest's suit.

"Judge Priest, as a stockholder, has been fully advised since March 28 of the refinancing plans undertaken by three of the most reputable banking houses in this country. If he or Mrs. Priest believed that this plan was not in the best interest of all of the stockholders, it was his duty to himself and to them to try to persuade the other stockholders, by legitimate means, to vote against the plan May 7, at the special stockholders' meeting. He or his client, Mr. Henry Clay Pierce, could have communicated with them, and with his unquestioned ability and power of persuasion might have convinced the holders of more than one-third of the stock that he and Mr. Henry Clay Pierce could and would offer something better than the plan of the bankers.

"Instead of following this customary and proper method, used where there is an honest difference of opinion between groups of stockholders, he has chosen the method of attacking the good faith and honesty of a group of honorable men who are trying to save a desperate situation, and has included in his attack Mr. Clay Arthur Pierce and Mr. Even Richards, respectively, the son and son-in-law of Mr. Henry Clay Pierce, Judge Priest's employer.

"It is very evident that the purpose of Judge Priest in filing this suit at this time is to frighten the bankers and stockholders from accepting a plan of reorganization which, in my opinion, is very beneficial to all stockholders. I feel sure, however, that the stockholders will not allow their judgment to be affected by such a groundless suit."

Field's Scrapbook and Diary in Bixby Gift

History of Missouri Newspapers Among Papers Turned Over to Missouri Historical Society.

History comes to life for the one who looks over the handwritten papers, personal letters and the like included among recent gifts of W. K. Bixby, capitalist and collector, to the Missouri Historical Society.

Hardly less interesting than the documents relating to the assassination and funeral of Abraham Lincoln are a history of Missouri newspapers and a scrap book and diary compiled by Eugene Field, who worked on St. Louis newspapers in the latter '70s.

His scrapbook contains menus autographed by famous men, mementos of big assignments, such as national party conventions. A page or two at the front might be taken for a cross-section of the author's life—a card of Beerbohm Tree, an invitation to accompany Sir Henry Irving to a dinner for P. T. Barnum, a card to Lady Wilde's (Oscar's mother) "conversazione," and an announcement of the grand opening of the Kelly Bros.' wineroom.

Field Was Secretary.

Field got up the newspaper history as secretary of the Missouri Press Association and read it at the meeting of 1879. Its president then was J. E. Hutton, editor of the Mexico Intelligencer. One of Hutton's sons was Dr. Ned Hutton, who wrote much of the "bell buzzard" and kindred mysteries for the Republic, and another son now is editorially connected with the Globe-Democrat.

The history begins with 1821, when St. Louis boasted three weekly papers, the St. Louis Inquirer, Missouri Gazette and St. Louis Register. By 1836 there were three dailies, the Missouri Republican, the Commercial Bulletin, and the Missouri Argus. Thus Field took up the stage of St. Louis newspaper development year by year up to 1879, and in addition he gave a paragraph of the history of each newspaper in the State. A newspaper man's opinion is that his use of red ink for the entire account was not to indicate the whole thing was on the debit side, but may be set down to the broadcast queerness of poets.

Prominent Men Editors.

"It is a fact not generally known," he wrote, "that a large number of our prominent men of the present time have been at one time in their lives either editors or printers. The most widely known of these is, perhaps, the humorist, Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), who was for quite a while engaged in typesetting and journalism in this State. In 1855, Clemens 'held a case' on the Evening News in St. Louis. He was the most notoriously lazy printer that ever handled a stick and rule."

Field appended a clipping of a printers story that during the Crimean War, Clemens would puzzle 15 minutes over a Russian name, throw in a few z's and let 'er ride. The printer, W. H. Mugford, related that one morning Clemens came down at 9 o'clock instead of 7, and, when the foreman made a cutting remark about 7 o'clock or not at all, drawled, "Well, John, guess I won't come again. 'Tis too damned hot." Then he became a steamboat pilot.

Field Call Creditors Meeting.

Perhaps not even the prophetic soul of the poet had caught any hint that some day the same sort of legends would gather about his own name. They do tell that when Field got ready to go to Chicago he called a meeting of creditors for two sufficient reasons; one, that he did not want to be brought back from Chicago. The other will be divulged in due course. The meeting overflowed the press room named in the circulars, and removed to Druids Hall, where Field spoke so seductively that he not only persuaded the tradesmen to let him out of sight, but, the story goes, impelled them to "invest in his genius" to the extent of paying his fare.

Another story is that he ran up an imposing bill with a hard-fisted barkeep at Sarah and Olive, but one night brought in a large party whose festivities soon more than balanced the bill. The barkeep, they would have us believe, called Fields aside and said the bill would be considered settled. "Come on up to the bar, boys," said Fields. "I believe it is customary when a bill is settled for the house to stand treat."

Notified of Lincoln's Death.

One of the most interesting among the papers relating to the Lincoln assassination is a military telegram, dated April 17, 1865, to Gen. Dodge, signed "R. O'Brien," beginning, "I regret to have to advise you that President Lincoln was assassinated on the night of the 14th while in his box at Ford's Theater." O'Brien related that at the same time an assassin entered Secretary Seward's room and stabbed him several times. It was "hoped he will recover, but his son, Frederick, was mortally wounded," * * * "Do not make this public for the present."

There is a voluminous store of correspondence regarding arrangements for the funeral, on April 19. The trip of President Lincoln's funeral train is recalled by a wire from Philadelphia asking, "Will the body pass through this city? The public generally desires that it should lie in state here a short time." A letter introduced a merchant "desirous of furnishing articles in connection with the ceremony" as an "honorable gentleman."

Sam Houston, President of the Republic of Texas, in a letter to Andrew Jackson on Feb. 16, 1841, copied in the collection, said he was "determined upon annexation." Texas did join the Union in December, 1845. Houston wrote to his friend, "Texas is presented to the United States as a bride adorned for her espousals," but, if refused on this third offer, "her mortification would be indescribable."

Five years later Daniel G. Burnet, former President of Texas, was recommended for collector of the port of Galveston, by reason of his "ability, patriotism and integrity," which qualities had made him one of the poorest men in Texas." Bixby gave M. B. Lamar's original letter to President Taylor to the society.

Two books in the Lincoln collection, one by Finis L. Bates and one by a member of the Oklahoma Historical Society, tell how Booth was not executed but escaped after the assassination to Oklahoma, "The Mecca for Men of Mystery," confessed his identity to Bates, and killed himself at Enid on Jan 12, 1903. The historian's volume bears the legend, "The way of the transgressor is hard."

GEORGE B. EHLHARDT DIES

Director of Natural Bridge Bank Was Ill 4 Months.

George B. Ehlhardt, 42 years old, president of the George Ehlhardt Grocers-Bakers Co., and chairman of the board of directors of the Natural Bridge Bank, died yesterday at his residence, 3020 North Newstead avenue. He had been ill several months with tuberculosis. The funeral will be at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow from an undertaking establishment at 3661 Washington boulevard to Visitation Church, with burial at Valhalla Cemetery.

Mr. Ehlhardt was survived by his widow, his mother, three sisters, and two brothers. He organized the wholesale bakery company 14 years ago after having engaged in retail grocery and meat business since 1900.

Meeting of Alumni Association.

RENTS ON DOWNWARD TREND IN SOME CITIES

Still Advancing in Others But Are Becoming More Stabilized, Survey Shows.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Rent prices have become stabilized for houses and apartments in three-fourths of the principal cities of the country, according to a survey made by the National Association of Real Estate Boards and announced today. A downward trend is reported in 16 per cent of the cities and an upward tendency in 10 per cent.

In cities of every population class and in every type of dwelling, the report shows a wide gap between the rent charged for the best class of structures in the most desirable locations and that charged for medium-grade structures in the middle-class residential location. The gap registers a rising dissatisfaction of the people of American cities with any other than the best and most modern accommodations.

Cheap Shelter Still Obtainable.

Notwithstanding the greatly increased cost of construction, material and labor which is reflected in higher rents for modern high-grade accommodations, shelter can still be had in any sized city as low as $4 a room, unheated, and in some cases at $4 a room, heated.

The average rent charged for single family dwellings in cities of 25,000 to 100,000 population is now $15 per month per room for the best structures in the cities' most desirable locations. For the middle group it is $10 per month per room. For the least desirable buildings in the least desirable locations the average is $4 per month per room.

In cities of 250,000 and over the average is $25 per month per room for Class C dwellings, $10 for Class B and $5 for Class C dwellings.

Semidetached houses and two-family houses show a decrease from these rates of $10 per month per room in the Class A group in cities of 250,000 and over, and a reduction of $3 to $5 in the some group in cities of 25,000 to 100,000 population with very much less variation for Class B and Class C structures.

Average in Apartments.

Apartment rents in multiple apartment structures average $25, $12 and $5 per month per room for structures of the three class reports on in cities of 25,000 to 100,000 population. In cities of 250,000 population and over they average $25, $15 and $9 per month per room for the respective classes.

The aristocrat of the rent scale is in the kitchenette apartment of most modern construction in the most desirable location. This type averages in the largest cities $30 per month per room.

MORE THAN 300 DELEGATES NOW CLAIMED FOR M'ADOO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Out of the 122 delegates selected in Massachusetts, Ohio, Washington and North Carolina, 68, or more than one-half, are for William Gibbs McAdoo for the Democratic presidential nomination, David Ladd Rockwell, national McAdoo manager said in a statement tonight. The total delegates now marching under the McAdoo banner ar more than 300, he said, adding that in every state but one, the McAdoo forces "won substantial victories."

"As only 16 states have so far selected delegates," the statement said, "McAdoo's position is preeminent." Referring to the statements of some newspapers that the contest in the national convention will be between McAdoo and Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, the statement said such a contest "is notice to the great rank and file of the Democratic party that the contest now is just what we have all along claimed—between the progressive forces in the Democratic party behind the candidacy of McAdoo, and the reactionary forces of the Democratic party under the control of the bosses."

The statement predicted the ultimate success of the "progressive forces" adding that the nomination of a progressive at the New York convention only will prevent a third party movement.

"The McAdoo forces," the statement concluded, "have contended all along that the Democratic party could not hope to compete with the Republican party for the support of what is termed big business. A bossed, reactionary control of the convention in New York is certain to produce a colorless candidate. On the other hand, the control of the convention by the progressive forces will offer renewed hope, in the nomination of Mr. McAdoo, to progressives."

TWO CHAMBER HEADS QUIT TO TAKE LOS ANGELES POSTS

The resignations of R. D. Sangster, Industrial Commissioner, and H. M. Brashear, Assistant Traffic Commissioner, of the Chamber of Commerce, were announced yesterday at a luncheon given in honor of the departing Commissioners. Both will accept positions with the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, which is planning an extensive program at this time.

E. S. Tomkins, traffice manager of the St. Louis Screw Co., will succeed Sangster here May 15. Mrashear's successor has not been named.

BITTER ENDING OF LOVE STORY OF VETERAN REVEALED

Former Soldier Sues Widow for an Accounting of $3000 He Says He Gave Her After Promise to Wed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., May 3.—The bitter ending of the love story of Yova Ceron, a Serbian, whose legs were shot off while serving in the American Expeditionary Forces, is disclosed in a suit which he has filed in the Circuit Court. Ceron met Mrs. Helen Pearson. He says he entered into a mutual promise last Oct. 1 for them to marry, and gave her $2400 with which to purchase a home for them. Both are middle-aged.

Mrs. Pearson purchased a residence for $5000, he says. She paid $800 cash and was to pay the remainder $50 a month. Since February, Ceron says, he has given her $50 a month to meet these payments. Now he says his intended bride told him April 10 she would not marry him and would not return his money.

He asks the Court to decree that she holds the property as a constructive trust for his benefit and to order her to assign the contract for the purchase of the property to him. She should also be required to give an accounting of the $3000 which he has advanced to her, he says, and he asks the Court so to order.

Judge T. N. Green enjoined Mrs. Pearson from disposing of the residence or any personal property which she has purchased with Ceron's money.

FOREIGN POWERS OPPOSING MARINE CLAUSE, SAYS JONES

He Asks Senate for Immediate Operation of Measure Aiding U. S. Merchant Fleet.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Foreign interests are behind the opposition in putting section 28 of the merchant marine act into effect, Chairman Jones of the Senate Commerce Committee charged today in the Senate. He urged immediate operation of the section which would give preferential rates to shipments of products on American railroads exported or imported in Shipping Board vessels.

Much of the opposition, Senator Jones said, could be traced back to freight agreements between American railroads and shipping firms. He put in the record a number of documents bearing upon these contracts, declaring they showed instances of "agreements to give the ship companies free wharfage and, in some cases, to relieve the shipping companies from local taxes."

Senator Fletcher (Dem.), Florida, declared the section should either be made effective immediately or killed. The Interstate Commerce Commission has ordered the section to become operative June 20, while a bill before the House would postpone for a year the effective date of the section.

"This is all that is left by which we can give direct aid to the development of our merchant marine," Senator Jones declared. "It seems to me American interests, who might be discomfitted by operation of this section, would be willing to suffer a little to give the merchant marine a chance."

POPE PROTESTS TO TURKEY

Kemal Orders All Crosses From Catholic Schools.

(Copyright, 1924.)

ROME, May 3.—Relations between the Holy See and the Turkish Government have become so strained that the Pope may recall Monsignor Filippi, apostolic visitor for Turkey. Mustafa Kemal's republic has ordered the removal of all crucifixes and other emblems from all Catholic schools and, despite the Pope's protest against this measure as a violation of the treaty of Lausanne, Kemal refuses to rescind the order.

The Pope has decided to close all Catholic schools in Turkey, Kemal is opposed only to the religious emblems, which he is having removed even from Moslem schools, because the new Turkey must be free from all religious bias.

REQUISITION FOR SLAYER

Hyde Seeks to Extradite Mexican Who Confessed Murder.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 3.—Gov. Hyde today issued a requisition on the Governor of Illinois for extradition of Cecilia Tamaya, a Mexican, now under arrest in Chicago, who is wanted in Kansas City for a murder committed in May, 1923. Tamaya confessed the murder to the Mexican Consul in Chicago, following his arrest there, it is stated in papers accompanying the requisition. Tamaya is alleged to have killed Joe Lobelo, another Mexican, in Kansas City on May 13, 1914, after luring Lobelo from his home on some pretext.

FACTIONAL FIGHT STARTS IN WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS

Leader in Daughters of 1812 Divides Meeting by Asking Stand on Peace Issue.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Smouldering differences between members of the Daughters of the War of 1812 and the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, burst into a sputtering flame tonight at a public meeting of the latter organization, when Mrs. Nobel Newport Potts, president of the District of Columbia Society of the Daughters, demanded direct replies to a set of prepared questions.

Her first question was whether the league favored abolition of the War Department, but the chairman refused to allow an answer to be given, declaring the question was not in order. Mrs. Potts was obliged to desist because of muttered manifestitations of disapproval from those present, whereupon she left the hall.

In the lobby outside the hall, however, Mrs. Potts was joined by several sympathizers, and the argument was resumed with Miss Carolina Wood, of the Society of Friends of Philadelphia and Miss Amy Woods, national secretary of the league, taking up the cause of the Women's League.

Col. H. H. Sheets, Officers' Reserve Corps, who had accompanied Mrs. Potts, asked Miss Woods whether she would be ready to issue a denial of a previous statement that 700 American soldiers are at present in a hospital as a result of experiments in poison gas, or whether she would allow Brigadier-General Fries, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, to appear on the platform to deny such a statement. Miss Woods said she would be glad to read to the League Congress a denial to such an effect, if it came from the Secretary of War.

PANAMA PRESIDENT PERMITS FOREIGN PLANES IN REPUBLIC

Washington Sees Move as Threat to Defenses of Canal—Government Is Opposed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Washington is much interested in the report that President Porras has signed a decree permitting foreign Governments to establish air fields and fueling depots in the Republic of Panama.

For a long time the United States Government would not permit even Panama aircraft to fly over any portion of the canal zone. In some quarters a disposition is shown to regard this latest move of President Porras as a possible threat to the defenses of the canal. Others are confident that the Panama President had no such thought in mind, and may possibly have used the decree as a lever to force the United States to grant important concessions in the new commercial treaty, now under negotiations here.

Indications are that the American Government will not take kindly to the action of President Porras, and that it may have the effect of tightening provisions of the new treaty, instead of liberalizing them. The United States does not propose to overlook any precaution for the protection of the Panama Canal.

PORTRAIT OF HARDING FOR NEWSPAPERMEN

British Ambassador Will Present Oil Canvas to Coolidge for National Press Club.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—An oil painting of the late President Harding, showing him making his address last summer in Stanley Park, Vancouver, B. C., will be presented to the newspapermen of the United States through the National Press Club next Thursday evening, with Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, making the presentation, and President Coolidge receiving it.

The gift of the Vancouver Sun, the painting has been officially approved by the Canadian Government. It shows the late President addressing the Canadians and extending his arms "In fraternal greetings." Whether the press club will keep the painting in its own rooms or send it to an art gallery will be decided later.

Shields Will Probated.

The will of former Circuit Judge George H. Shields, who died April 27 at his home, 2665 Delmar boulevard, was filed yesterday. He bequeathed $500 to each of his five grandsons and divided the remainder of his estate equally among his children—George H. Shields Jr., Leighton Shields and Mrs. Sara B. L. Warren of Brookline, Mass. The sons were appointed executors. No estimate was made of the value of the estate.

LANDIS UNSHAKEN IN HIS ATTACK ON COOLIDGE PARDON

Cites Pages of Court's Record in Grossman Case As Prosecutor Questions His Senate Testimony.

FREED OF JAIL TERM ON A TECHNICALTY

Fact That "Political Gentlemen" Intervened for the Saloonkeeper Not Disputed in Controversy.

BY CHARLES G. ROSS.
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Former Federal Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, who told the Brookhart committee yesterday about the activity of certain "political gentlemen," including Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the Republican National Committee, in getting presidential clemency for a convicted Chicago saloonkeeper, hit back with his customary vigor today when the accuracy of part of his statement was called into question.

The challenger was C. W. Middlekauff, the special assistant Attorney-General, with the request that it be delivered to Judge Landis, in Washington. Middlekauff stood on the technical ground of the distinction between the two cases in which Grossman was convicted. One was an injunction case to close his saloon and the other a case of criminal contempt for failure to obey the court's order, a failure so gross that, according to Landis' testimony, it was "matter of universal acceptance in Chicago that that place was operated down to the day Grossman was pardoned."

Says Landis Confused Cases.

Middlekauff, in his message of protest, notes the statement of Judge Landis that the record shows that six witnesses bought liquor of Grossman.

"You have confused the chancery case to close the saloon with the contempt case," Middlekauff continued. "Ball and Armstrong are the only two witnesses who testified they bought liquor after the injunction was granted. Record in contempt case shows you said Armstrong evidence was thrown out and would not be considered."

This is the same position that Middlekauff took in recommending the pardon, which was granted on the contempt charge. He told the Department of Justice, "which accepted his version" that the conviction of Grossman rested on the testimony of one man, Samuel Ball, whom he had since found to be unworthy of belief. The chief point that Middlekauff made against Ball, a detective, had "padded his expense account" by charging $1 a drink for whisky, when the prevailing price in Chicago was only 75 cents.

Doubted $1 a Drink for Whisky.

"I feel," said Middlekauff, in his recommendation to the department, "that there is a possibility that he (Grossman) was selling liquor at the time that these two witnesses (Ball and Armstrong) obtained their evidence, but after giving this matter very careful and complete investigation, and having thought the matter over for many hours, I now state that I have a substantial and well-founded doubt in my mind of the fact whether Samuel Bell visited this saloon and purchased whisky. I believe beyond all peradventure that if he did purchase whisky he did not pay a dollar a drink for it."

This is from a letter written by Middlekauff to the Attorney-General in August, 1922, and is set out here in explanation of the telegram which Middlekauff sent today to Judge Landis.

Landis Cites the Record.

Judge Landis came back quickly in reply to the telegram. Addressing Middlekauff in care of the District Attorney's office at Chicago, he said: "Your wire, care of Department of Justice, received. You are mistaken. Philip Grossman contempt case shows that your produced witnesses Straley and Vursell in support of contempt charge against Grossman. In addition to this, in chancery case, where Grossman was a party, you presented witnesses Cruse and Smith. In other words, witnesses Straley, Vursell, Cruse and Smith each testified to whisky purchases independently of Armstrong and Ball." Judge Landis cites the pages of the record on which the testimony of the various witnesses appears.

Judge Landis' recollections as given in this telegram tallies with the statement he made to the committee yesterday, to the effect that Grossman was convicted of illegal liquor selling on the testimony of six witnesses.

However, the technical point which Middlekauff raises, even if conceded, does not touch the main fact which Judge Landis forcefully developed in his testimony—the fact, namely that 'political gentlemen" interested themselves in getting Grossman pardoned.

Invoked Over-Nice Technicality.

Whether or not Grossman was convicted in the contempt case on the testimony of two or six witnesses is not highly important. As a matter of fact, he was convicted of law violation, on one case or another, by the testimony of six witnesses, and to a layman it is apt to appear that Middlekauff and the Department of Justice invoked an over-nice technicality in letting Grossman escape the consequences of his conviction. But the significant feature of the Grossman case is the fact that politics played a part. Judge Landis stated the real issue when he said: "If the man was entitled to a pardon, he ought to have it, but whether he was entitled to it or not, the pardoning power ought not to listen to these political gentlemen."

The Grossman case is a shining example of the devious ways by which pardons are sometimes obtained. It furnishes, in addition, an example of the complacency of some Senators in doing favors for constituents with political influence, and it stands out as an interesting and typical by-product of the workings of the prohibition enforcement machinery.

Grossman was pardoned by President Coolidge after the favor had been denied twice by President Harding.

Woman Imprisoned for 17 Years Is Resigned to Fate

"Aggie" Meyers, 42, in State Penitentiary for Murder of Husband, Lives in Cell With Dog.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 3.—Broken in spirit by 20 years' imprisonment, Mrs. Agnes M. Meyers, 42 years old, oldest woman prisoner in the Missouri penitentiary in point of time served, and who is said to have served a longer term than any other woman confined in a prison in the United States, virtually has given up hope of obtaining the parole for which she has made several applications.

She may receive, however, a parole before the end of this year, it is said, on the basis of the long time she has served. No recommendation at present is before Gov. Hyde.

Once sentenced to hang, with a man, for murder of her husband in Kansas City, that the two might wed, she was saved from execution by executive clemency, and her sentence commuted to life imprisonment. Her accomplice, Frank Hottman, also was saved from the gallows by a commutation and died in the penitentiary about a year ago, after serving 17 years.

Has Never Confessed.

She never has admitted a part in the killing of her husband, Clarence Meyers, May 11, 1904, although Hottman, who confessed, implicated her in an alleged conspiracy to murder Meyers, and charged she assisted in the killing in the Meyers' home.

Hottman and Mrs. Meyers never saw each other after she was committed to the penitentiary, April 8, 1907, it is said. She has served 17 years and one month in the penitentiary, and, prior to entering the prison, spent two years and 11 months in jail awaiting trial and pending appeal to the Supreme Court, where her death sentence was affirmed.

Only one male prisoner in the penitentiary has been there longer than "Aggie," as Agnes is known in the women's wards. Theodore Otto, serving a life sentence from St. Louis for murder, has been an inmate of the penitentiary since Feb. 5, 1904.

Appeal For Her Release.

Appeals for her release have been made at intervals, and last year several women' organizations of St. Louis urged a parole be granted her. A fellow prisoner, Lulu M. Collins, a woman attorney, broadcast 1000 circulars over the State, urging citizens to write to the State Penal Board, seeking "Aggie's" release. She was given her last hearing before the penal board, on application for parole, in January, 1923.

Each time her release has been urged, strong opposition has been raised from persons in Kansas City, and in Clay County, where she was tried on a change of venue and convicted in August, 1904. This pronounced opposition has been the barrier to granting of a parole, it is said.

It was charged at her trial that M. B. Meyers conspired with Hottman to do away with Meyers. Hottman confessed, it was stated, to entering Meyers' bedroom, and striking him over the head with a blunt instrument. In the struggle, Meyers called to his wife for assistance. It was charged she assisted Hottman, and stabbed Meyers with a pair of scissors.

Pet Dog in Her Cell.

Due to failing health, she has done but little work in the prison in the last few years, and now spends the greater part of her time in the womens' ward of the prison hospital. She suffered a further break in health several months ago, following the death of her father, whom she had not seen since she entered the prison.

She talks but little and is reluctant to discuss her case, apparently being resigned to live in prison for "the remainder of her natural life" to use the language of the order commuting her death sentence.

Her principal company, and apparently her chief source of pleasure, is "Wiggles," her dog. She has had "Wiggles" for 15 years, getting the terrier as a puppy, and during most of that time the dog has been an occupant of her cell.

SAILS WITH ART TREASURES

Famous British Book Collector Leaves for New York.

(Copyright, 1924.)

LONDON, May 3.—A. S. W. Rosenbach the famous book collector and dealer, sailed for New York today aboard the Berengaria with $1,500,000 worth of British and Continental art treasures.

Since coming to England a few weeks ago, he has spent 71,500 pounds sterling at book auctions; bought two private libraries and put up 235,000 pounds sterling to acquire other treasures, including a drinking cup used by Napoleon on his death bed and his knife, fork and spoon and death mask.

His trophies include 400 volumes and manuscripts from the recent sale of part o fthe famous Brittwell Court Library for which he paid 63,000 pounds sterling.

It is reported here that many of these treasures are destined for Henry Huntington, the railroad magnate.

"I think I have bought four-fifths of all the Brittwell Court papers so far sold." Rosenbach said on leaving here today. "One more section remains to be sold and I shall return to England for its auction. At various Brittwell's sales alone I have spent about 275,000 pounds."

GALLI CURCI DISINFECTED

YUMA, Ariz., May 3.—Tripping gayly down the "sawdust trail" at the State's quarantine station here yesterday, Mme. Galli Curci, opera singer, en route from aClifornia to Phoenix for a concert engagement, hummed a song of praise for Arizona's strict precautionary regulations as she subjected herself to the disinfection and inspection process imposed on all rail passengers coming into the State from California.

"Everything must be done to prevent spread of the foot and mouth disease, the singer declared.

FIRE STOPS COLLEGE GAME WHEN PRESS BOX IS BURNED

Spectators at Yale and Pennsylvania Contest Get Added Thrill in Blaze.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 3.—Nearly 10,000 persons who saw Pennsylvania defeat the Yale baseball team today also witnesed the destruction by fire of the covered press box on the top of the concrete stand along the north side of Franklin Field.

The fire, believed to have been started by a lighted cigarette among waste paper, spread rapidly. When efforts to stamp it out were unavailing, city firemen were summoned. The game was stopped as the fire apparatus arrived and the spectators cheered the fire fighters as they mounted the stand with four lines of hose.

A high wind helped to sweep the flames into the wooden seats on the stand and for a time spectators feared sparks would communicate with the gymnasium, which stands on the west side of the field. The flames, however, were subdued when the press box was destroyed along with about 15 rows of seats in front of it. The loss will be about $10,000.

All telegraph wires in the stand were put out of commission and news of the fire and the details of the remaining innings of the ball game had to be telephoned from neighborhood telephones.

No one was injured but there was plenty of excitement among the spectators. Several hundred fans had sought shelter under the stand during a light rain and they made a wild scramble for safety when the fire was discovered. A large detail of police was summoned and excellent order was maintained. When the fire was all but extinguished the game was resumed after nearly an hour's delay.

The press stand was about 200 feet long and contained two long rows of seats all built of wood.

ROBBER'S SHAMROCKS UNLUCKY

Brooklyn Youth Says 'Tips' to Store Managers Prompted Holdups.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Joseph Donovan, 17 years old, tonight was under arrest as the gunman who today robbed three Thomas McAn chain stores in Brooklyn, getting $263. Donovan told detectives he was inspired to turn robber by a circular letter in which the McAn chain manager instructing store managers how to foil robbers, disclosed that all of the safes were built in the shop walls and camouflaged with advertising with advertising placards. The letter warned the clerks. Donovan was reported to have related, "if worst came to worst, to play safety-first and hand over the money rather than get killed."

"It looked so easy to me I quit my job as a laborer and went after it." Donovan's practice of leaving a shamrock in each store he robbed led indirectly to his arrest, police said, as he was known as the "Shamrock Kid." Askey why he left the shamrocks, Donovan replied: "For luck."

"SLICK SCHEME" FAILED, SAYS BANK ROBBER IN JAIL

Captured Man Declares He and Pal Were to Mingle With Posse After Friday Holdup at Festus, Mo.

"We had a mighty slick scheme, but it didn't work out right."

Thus, as he and his step-brother confederate fret behind the bars in the Jefferson County Jail at Hillsboro, Mo., does Fred Moore sum up the robbery of the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank at Festus, 40 miles south of St. Louis, Friday, in which they took $7000, all of which has since been recovered. And Jack Thompson, his fellow prisoner, nods assent.

The "mighty slick scheme," plotted Friday morning as Moore and Thompson idled behind the barn on the Moore farm near Festus was this: The two, after escaping with loot from the bank, would mingle with the posses out searching for the robbers, and thus throw them off the track. Of course, if somebody did identify them as robbers, they could always call the person a liar.

Thief's Car Is Overtaken.

Moore is right in saying the scheme didn't work. At 12 o'clock, 15 minutes after the escape from the bank, his Ford car was overtaken a mile out of Festus by Constable Byrd's auto, and the Constable arrested the farm-hand, who had turned robber for a day. And an hour later, a posse came upon Thompson behind the Moore barn. He had $803 of the bank's money on his person. At first he pretended he had been sleeping and denied he was Jack Thompson. He volunteered to join in the hunt for the bank robbers. The searchers, however, ended the hunt right there by arresting Thompson.

The next step was to recover that part of the loot which was still missing. Thompson, persuaded into telling, said he had cached the loot in a hollow tree on the Moore farm. With the aid of flashlights, Sheriff Brady and deputies and volunteers searched all night in vain. This morning the search was renewed with Thompson as a handcuffed guide, and, at 10 o'clock, a wooden box holding the $6200 was found resting in a gulley on the farm.

Robbers Are Recognized.

During the holdup, as he was told, the bank cashier, W. L. Townsend, recognized Moore and greeted him with "Hello, Freddy." While Thompson was gathering up the money, Moore guarded the front door. They escaped in a Ford, which they had borrowed from a neighbor. One of their revolvers had been borrowed from this same neighbor, and the other belonged to Deputy Sheriff Moore, father of Fred Moore and stepfather of Thompson.

Moore is 23 years old and Thompson is 27. Thompson returned to Festus about three weeks ago from St. Louis, and has been staying at the Moore farm. While in St. Louis he associated with members of the "Cuckoo" gang, according to Sheriff Brady.

EFFORTS TO HOLD RIVER TO COURSE REPORTED FUTILE

Hundreds of Men Fighting to Stop Current of Missouri at Glasgow.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GLASGOW, Mo., May 3.—Efforts to prevent the Missouri River from changing its course at Glasgow and leaving the town high and dry will be futile, according to information received here today by officials of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

J. F. Jungman, a representative of the Southwestern Bell in Marshall, told W. L. Prehn, division Commercial Superintendent here, that the river probably would seek a new channel despite the efforts that are being made to prevent it.

Hundreds of men are fighting the changing course of the river at Glasgow. Carloads of stone are being used to arrest the meanderings of the stream.

The changing current has eaten away the earth until now it is within 75 feet of the Chicago & Alton tracks.

Searching for His Sister.

A New Albany, Ind., man who has not seen his sister in 25 years, has asked the Post-Dispatch to aid him in getting in touch with her. He is William L. Meyer of 1520 Locust street, New Albany. The sister, whose maiden name was Schafer, is now a Mrs. Kline, living in St. Louis, he understands. They were separated when the brother was adopted by a Mrs. Meyer and taken to New Albany.

RUSSIAN ENVOY QUITS BERLIN IN ROW OVER POLICE

Departure Sequel to Search of Soviet Trade Delegation Building for a Communist.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 3.—M. Krestinsky, Russian soviet ambassador to Germany, left for Moscow tonight. His departure is a sequel to the action of the Berlin police in entering the building of the Russian Trade Delegation, and searching the house from roof to cellar for a communist against whom a warrant had been issued.

The greatest excitement prevails in Russian circles over the police search, officials of the Russian embassy stating that it lasted for four hours and that the leaders of the Russian Trade Mission, which is supposed to enjoy extra-territorial rights, were interfered with. The police made several arrests and took the prisoners, handcuffed, to the police prefecture.

M. Krestinsky called at the foreign office and made energetic protests. He succeeded in getting Foreign Minister Stresemann to order the search stopped at once.

"An unparalleled violation of extra-territorial rights," is the way the Russian embassy regards the police action. It has ordered the Trade Mission to cease its work and all commercial activity will be suspended.

The trouble started when two Swabian policemen, bringing a communist leader, Botzenhardt, wanted by the Homeran State's Attorney for alleged treason from Stuttgart to Stargard, were duped into believing that the Russian Trade Delegation building in Berlin was a restaurant where they might have lunch while making a change in trains.

According to the police, Botzenhardt was surrounded by communists and in the shuffle his escape was made possible. The police then surrounded the building and went through with their search despite the protests of the Russians until ordered by Dr. Stresemann to cease.

It is claimed by the Berlin Chief of Police that a search of extra-territorial property is justified if the culprit is caught in the act and in flight.

The German government has lodged a protest with the Russian embassy against the conduct of the employes of the Russian trade mission, characterizing the conduct of the Russians as a gross violation of the German law and pointing out that the mission does not enjoy diplomatic immunity.

The German version of the trouble is that Russian employes aided in the escape of the German communist leader Botzenhardt.

Anglo-Russian Conference in Deadlock.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 3.—The Anglo-Russian conference, which began about two weeks ago in London, has reached a deadlock on the question of the recognition of debts, according to J. J. O'Neill, National Liberty, addressing his constituents at Lancaster today. He declared that the conference was doomed to failure unless the debt problem was solved.

WALSH DISCOUNTS CHARGE OF WITNESS AGAINST WHEELER

Suggests Contempt Proceedings After Coan Testifies of Investigation in Montana.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Contempt proceedings against Blair Coan, one of the star witnesses in the Senate's investigation of the indictment of Senator Wheeler, were suggested in the Senate today by Senator Walsh (Dem.), Montana, prosecutor of the Oil Committee. The proposal was based on reports that Coan had claimed to have uncovered evidence in Montana warranting Walsh's indictment. The Senator read a telegram from Coan denying he had made such a claim, but added: "I have the statement of several newspaper men that he did make such a statement."

In his testimony before the Wheeler committee, several days ago, Coan declared he had been sent to Montana by the Republican National Commmttee to investigate not only Senator Wheeler, but "another Senator" also. He was not permitted to put the name of the second Senator in the record. The statements referred to today by Walsh were said to have been made privately, after he left the stand.

Late today Coan issued a statement again denying he had made the statement attributed to him, and saying his investigations in Montana related partially to the inquiry made by the Legislature of Montana into the elections of six years ago, when Senator Walsh was elected to the Senate.

BRITISH PREMIER SEEMS TO FAVOR BELGIANS' PLANS

Envoys Depart After Presenting Proposals for Franco-British Compromise on Dawes' Plan.

RUHR EVACUATION SEEN BY THEUNIS

Thinks MacDonald Has Abandoned Stand to Trust Germany, Opposed by Poincare.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON, London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, May 3.—Belgian Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Hymans left for Brussels tonight, following a conference with Premier MacDonald and Sir Eyre Crowe, permanent under secretary of the Foreign Office, at the Premier's country residence at Chequers. The Belgians placed before the British statesman their proposals for a compromise in the crisis between France and Britain, over the Dawes report.

Some of these proposals were sympathetically received and the correspondent gathered the Belgians departed believing they had brought agreement nearer. MacDonald and the Foreign Office officials, who alone took part in this conference, appear inclined to agree to changes in the Dawes report to meet Poincare's objections.

Snowden Not at Conference.

British treasury experts and Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden, who wish the experts' solution to be accepted as it stands, were not allowed to take part in the conference, but may be heard from later. Reports as to MacDonald's attitude in the talks with the Belgians differ and are untrustworthy, but it is gathered that the British Premier, in deference to the French objections, as conveyed by the Belgians, has abandoned the standpoint of his York speech, which antagonized the French when he said it would be necessary to trust Germany.

The most hopeful result of the conference was the conviction expressed by the Belgians that Poincare will agree to evacuate the Ruhr within a few weeks after Germany puts the Dawes plan into effect, provided real guarantees are retained and enforced that Germany will keep faith.

Whether MacDonald agreed to consider the Belgian proposal for moral and financial isolation of Germany under the League of Nations covenant in the event of a default, I am unable to learn tonight, but the atmosphere of optimism among the Belgians upon their departure was unmistakable.

What Belgians Suggested.

One specific suggestion of the Belgians to MacDonald was that the allies take over German land and maritime customs. On the question of a sanction in event of a German default under the Dawes scheme—which the experts, by the use of the word "then," indicated was to be taken after the fact that of the default—the Belgians had drastic recommendations.

They suggested that in case of such default the penalties operating under Article 16 of the League of Nations Covenant be invoked against Germany. These, of both social and economic nature, would cut Germany off from the rest of the world by a financial and economic blockade.

The Belgian Ministers also urged British concessions toward Premier Poincare's insistence that, contrary to the report of the experts, the Franco-Belgian Railways administration be maintained in the Rhineland in modified form.

During the conversations with the Belgians in Paris last Monday, Poincare and his military advisers said that the provisions guaranteeing the safety of the railways on which the occupation troops depend under the terms of the Rhineland convention are no longer sufficient, even though they worked well before the Ruhr occupation.

The reason for this, Poincare suggested, was that since the occupation the German attitude has altered for the worse. The French Premier urged that a special control be set up over the Rhenish-Westphalian railway region, with a view to obtaining security.

WHEAT DEALS IN 1923 ON CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE

Grain Futures Administration Reports Transactions of Daily Average of About 28,500,000 Bushels.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The Grain Futures Administration in its report to the Senate on future wheat trading, declared today that transactions in futures on the Chicago Board of Trade last year amounted to 8,572,111,000 bushels counting one side of each transaction or a daily average of about 28,500,000 bushels.

Thirty of the "clearing members" of the Chicago Board of Trade, handled during the year 60 per cent of all transactions in wheat futures and represented an average of over 75 per cent of the open interests. It was found that these houses handled all of the half million bushels class, accounts which were at some time during the year net "long" or net "short" in the Chicago market as much as 500,000 bushels.

There were 150 of these half million bushels accounts found. The administration classified these 150 accounts into what it termed speculative accounts and hedging accounts. Thirty-two were found to be speculative accounts, while 45 were classed in the hedging group.

73 Accounts Always "Long."

There were 73 accounts, it was found, that could not be classed in either of those groups, 55 representing customers who are commission houses, most of them not located at Chicago. The combined net position of these 55 accounts at quarterly intervals was always "long." Five of the 73 were of mixed character, and 13 others represented "spreaders" between markets.

The 32 speculative accounts, it was found, represented principally "professional traders and speculators," and a few "members of large futures commission houses." No one of these 13 accounts was ever net "long" or net "short" as much as 3,150,000 bushels; no two of them combined were ever net "long" or net "short" as much as 5,025,000 bushels; and no three of them combined was ever net "long" or net "short" as much as 6,125,000 bushels. The largest combined net position for any group of three of these accounts for any time during the year was 6,115,000 "short" on March 15, 1923.

Three of these 13 accounts reached their maximum on the "long" side and 10 "short" side. The combined net position of these 13 accounts was always "short" except on April 10, Oct. 6-8, and for about two weeks around Sept. 1. Their combined net position on the "short" side reached its maximum May 29 when it was 8,175,000 bushels "short." It exceeded 8,000,000 bushels only on the other date, Jan. 30, when it was 8,010,000 bushels "short." On both of the dates the aggregate of all accounts, large and small, on the books of all "clearing members" of the Chicago Board of Trade amounted to not less than 97,000,000 bushels.

Analysis of Transactions.

Analyzing the transactions of the 32 speculative accounts, which includes the 13 accounts mentioned, the administration reported but two were in the market continuously throughout the year, while 30 were in for periods varying from two weeks to 11 months. Four of the accounts were never in the market on the "short" side during the year; 10 were never on the "long" side, and 18 were first on one side and then the other.

The total trading in wheat futures for the 32 accounts for the year totaled 231,588,000 bushels bought and 228,733,000 bushels sold. Their combined net position was sometimes "long" and sometimes "short," but for almost all of the year was "short."

The maximum on the "short" side of these 32 speculative accounts was reached late in July, when it totaled 8,060,000 bushels, while on one other day it reached more than 7,000,000 bushels. The combined net position of the group at the beginning of the year was 4,980,000 bushels "short" and at the end of the year 2,225,000 bushels "short."

The only times when the speculative group's combined position was on the "long" side, the administration reported, were early in April, with 1,805,000 bushels, early in October with 1,655,000 bushels and early in December with 1,690,000 bushels.

Volume of the Hedges.

The report said that of the 45 hedging accounts there were always some "long," but the combined net position was always "short," seldom to the extent of less than 3,000,000 bushels and usually to the extent of more than 10,000,000 bushels. The volume of the hedges carried for the group during the last half of the year exceeded considerably the volume so carried during the first half of the year.

The total bought for the hedging group during the year was 274,575,000 bushels and the total sold 300,410,000 bushels.

WEST ST. LOUIS WATER CO. SEEKS PROPERTY VALUATION

Application Filed With State Public Service Commission Is Granted.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 3.—The West St. Louis Water and Light Co., which supplies water to a number of towns in St. Louis County, today applied to the State Public Service Commission for a valuation of all its properties by the commission's engineers at the expense of the company. The application was granted.

The valuation is desired in connection with plans for financing the the company, and to enable it to borrow money to make necessary extensions of service, Charles M. Polk, vice president, stated in an informal conference with the commission. He declared the company had no intention of asking for any increase in rates.

Several cases involving adjustment of rates charged by the company in different towns in St. Louis County now are pending before the commission. These adjustments cannot be made, it was stated, with out a valuation being made of all the properties of the company. The valuation will be made by the commission's engineers at the expense of the company.

Polk stated that rapid building up of various districts in St. Louis County would necessitate numerous extensions of water mains by the company in the near future to meet the increased demand for water service.

YOUTH DROPS STOLEN JEWELRY IN FLIGHT FROM SLEUTHS

Boy Admits Having Robbed Little Rock Store After Being Caught.

A tall, raw-boned youth loitering at Sixth and Walnut streets, for some reason, looked suspicious to Detectives Collins and Foege yesterday and they told him to stop. Instead he broke into a run, dropped a chamois bag into the street, and darted around the corner into the arms of two other detectives.

He said he was Louis Beall, 16, of Jackson, Miss., who the police were looking for. His friend, Robert McWilliams, 15, of Morgan City, La., was arrested Friday, and told police that they had robbed a jewelry store in Little Rock, Ark. McWilliams had jewelry in his pockets, and the chamois bag which Beall cast aside contained more jewelry. They waived extradition and will be taken to Little Rock to face charges.

Portland Campaign Against Earwigs.

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 3.—The European earwig, a destructive insect somewhat resembling a cockroach, which not only eats vegetation but causes much damage to carpets and textiles in the home, is being fought by the city of Portland.

A bureau of earwig control, in charge of a director and with about 60 employes, is planning a vigorous offensive against the pest. Poison is to be the principal weapon. Officials also are considering importation of a fly from England which is said to have been effective in destroying the insect.

DREDGE DRIVES SNAKES AND OTHER PESTS FROM TOWN

Resident of Ellendale Thanks Director Fisk for Work Being Done on Sewer.

The contractor who last week began work with a big dredge on the sewer conversion of the River des Peres—the $11,000,000 item of the $87,000,000 munuicipal bond issue—has become a St. Patrick in the eyes of a resident of Ellendale, a suburb, about a mile from the Lindenwood district where the operations began, who called on Director of Streets and Sewers Fisk yesterday.

Plowing up abandoned quarries, sink holes, sloughs and ponds, the big dredge has startled from their native habitat the various fauna indigenous to the area it appeared. These included snakes, rats—even opossums, according to the complaining citizen. It was bad enough, he said, to suffer the attendant disturbances to local chicken roosts and to household pets by the enemy invasion, but the climax was reached when neighborhood small boys discovered a "snake nest," exposed by the machine, and seizing upon the inhabitants, proceeded to parade with their trophies.

Deneen's Plurality 5944.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 3.—Charles S. Deneen was nominated Republican candidate for the United States Senate by a plurality of 5944 over Medill McCormick, the official canvass showed this morning. McCormick led Deneen 3389 down State but fell 9333 votes behind in Cook County. State total votes gave Deneen 357,545, McCormack 351,601.

LOVE QUADRANGLE IN VERMONT TOWN ENDS IN ARRESTS

Two Men and Two Women, Leaders in Village, Will Go to Court on Statutory Charges.

$100,000 SUIT MAY BE BROUGHT

Charge Former Banker Took Wife of Friend on Journey to Western Coast.

By the Associated Press.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., May 3.—As a result of a quadrangular love tangle, two men and two women who have been prominent in the affairs of the village of Enosburg Falls will be placed on trial at the September term of court here on statutory charges. Their arrest yesterday followed settlement out of court of a $10,000 suit for alienation of affections brought by George Wood against Walter V. Phelps of Seattle, and preceded trial of a similar suit, with damages set at $100,000, brought by Phelps against E. F. Greenwood, which is set for Monday next.

The four who pleaded not guilty in City Court yesterday and were released under bonds are Phelps, Greenwood, Mrs. Eva M. Phelps and Mrs. Lillian Wood. Phelps before he went West in 1922, was president of the First National Bank of Enosburg Falls. Mrs. Wood left town at about the same time as the State charges that they went to Seattle together. Before his departure, Phelps disposed of a large amount of property, but later he bought some of it back and at intervals has lived in Enosburg Falls. Soon after he left he was deposed from his position as bank president and Greenwood succeeded him. Mrs. Phelps obtained a divorce last year.

Wood's suit against Phelps went to trial on Thursday. Phelps was the only witness and told of his trips across the continent in 1922 and 1923 and of having engaged in the real estate business in Seattle. He declined to answer any questions as to whether Mrs. Wood was with him on his journeys that it was brought out that he stopped at Elmira, N. Y., during his 1922 trip. He was confronted with Mrs. Emma May Signin, keeper of a rooming house in that city, where he is said to have stayed, but said that he did not recognize her. Mrs. Segnin later was called as a witness in the trial of Phelps and Mrs. Wood.

Yesterday counsel announced that the trial would not proceed as the case had been settled, and the arrests followed.

Phelps in his suit against Greenwood charges that the latter induced Mrs. Phelps to leave him.

NEW GOVERNOR OF INDIANA

EMMETT F. BRANCH.

GOV. BRANCH was Lieutenant-Governor of Indiana during the McCray administration, and succeeded to office when Gov. McCray was convicted of using the mails to defraud and sentenced April 29 to 10 years in the penitentiary. Branch, whose home is in Martinsville, was elected Lieutenant-Governor in 1921 ,and will fill the unexpired term of former Gov. McCray until January, 1925.

M'CRAY TO BE CLERK IN PRISON LIBRARY

Former Governor Gives Messages to Reporters to Be Relayed to Successor.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 3—Assigned to work as a clerk in the library of the Federal penitentiary here for as long as he shall remain serving his 10 year sentence for fraudulent use of the mails, Warren T. McCray, until Wednesday Governor of Indiana, began today his duties as prisoner 17,746.

To Indianapolis newspapermen who came here with him, the former Governor gave messages to be relayed to his successor, Emmett F. Branch, requesting that Gov. Branch continue the McCray program for permanent highway construction, and educational improvement in the state. The newspaper men said that McCray was of the opinion that he would be allowed to write a special letter to Branch, with suggestions regarding the future policy of the State government of Indiana.

Regarding the regular letters, three per week, allowed to be sent out by a prisoner, McCray said "all of my letters will be written to my family."

WOMEN'S LEAGUE URGES PEACE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—A manifesto stating the aims of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, was presented to their congress in session here today by Miss Dorothy Evans of England, and unanimously ratified.

The manifesto states that for world peace, besides the adoption of universal arbitration, material and moral disarmament and democratic control of foreign policies are necessary. It also condemns all civil and class wars, and re-affirms the necessity for an international organization to act as a supreme judicial court in the world.

PRESIDENT'S ATTITUDE ON EXCLUSION BILL AROUSES SENATORIAL CONFEREES

Reed, Republican, Says Conference Has Settled Policy and Will Make No Changes Unless Imperative.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON May 3.—Rumblings of a row in the conference committee of the House and Senate, stirred up by the statements from the White House lining President Coolidge behind the policy of Japanese exclusion, came to light in the Senate this afternoon.

Many Senators expressed their astonishment that the President should permit such a statement to go out, while Representatives in the committee were still trying to have inserted in the bill a provision of time extension, which would give Mr. Coolidge an opportunity to carry on negotiations with Japan, which he hopes will take the curse off the measure.

The upshot of the dispute was that Senator Reed (Rep.) Pennsylvania, when the Conference Committee adjourned this afternoon, issued a double-edge statement, which started out with the declaration that "every member of the conference has recognized that the policy (of exclusion), is settled. Interpreted by itself this would mean that the committee has decided not to make any changes in the bill as it is." But after this Reed continued:

"Although every Senator, including Senators Harris and King, is anxious to avoid unnecessary embarrassment to the President in his handling of foreign relations."

Reed Calls on Coolidge.

Administration Senators were understood to feel that the White House pronouncement, which, it was pointed out, came almost on the eve of the primaries in California, which are scheduled to be held next Tuesday, was of a nature to hamper them in their conference negotiations. Early this morning Senator Reed called on Mr. Coolidge. He refused to comment on what took place there, but other Senators were told that the President felt he had been misrepresented in the newspaper accounts of the pronouncement.

Just what this misrepresentation consisted of was left in the air. A little later the report was circulated by Republicans, who are usually well informed, that a majority of the committee was ready to make a report recommending that the conflicting provisions, as to time in the two bills, be compromised by fixing July 1, 1926, instead of July 1, 1924, as the date when the exclusion provision would become effective.

This is known to have been in accord with the President's program. Inasmuch as it would give the State Department two years in which to attempt the negotiation of a treaty with Japan, as is known to be Mr. Coolidge's desire, members of the committee would neither confirm nor deny that such an agreement had been reached.

White House Stand Is Shock.

There are grounds for believing, however, that if such an agreement was ever reached it has been completely upset by the statement of the White House position. One evidence of this was that the committee which had originally intended to make a report today, put the matter over until Tuesday. Meanwhile, further negotiations will be carried on. Certain members of the committee were said to feel that, while the report on Japanese exclusion is being held up in an effort to meet President Coolidge's wishes, the latter is trying to duck the responsibility for the delay.

Meanwhile, the Democrats in the Senate are preparing to make the most of the White House expression, which they connect directly with the near approach of the California primaries. A secret poll is said to have been taken of the Senate, which showed that not more than 20 of the members could be lined up behind the administration proposal. Certain it is that if anything of the kind comes out of committee, there will be attempts on the part of the anti-Japanese group to send it back under a parliamentary objection that the committee had no right to go beyond July 1, 1924, as provide in the House bill.

A row was on when word was passed around the Senate that Senator Reed might come to the floor and make some sort of a statement giving a more exact definition of Mr. Coolidge's position. Just before adjournment, Senator Harrison (Dem.), Mississippi, told the Senate he had heard of the dispute, and asked if Reed was going to say anything. Senator Sterling, a member of the committee, replied that there would be no statement on the Japanese question.

Gives Statement to Papers.

Later Reed called in newspaper men and gave out a statement which made particular reference to an article appearing this morning in a Washington newspaper. The statement said in part:

"In the first place, every member of the Conference Committee is pledged to give out no interviews, and they have observed that pledge. No member has authorized any such statement as appeared in these newspapers.

"In the next place, the statements in the article are unfair to the Democratic Senators who are members of the conference. In the discussion of this immigration bill, there has been no partisanship, either in the committee or in the conference. Every member of the conference has treated the question as being one above partisanship. Senator Harris and Senator King have worked single-mindedly with the object of giving the country the best possible solution of this vital question. It is not true that either of them has tried to defeat the exclusion policy, which both House and Senate have adopted.

BERNHARDT PARIS SUBURB

Colony to Honor Actress Will House Struggling Artists of France.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 3.—Plans are rapidly maturing for the founding of a suburb of Paris to be named in honor of Sarah Bernhardt. Construction is expected to begin within a few months under the direction of the "Renaissance des Cities," an organization which made important contributions toward rebuilding a number of cities and towns devastated during the World War.

The idea is being sponsored by a number of persons prominent in the world of art and letters, among them the noted philisopher, Henri Bergson. The plan is to erect small houses of from 4 to 6 rooms and to make the colony particularly attractive to struggling artists, authors and actors and a place where they can live cheaply and quietly. The founders will rent the houses at the nominal sum of about 2000 francs a year. The construction officer of the Department of the Seine has set aside 3,825,000 francs for construction of the colony.

ALBRECHTS TAKE APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT OF U. S.

East St. Louisans, Sentenced to Jail for Selling Liquor, Abandon Plea in Appeals Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DANVILLE, Ill., May 3.—Henry Albrecht, Henry Albrecht Jr., owners of the wholesale drug concern of H. Albrecht & Co., and Thomas Mahar, the bartender in their lunchroom and saloon, all of East St. Louis, today obtained a writ of error for an appeal of their recent conviction in the United States District Court here to the United States Supreme Court.

The three men were convicted of possession and sale of liquor and maintenance of a common nuisance. The Albrechts each were fined $3500 and sentenced to one year in jail, and Mahar was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $2500. Judge Walter C. Lindley, before granting the writ of error, vacated a similar writ granted the defendants for an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

The appeal to the Supreme Court is based on the contention that the charges of possession and maintenance of a common nuisance are in violation of the eighteenth amendment, Congress not being empowered by the provisions of the amendment to enact the clauses in the Volstead act which provide for the possession and nuisance charges. They also claim the information against them is defective and in violation of the fourth and sixth amendments, which guarantee the rights of citizens against arrest without probable cause and guarantees them a speedy trial with full information of the charges against them, which they assert was not furnished them when they were arraigned in court. The outcome of the appeal will be watched with interest and any reversal of the conviction in Judge Lindley's court will be of importance in every Federal district in the country in the prosecution of alleged liquor law violations under the Volstead act.

GERMAN VOTERS TO PASS ON REPORT OF EXPERTS AT THE POLLS TODAY

Government and Political Leaders Chiefly Concerned With Popular Verdict on Reparations Proposal.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 3.—Thirty-five million men and women in Germany who have attained the age of 20 will have an opportunity tomorrow to give untrammeled expression to their political preferences, and upon their verdict will depend in a large measure the future of German politics and economics, as well as of the nation's foreign relations.

Although Sunday's balloting constitutes the most critical of the German post-war elections, the campaign which terminated tonight stimulated only a minimum of popular interest and the fact that 28 parties, representing no less than 75 individual political units, are named on the official ballot, reflects the degree to which internecine political schisms continue to keep the German people in discord.

While the fate of German democracy is heavily involved in the outcome of tomorrow's voting through the menace accruing to it from a popular shift to the Right, the Government and political leaders are more deeply concerned with the popular verdict on the question of making the Dawes report the instrument with which Germany may achieve a definite adjustment of her reparations problem.

Leaders Support Experts' Plan.

Official circles and party leaders who are seeking this goal are hopeful that the combined mandates which may be captured by the Socialists, Clericals, People's party and Democrats will insure the prosecution of a parliamentary program based on a faithful effort to carry out the provisions of the experts' proposals.

These four parties commanded 346 seats in the old Reichstag. Allowing for a prospective collective loss of 100 mandates in tomorrow's election, the big coalition would still command sufficient votes in the new parliament to carry out the program to which the Marx-Stresemann Government has pledged Germany through its acceptance of the Dawes report as a basis for negotiations.

Its majority would suffice to push through all ordinary legislation needed for fulfillment of the experts' conditions, except on the issue of conversion of the Federal railways into a capitalized trust corporation, which would involve a constitutional amendment requiring a two-thirds majority.

The streets of Berlin are littered with handbills and dodgers strewn from airplanes and motor cars. Most of them carry the old monarchial colors and are the campaign devices used by the Nationalists who go far afield in the search of slogans. Prince Bismarck has been pressed into service as the switchman who routs all trains to the right, while the shades of Frederick the Great and other national heroes have been invoked to remind the voters of the glories of other days.

There has been a visible chill in the fervor with which ultra-nationalists, headed by Gen. Ludendorff, set out to stampede the voters shortly after the General was acquitted in his recent treason trial at Munich, but at the same time the former Quartermaster-General is sure of election because he heads the ticket as condidate-at-large.

This also holds good for all the candidates-at-large of the other parties as they will automatically be elected by virtue of surplus votes in case they are defeated in the local districts where they were nominated. Therefore, while early returns will indicate the election of Gen. Ludendorff, Admiral Von Tirpitz, Prince Bismarck, Count Reventlow, Chancellor Marx, Foreign Minister Stresemann and other party leaders, they will not indicate the subsequent strength of each party, as this will finally be established after the total vote is allocated on the basis of one mandate for each 60,000 votes.

The Socialists and Communists captured 12,000,000 out of 26,000,000 votes cast in the 1920 election.

Woman Campaign Firebrand.

The firebrand of the election campaign is Ruth Fischer, whose real name is Elfrieda Golke, alias Friedlander.

Only 29 years old, she is head of the German communist party, having unseated Clara Zetkin and Otto Brandler. She became a communist while studying economics at Vienna University.

Years ago she led the minority at the Leipsic communist national convention, pleading for direct action. After the failure of the Brandler wing to produce a revolution last November, she got the support of Zinovieff, president of the Executive Committee of the Communist Internationale, and captured the German party machinery.

Indicted for inciting a riot, she has campaigned incognito, appearing unannounced at meetings. As the candidate of the industrial Berlin district here election seems assured.

Former Bartender Candidate.

Another romantic candidate for the Reichstag is Louis Haeusser, a former champagne bartender in Paris and now head of the Haeusser party. He s called "Germany's Rasputin" because of his hypnotic eyes and flowing beard. He considers himself a second Messiah and announces:

"I guarantee that the present governmental system will fall one week after the assembly of the new Reichstag, the Rhine and Ruhr will be evacuated in three months, and the United States of Europe be erected under my leadership within six months."

Among Haeusser candidates, women predominate. Haeusser, after serving time for inciting to riot, has conducted his campaign from a sanitarium.

Prince Bismarck, German Nationalist candidate, was only a year old at the time of the death of his grandfather, the Iron Chancellor, but is played up as the holder of the Bismarck tradition. Admiral von Tirpitz, on the German Nationalist ticket, has warned that he will play an independent game if elected.

FIGHT FOR MELLON PLAN FUTILE, G.O.P. LEADER CONCEDES

McLean Tells Senate "It Is Sheer Waste of Time to Be Arguing Income Rate Reductions."

"DISCRIMNATORY," SIMMONS ASSERTS

Lack of Interest in Debate Disclosed by Fact That Only 3 Senators Were Present Part of Time.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Republicans stood by the Mellon plan today in the opening skirmish in the Senate fight on income tax rate reductions in the revenue bill, when the Democratic attack was led by Senator Simmons of North Carolina. Senator McLean, Connecticut, the Republican spokesman, conceded, however, he was fighting a losing battle.

Many of the vital provisions of the Mellon proopsal already had been repudiated by the Senate, McLean said, and he added that in the face of the Democratic conference approval of the Simmons plan, "it is a sheer waste of time to be arguing the normal and surtax rate reductions."

Simmons assailed as "unfair and discriminatory" the Mellon rates, providing for a reduction in the maximum surtax rate from 50 to 25 per cent, and reinserted in the bill by Finance Committee Republicans in place of the Longworth compromise adopted by the House.

Less Than 10 Senators on Floor.

Less than a score of Senators were on the floor during the debate and upon the conclusion of the two speeches discussion centered on other topics. Senator McLean called attention that for some time only six members were present "and only three part of the time."

Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee, in charge of the bill, reiterated today he would seek night sessions next week. There were no indications of when a vote would be possible on the income tax schedule, although some of the leaders predicted it would be possible by Monday.

Explaining the Democratic income schedule, Simmons said it was based on the principle of ability to pay. It calls for a reduction in the maximum surtax to 40 per cent, but would allow greater cuts in the normal and lower surtax rates than would the Mellon or House plans.

McLean declared "a low surtax in years of full production, which means full employment and consumption, will bring much more than a high surtax which can and will be evaded, and the direct effect of which, if not evided, will be to retard both production and consumption."

Bigger Cut on Smaller Incomes.

"In 1916," he continued, "with a maximum surtax of 10 per cent, the Treasury collected $81,000,000 and in 1921, with a maximum of 65 per cent, the Treasury collected from these same taxpayers only $84,000,000."

Simmons argued that more of a reduction should be made on the smaller incomes than proposed by Secretary Mellon, he declared that Democrats believed in reduction to the limit, but opposed at this time so much of a cut in the surtax rates.

McLean advanced the suggestion that the maximum surtax be cut to 20 per cent, a sales tax of one-half of 1 per cent be imposed, taxes on luxuries of 5 per cent be made, and issuance of tax-exempt securities be prohibited.

Inspection of Tax Returns.

An eight-hour session yesterday filled with rapid developments disposed of all except the "fighting provisions of the bill" as Chairman Smoot charactedized the income, corporation and estate tax schedules. The Democrats have agreed in party conferences to make an almost united stand for changes in all of these provisions.

A Republican insurgent-Democratic coalition appeared for the first time in the revenue bill consideration, resulting in the opening of tax returns to public inspection. Thirty-two Democrats joined in the support of the proposal, which was made by Senator Norris (Rep.) Nebraska, and carried, 48 to 27.

The House had voted to open these returns to inspection by certain Congressional committees, and the Senate Finance Committee had approved this provision, with the addition of power to the committees to make public "any relevant or useful information" obtained from the returns.

DISRESPECT FOR LAW DISCUSSED BY MILLER

Remedy Honest and Fearless Administration, Candidate for Governorship Says.

Victor J. Miller, former member of the Police Board, who recently announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor, declared last night in an address before the St. John Kanty Society at the Western Rowing Club that disrespect for constituted authority and the violation of legal and moral laws make up the most serious problem confronting the State and nation.

He asserted vice and crime were increasing out of all proportion to population, and cited figures to show that while in the last 14 years the population of four of our largest cities had increased only 31 per cent, murder had increased 271 per cent, manslaughter 256 per cent; assault 307, robbery 103 and bigamy 83. Law violations involving liquor had increased to an even greater degree, he said. The resultant loss in money he placed at $5,000,000,000 a year.

Miller, who was removed from the Police Board by Gov. Hyde, after first being deposed as the board's head, following his failture to produce definite evidence supporting his charges of immorality in Soldan High School, declared the problem could be solved by "an honest, fearless administration of the criminal laws of our State and nation." Then he added:

"I undertook when I was sworn in as a Police Commissioner to live up literally to the oath of my office. Whether or not I discharged my duties is a matter for the citizenship of this State to decide. Although I was interrupted in my fight against crime, vice and corruption, I have not lost one bit of my faith in the absolute necessity that something must be done to correct the growing lawlessness. And knowing full well that the Governor of the State of Missouri has been designated by law and Constitution as the executor of our laws, I have concluded to offer myself to the voters of the Republican party as their candidate for this office."

St. John Kanty Society is a Catholic organization that has for its purpose the physical, mental and moral well-being of the boys and young men of the Catholic faith. Joseph Barczak, president of the organization, had charge of the meeting. Alexander J. Filipiak was toastmaster.

Players to Meet May 15.

The annual meeting of the Players will be held at the Artists' Guild on the evening of May 15, and a board of directors for the coming year will be elected. Afterward "The Dover Road," a comedy by A. A. Milne, will be presented under the direction of William G. Carson.

TWO MEN HELD AS RESULT OF THEFTS OF EXPRESS PACKAGES

Messenger Admits He Changed Tags and Had Them Delivered to Merchant.

Harlan Oursler, express messenger, isn't an ordinary thief. There was a certain thrill, he said, in robbing the express company by replacing tags on small shipments so that the express company's drivers would take them wherever he wanted them to go.

Occasionally it would be a case of eggs, then a radio set, or a phonograph, which would be in Oursler's car. He would attach a tag addressed to his friend, Morris Cohen, haberdasher at 1233 Chouteau avenue, who [illegible] stuff for him or pay him for it in a day or so.

But the express company has special agents who look into such things. It went on for a year, but yesterday the agents, traveling through drivers, found their way to Cohen's store. There they found empty egg cases and learned that Cohen had bought six cases of chickens from Oursler and sold them to a Union Market merchant.

Oursler confessed when confronted with the evidence. He also produced a stolen radio set which a friend was putting up at Oursler's home at 1656 South Spring avenue.

"I haven't made more than $100 out of the whole business," Oursler told a reporter. "But I thought it was a lot of fun." Warrants were issued against both Oursler and Cohen.

MISSOURI ATHLETES LOSE BY 3 POINT

Teams in Nip-and-Tu Struggle Throughout a Result Is in Doubt Up the Relay Race.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 3.—In dual track meet on Rollins Fi here this afternoon, the squad fr Washington University defeated Missouri University, 60 to 57. meet was nip and tuck right do to the final event. Coach Rid men pulled out a victory by w ning the relay race, the final ev on the program.

Washington made a clean swe in three events, the 100-yard da the 220-yard and 20-yard hurdl Missouri walked away with the tw mile run, 880-yard run, disc throw and the shot put. The M souri weight man, Doss Richer hurled the discus 128 feet 1 inches, for first place. In the rec Penn relay games he won discus throw with 140 feet.

Blanchard, the Washington U versity hurdler, was high point in the meet. He took first in 100-yard dash, 120 high hurd and the broad jump, for a total 15 points. Richerson of Misso was second with 10 points.

Relay Race Deciding Event.

The relay race was the feature the meet. Johnson, lead-off m for Missouri made a very good st and Smith and Newton, the n two men, kept the Tigers ahe Willman of Washington, runni third, gained slightly on New and just a short distance behind the end of the third lap. Bond, Missouri sprinter, took the lead a held it for two-thirds of the L Bier, running fourth for Washi ton, gradually gained on Bond forged ahead of him in the hundred years. The Piker star won the relay an enabled his te to win the dual meet, as Misso was leading, 57—55, before t event.

The result of the pole vault somewhat surprising. Mitchell, Washington vaulter, was coun as a sure first in this event. T Donahue, the Missouri entra cleared the bar at 12 feet a Mitchell had made the height. bar was then raised six inches rather unusual distance at height. Both men failed to cl it at 12 feet 6 inches, and tied first place.

PIKER TRACK MEN DEFEAT TIGERS; BROWNS WIN 4TH STRAIGHT

Blanchard Winner of Four Events

Washington Crack Finishes First in Both Hurdles, the Century Dash and the Broad Jump.

MISSOURI ATHLETES LOSE BY 3 POINTS

Teams in Nip-and-Tuck Struggle Throughout and Result Is in Doubt Up to the Relay Race.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 3.—In a dual track meet on Rollins Field here this afternoon, the squad from Washington University defeated the Missouri University, 60 to 57. The meet was nip and tuck right down to the final event. Coach Rider's men pulled out a victory by winning the relay race, the final event on the program.

Washington made a clean sweep in three events, the 100-yard dash, the 220-yard and 20-yard hurdles. Missouri walked away with the two-mile run, 880-yard run, discus throw and the shot put. The Missouri weight man, Doss Richerson, hurled the discus 138 feet 11¾ inches, for first place. In the recent Penn relay games he won the discus throw with 140 feet.

Blanchard, the Washington University hurdler, was high point man in the meet. He took first in the 100-yard dash, 120 high hurdles and the broad jump, for a total of 15 points. Richerson of Missouri was second with 10 points.

Relay Race Deciding Event.

The relay race was the feature of the meet. Johnson, lead-off man for Missouri made a very good start and Smith and Newton, the next two men, kept the Tigers ahead. Willman of Washington, running third, gained slightly on Newton and just a short distance behind at the end of the third lap. Bond, the Missouri sprinter, took the lead and held it for two-thirds of the lap. Bier, running fourth for Washington, gradually gained on Bond and forged ahead of him in the last hundred years. The Piker star thus won the relay an enabled his team to win the dual meet, as Missouri was leading, 57—55, before this event.

The result of the pole vault was somewhat surprising. Mitchell, the Washington vaulter, was counted as a sure first in this event. Tom Donahue, the Missouri entrant, cleared the bar at 12 feet after Mitchell had made the height. The bar was then raised six inches, a rather unusual distance at this height. Both men failed to clear it at 12 feet 6 inches, and tied for first place.

PENNSYLVANIA TEAM WINS TRIANGULAR MEET BY FOURTH OF A POINT

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 3.—University of Pennsylvania, by strength in field events in the ability of Rose, her entrant in the broad jump, to do half an inch better than Comins of Yale, after a four-man tie in the pole vault at 12 feet 6 inches, won the triangular meet with Yale and Dartmouth with 55½ points, this afternoon. Yale was a close second with 55¼ points, and Dartmouth third with 24¼ points.

The athletes from New Hampshire were left behind quickly after the track events had been settled but they were good contenders on the cinders, taking 21 points as against 22 for Pennsylvania and 22 which fell to Yale. In the field events, however, Pennsylvania was the strongest, taking 33½ points to 26½ by Yale while Dartmouth just nosed in on two events which added 2¼ points to her previous figures.

Lester Bell Hands Game To Pirates

With a Triple Play in His Hands He Muffs a Line Drive and Pittsburg Scores Three Runs in the Inning.

STONE'S PITCHING STOPS CARDINALS

Rickeymen Make Merry With Offerings of Yde and Lundgren, but Third Pirate Hurler Baffles Them.

By Herman Wecke,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 3.—The story of no Cardinal game would be complete without some athlete being the "goat." That holds true of today's 6-to-5 defeat at the hands of the Pirates. It was the third successive game donated to the Corsairs by the Rickeyless Rickeymen. The playing of the battle to start with shows that Barney Dreyfus is foolish like a fox when he has an opponent down, with the opponents' star slugger out of it.

It poured for an hour before the game and the start was delayed at least 15 minutes. It was coming down harder than ever when Umpire Hart finally sent the athletes on their way. The sun shone for a few moments in the middle innings, but it was raining again at the finish. Jupe Pluvius was trying his best to save the Cardinals from defeat and some athlete from being the "goat," but Barney Dreyfus would not have it so.

So the sad words are that Lester Bell was the unfortunate in today's game. In Pittsburg the 12,000 persons who braved the elements will tell their neighbors of the great courage exhibited by the Corsairs in overcoming a four-run lead. But from a St. Louis standpoint, all that will be talked about is a muff of a line drive by Lester Bell.

Nearly a Triple Play.

Poor Mr. Bell, who has already been unfortunate enough to do the wrong thing at the wrong time, became the "goat" in the third inning yesterday. The Pirates had two men on base as a result of singles. The hit-and-run play was on with Carson Bigbee at bat.

Bigbee hit the ball and both runners were on the move. Bigbee's effort was a line drive to short. Bell got both hands on the sphere and then droped it and the bases were full. Had Bell held onto the ball he would have had an easy triple play, as Gooch and Yde were both on the move. Turning the play would have given Bell the honor of starting two three-ply killings this season. But it was not to be so and on that one play hangs the story of the Cardinal defeat. Instead of being retired runless, the Pirates scored three runs and the four margin was cut down to one.

Encouraged by this break, the Corsairs batted Johnny Stuart rather lustily in the sixth and seventh and chalked up their third victory over the Cardinals.

Stone Stops the Cards.

The St. Louis batters had no trouble with Yde, a southpaw, and Lundgren, a right-hander, who replaced him. These hurlers worked the first four rounds and in that time the Cardinals combined nine hits. Then another south-paw, Stone, went to the hill and he stopped the Cardinals dead. In the last five rounds only two men got on base. Freigau tripled in the fifth and Holm, for Stuart, walked in the ninth. However, hits would never have been needed had the unfortunate Mr. Bell hung on to Bigbee's line drive in the third.

It was raining hard when Yde hit Blades in the ribs with a pitched ball to start the game. Douthit cut a double down the left field foul line for a double and Blades counted. Myers' single sent Douthit home and the Cardinals had two runs in the

Mad Play, Derby Candidate, Runs Second to Zev at Jamaica Track

Winner of 1923 Kentucky Classic Redeems Himself by Doing Mile and a Sixteenth in 1:44, One Second Behind Track Record.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Sam Hildreth followed up his triple of Friday by saddling three more winners for the Rancocas Stable at the Jamaica track today. He went a little further. His horses ran first and second in two races.

Sheridan, son of Sweep, began the string by winning the Hopedale purse, second on the card. Zev and Mad Play ran one, two in the King's County handicap and finally in the closing event Sazana and Superlette, well turned fillies both, ran one, two.

The Rancocas stable is exercising a monopoly of the King's County handicap. Zev, the leading money winner of all time, made it four straight. Mad Hatter won the fixture in 1921 and 1922, while Gray Lag raced to victory last leason.

Zev in Front All the Way.

Zev, beaten by St. James in the Paumonok handicap on the opening day of the season, just galloped along smoothly in front all the way and ran the mile and a sixteenth in the fast time of 1.44, only one second behind the track record established by J. S. Cosden's Snob 2d, a year ago. He breasted a strong wind part of the way and won so cleverly that it is safe to say that under more favorable conditions he would have equalled or even broke the record.

Chief interest, however, centered in the running of Mad Play, the leading candidate of the Rancocas Stable for the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby. The son of Fairplay-Madcap, which by the way is a full brother to Mad Hatter, qualified in convincing day for the two rich fixtures.

Mad Play Hard Pressed.

Fator rated him along just off the pace set by his stable companion but not without competition from Prince James and then Sunsini, to which the three-year-old was conceding seven and twenty pounds, respectively, according to the scale, kept him pretty fully extended. As a matter of fact he had a stiff battle all through the last furlong to stall off Sunsini's bold challenge, and Fator had to ride him out sharply to earn second money.

On a line through Zev, Mad Play's race did not measure up to the one run by St. James last Thursday, but it was a strikingly good performance for his first start, more particularly as it indicated clearly that he is ready to travel a distance of ground with the best. It takes a pretty good sort of a horse to give 20 pounds and a beating to Sunsini.

Still Believes in Sarazen.

Max Hirsch reported that Sarazen, beaten for the first time in his racing career on Friday when he ran second to Bracadale, cooled out well after the race and was sprightly and full of life today, after cleaning up the last whisp of hay. He had no excuses to make for the defeat, but has lost no confidence, saying:

"He will be just the same nice

Pruett Stops Rally; Williams' Fifth Hit Beats Detroit, 6 to 5

Slugger's Collection of Safeties Includes Home Run and Double—Bayne Hurls Effectively Until Seventh Inning.

By Dent McSkimming,

It is so long since Hubert Pruett has started a game as the Browns pitcher that fans have begun to ask, "What has become of the boy who used to tie Babe Ruth in knots?" Pruett made his appearance at a critical moment in yesterday's ball game, coming to the relief of Billy Bayne in the seventh inning, and he held the Detroit Tigers scoreless for the balance of the game, enabling the Browns to win their fourth straight game, 6 to 5.

Pruett has started only one game this season. He is being reserved for relief pitching and in this role he has won two games, beating Chicago and Detroit.

In the two games that he has won as a relief pitcher Pruett yielded only four hits and no runs in seven innings.

And so, when Billy Bayne went wild in the seventh, walking two men and giving two safe hits and three runs, tieing the score, Manager Sisler called in his best bet, Pruett, and the Tigers were retired without scoring any more runs.

Williams Get Five Hits.

Ellerbe's line single to center, Sisler's sacrifice and Kenny Williams' single, his fifth hit of the day, brought in the winning run in the ninth inning.

The victory gave the Browns a record of five victories out of their last six games and brings them up into a tie for fifth place.

Kenneth Williams' hitting, the outstanding feature of the Browns' string of victories, was very largely responsible for the triumph over Ty Cobb's Tigers. Kenny hit the ball into the bleachers for a home run in the first, scoring Sisler, who had singled, and he scored a run in the third on a safe bunt and McManus' double.

His single in the ninth capped a perfect day at bat, and supplied the vital punch.

Ty Cobb Does His Stuff.

The Browns were in the lead, apparent winners, in the seventh. They had scored five runs on good sound hitting, and the Tigers had counted only two runs, both on home runs, by Harry Heilmann. Bayne had breezed along without any apparent difficulty, giving Detroit only four hits in six innings. There was not a cloud on the horizon.

Then up jumped Tyrus Cobb. He took his place in the first base coaching box. Rushed some pitchers down to the bull pen. Haney was sent in to bat for Jones. Manush stood close by waving three big bats. The Tigers were staging a great big rally on expectations—and Ty Cobb's great store of enthusiasm.

Billy Bayne became excited about it. He couldn't get the ball over the plate and he walked Haney. Then Woodall hit a single to left. Manush batted for the pitcher, and in spite of the fact that he is a left-hand batter, he put Bayne on the defensive and worried him out of a base on balls, filling the bases, all on Cobb's great enthusiasm and his penchant for getting a pitcher's goat.

Pruett to the Rescue.

Blue hit to McManus for a force-out at second, but Gerber tossed the ball away in trying for a double play. Two runs scored and another came in when Cobb doubled. That was enough for Bayne. Sisler brought in Pruett with the score tied and Cobb on second. Fothergill beat out a grounder to Gerber and, with two on base and only one out, it seemed that the rally might go on forever. But Heilman, most dangerous of the Detroit batters, swung lustily and missed a couple of Pruett's curves before sending a grounder to McManus, who started a double play.

Earl Whitehill became the Tigers' pitcher in the Brownie seventh and the game became a duel between curve ball left-handers with the odds in favor of Pruett because of his greater experience. Then, in the ninth, Ellerbe and Williams broke up the game.

Final of Series Today.

The final game of the series will be played this afternoon with Vangilder and Dauss the probable pitchers. Dauss held the Browns to three hits in a game at Detroit recently. That was before Williams returned to the lineup.

Immediately after the game the Browns depart on a long road trip.

Bill Jacobson gathered in six flies in the outfield and one of them was especially difficult. He came in fast for a shoestring catch of Cobb's liw liner in the fifth inning with two men on base.

"Dutch" Schliebner worked out at first base yesterday for the first time since the team came back from the training camp. He has been troubled with an injured foot.

Urban Shocker was in the "bull pen" and warmed up with Vangilder, Pruett and the other pitchers.

Manufacturers' League.

The Triple A team of the Manufacturers' League defeated the Wabash Club by a 13 to 12 score in a 10-inning game. Poor fielding was the cause of the Wabash team's defeat. The Puritans hitted Skillington and Stanze hard to score a 17 to 4 victory over the Rock Islands. The Puritans played a perfect game in the field. The Monards team defeated the Fishers outfit by a 9 to 6 score. The Rensdt team scored one run in each of the first three innings and five runs in the fourth clinched the victory. In the other game the Liberty-Central team defeated the Highlights by an 8 to 6 score. Two runs in the eighth inning gave the Liberty team the game.

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Big Punch.

WHEN guessing the finish of our Browns and Cardinals, or any other team, there are only two factors to be considered—punch and pitching. Regardless of the performance of these clubs to date there is reason to believe at this time that, considering the two features mentioned, both clubs will finish in the first division. How much better they may do rests entirely on the laps of the gods.

Both clubs have fifty per cent of the requirements—punch. The Cardinals have been leading the National League in club batting and have two powerful individual factors in Bottomley and Hornsby. The Browns are batting right on the heels of the leaders of the American League and have the best balanced batting order in the organization. This does not overlook the Yankees, "Murderers' Row." From end to end the Browns are a forceful attacking team.

One Pitcher Needed.

THE punch alone makes it certain both local clubs will prosper and that both will be colorful factors unless accidents cut them down. But besides this there still lives the hope that the pitching staffs of both clubs may rise to greater heights than in the past two years. Never mind the details—both staffs have improved. This means a battle for a higher place than fourth, on the part of both local clubs ere the dog days come.

The Cardinals have little opposition from the second division teams. New York, Cincinnati and Pittsburg are the class and the rest nowhere, except possibly Brooklyn. One more nine-inning regular pitcher would give the Cardinals a right to look any rival in the eye.

For the Browns, they will need Shocker, Danforth and Vanglider at their best and assistance from the second-string men to have real pennant hopes; but nothing Cleveland or Detroit has shown here need worry Sisler and his men.

One more sterling pitcher for either team might break the New York pennant monopoly next fall.

More About Cobb.

COBB'S playing here, while not quite up to his best efforts of other days, has been such as to arouse the attention and appreciation of fans.

One of the most vivid recollections of Cobb still held here by the old-timers relates to the advent to this city of Catcher Lou Criger at the time when Tyrus was scorching the base lines and focusing the attention of the baseball world.

Lou Criger had just come to St. Louis from Boston and, in the few weeks preceding the season, had given out a story to a Post-Dispatch feature writer as to how he would stop Cobb. Criger explained at some length that it only required a first-class catcher to stop Cobb and he (Criger) was the boy to do it.

Criger first encountered Cobb at Detroit. If memory serves Cobb in the very first game, reached first, stole second and third in one instance and then stole home on another occasion, in the same game.

That was the last straw. Criger never heard the last of his boast that he would "stop Cobb" and it was really the beginning of the end of the once great receiver.

To this day no catcher boasts that he is going to stop Cobb, old and slowed up as the Detroit star now is.

Skimming the Cream.

A BILL introduced again at a recent session of the Board of Aldermen provides for a fixed charge to play golf over the municipal course. Such a charge exists in almost every large city of the country. But it will meet opposition from golfers here unless one feature of it is changed.

This is a provision that ALL the revenue is to go into the general treasury of the city, with no assurance that any part of it will be added to the now inadequate appropriation for the maintenance of the links.

Golfers would support such an ordinance if the returns were applied to keeping up the course, at present only partially maintained by the city.

As the golf course privileges already contribute about half the cost of course maintainence, golf becomes the only city recreation here that is not a total charge on the public pocketbook. Its followers, therefore, are almost indignant at the prospect of being assessed a charge from which they will derive no benefit, where other pastimes escape a charge.

Park Club Gives $8000.

THE Forest Park Golf Club in three years has contributed over $8000 toward keeping up the public links. When the city treasury ran dry, a few seasons ago, the Forest Park Golf Club course came to the rescue. It even had to buy sand for the tee boxes!

About 1500 members of this organization would gladly pay the $10 annual fee asked if the money were to be added to the fund for maintaining the links in better shape.

But they are opposed to being forced to contribute toward the city's general purse, when all other sports are a total and complete financial loss to the city. As it stands today municipal golf already more than pays half of its own way.

Two Sides to the Shield.

BILL TILDEN'S supporters have rallied gamely and are beating the tom-toms loudly in his favor. There are others who take another and not so friendly view of Tilden's sportsmanship. Here is what one Eastern critic publishes:

"Tilden has refused to defend the tennis prestige of his country, but is ready to defend his personal prestige as tennis champion."

Which is swatting the nail right on the cupola, for Tilden has resigned from the Olympic and Davis Cup teams but has said he would defend his clay court and national championships.

ATHLETICS DROP FINAL TO FOHL'S TEAM, 9-6

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, May 3.—Connie Mack's Athletics dropped their fifth straight game when the Boston Red Sox took the third straight contest from the home club by the score of 9 to 6.

Mack used four pitchers, Ogden, Gray, Rommel and Walberg, in an unsuccessful attempt to stop the slugging of the visitors.

Bill Piercy was on the mound for the Sox and for eight innings he had the Athletics eating out of his hand. In the ninth frame, after his club had counted five markers, he eased up and the Athletics staged a rally which netted them three runs before Jack Quinn came to his rescue and stopped the attack.

Cleveland Trims Yeatman; Hobbs Hurls 3-Hit Game

South Side Pitcher Strikes Out 15 Men—McKinley Trounces Soldan, 13—6.

The pitching of Gene Hobbs and the perfect support given him by his teammates gave Cleveland High a 6—2 verdict over Yeatman at High School Field yesterday afternoon and resulted in a three-cornered tie for first place. In the opening game, McKinley sluggers found Hemker and Beckett for 15 safeties, to win from the Soldan team, 13—6.

The Cleveland victory came as a surprise, as comparative scores made Yeatman the favorite. Fenenga's nine played an errorless game and bunched their hits to good advantage while Hobbs was holding Yeatman to three scattered hits and fanning 15 men.

Engler was unable to puzzle the Fenenga hitters and several costly miscues by his mates contributed to his downfall. A last attempt at a rally was made in the ninth inning when Coach Hill sent in two pinch hitters, but they were unable also to solve Hobbs' curves.

McKinley, Cleveland and Yeatman are now tied for first place, each having two victories credit and one defeat.

The curtain raiser between McKinley and Soldan developed into a batting practice for the South Siders, who made 15 hits and 13 runs. McKinley managed to score in every inning but the last two and was aided in running up the large score by several errors by White's team. Hemker started for Soldan but was hit hard and was relieved by Beckett, who was equally unsuccessful.

Lester Bauer, Augie Heil's understudy, pitched a fair game, yielding but five hits to the Soldan team.

Yesterday's defeat insured Soldan a permanent cellar berth, as the West Enders have bowed to every other team in the league.

Yeatman High meets Soldan next week and Cleveland plays McKinley.

ERROR BY LESTER BELL ENABLES PIRATES TO BEAT CARDINALS AGAIN

first. Two more in the third on Douthit's double, Myers' single and Bell's triple.

Everything Goes Wrong.

And then the Pirates' third. Gooch and Yde singled. Then came Bigbee's liner, which made Bell the "goat" for the day. Carey forced Bigbee and Gooch scored. Then Carey stole and when Gonzales was given an error when Toporcer muffed his throw, Yde scored and carey reached third. Traynor's long fly put Carey across with the third unearned tally of the inning.

Lundgren was on the hill for the Pirates in the fourth. Gonzales greeted him with a double and the Cuban scored when Flack, hitting for Douthit, singled sharply to center. That was the end of the scoring for the Cardinals.

Not so with the Pirates. In the sixth, Barnhart tripled and Grimm sent him home with a single. Bigbee opened the seventh with a single. Stuart helped him to second with a balk. Carey singled and Bigbee tallied. Freigau made a sensational stop of Traynor's smash down the foul line and threw him out. Barnhart, however, singled and Carey came across with what proved to be the winning run.

Tomorrow, the Rickeymen end their disastrous road trip when they play the Cubs in Chicago. Allan Sothoron, the veteran, who lost a tough game to the Bruins earlier on the trip, is due to pitch the battle.

Max Marston Tells of Trip to England to Defend Walker Cup

National Amateur Champion and Other American Golfers Found Unlimited Hospitality Wherever They Went in British Isles—Ouimet Won St. George's Vase.

BY MAX MARSTON.
National Amateur Golf Champion.
(Copyright, 1924.)

Although an American did not win the British amateur championship in 1923 complete and well-earned triumph was scored both in the international Walker cup matches and the celebrated St. George's vase. The last named was the only tournament outside of the championship in which the members of the American team competed while abroad.

The team sailed on the Mauretainia on April 17, experiencing one of the roughest voyages that the Mauretania has ever had. We finally landed at Southampton on April 23.

We found a good many of our old friends there to welcome us, including Robert Harris, captain of the British team; Cyril Tolley and A. C. M. Croome, who is considered one of the best writers of sports in England.

We arrived in London late in the afternoon. We made our headquarters there until leaving for Scotland for the international matches.

Bothered by Sea-Legs.

The next morning the team motored to Walton Heath, where we had our first practice, and attempted to lose our sea-legs, which, however, stayed with us for several days after we landed. The next two days' practice was divided between Sunningdale and Woking.

At all these clubs we found unlimited hospitality awaiting us, and greatly enjoyed our golf experience in England. The following day, April 28, we took an early train for Rye, a distance of about 70 miles from London, where we were guests over the week-end of the Oxford and Cambridge Golfing Society. There we played against them in our first official match. Most of the leading players in England belong to this society, including Roger Wethered, the present champion, and Ernest Holderness, who held the title at that time.

Four-ball matches were played in the morning and two-ball foursomes in the afternoon. Strange to say, the British won the American style of play, namely, the four-ball foursome, and the Americans won the British style, which is the two-ball foursome.

Ideal Entertainment.

The match resulted in a tie, and that evening we were entertained at dinner at the Dormy House, which proved to be a most sociable evening.

A great honor was conferred upon Mr. J. F. Byers, president of the United States Golf Association, who accompanied t he team abroad, when the Oxford and Cambridge Society elected him to honorary membership.

Our next trip was to Deal, where the British championship was scheduled to be played, and after a few rounds over the Deal course the entire team entered the St. George's Cup tournament, which was held at Sandwich, adjoining the Deal course. Our first victory came in this tournament, where Francis Ouimet proved to be the winner, after a play-off with Dr. O. P. Willing, another American who had tied with Ouimet for first place.

Match Becomes Intense.

Our captain, Robert Gardner finished but one stroke behind them. A missed putt on the last green prevented him from entering in a triple tie with Ouimet and Willing. Gardner played beautiful golf throughout.

Although he went out in 36 in his first round, which was 1 under par, with any luck on the greens he would have been out in 31, as he missed five putts all of which were under five feet. The weather conditions were ideal for scoring. In fact, it was the only real golf weather we had during our trip. Ouimet, in registering his victory, had the honor of being the first golfer other than a Britisher to win the famous St. George's vase since its inception in 1888.

CHICAGO LOSES SECOND TO REDS BY 7-3 SCORE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, May 3. — Cincinnati tightened its grip on second place today, beating the Cubs, 7 to 3, and taking the series, two games out of three.

Killefer's men collected 11 hits off Donohue, but were unable to bunch them effectively, while the Reds pounded Keen from the slab in the seventh, after making 12 hits. They added five more wallops and four runs off Bush in the last two sessions.

Leo Hartnett hammered out his fifth homer of the season in the ninth, counting Heathcote ahead of him. Daubert starred for the Reds with a double, three singles and pasts in five times up.

BRAVES BEAT GIANTS IN HARD-FOUGHT GAME, 2-1

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, May 3.—The Braves finally defeated the Giants this afternoon. The score was 2 to 1 and the finale was highly dramatic. With one out in the ninth Cunningham, last year a McGraw worker, tripled to the left field corner. Ryan then purposely walked McInnis and Stengel, filling the bases and relying on a double play to retire the side. The count went to 2-2 on Padgett, who then sent a sacrifice fly to Meusel in left, Cunningham's desperate slide just bringing in the winning run. Stryker held the titlists to four hits.

Principia Team Finishes Third in State Track Meet

eltret First in 100-Yard and 220-Yard Dashes—Clarke Wins Broad Jump.

pecial to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 3.—Principia Academy's track team took third place in the twenty-first annual State meet on Rollins Field this afternoon. Despite the brilliant performances of Eddie Peltret in the dash events and Capt. Bert Clark in the broad jump, the Academy athletes were unable to cope with the well-balanced team from Kemper Military Academy. Kemper scored 60 points and Wentworth M. A. 42 points. Principia scored 24 points.

Peltret had no difficulty taking first place in both the 100 and 220 yard dash events. He ran the 100 in 10½ seconds and the 220 in 22 7-10 seconds. This was good time against a fairly strong head wind.

Principia was handicapped in the high jump and shot put by the absence of Marshall and Buettner. Berninger failed to qualify in the javelin, which was a surprise. In the half-mile relay race Principia took the lead but Stitt, running third, fell behind and Peltret was unable to make up the distance.

Lambert Runs Fine Race.

Lambert of Kemper ran an excellent race in the 880-yard event. He broke his own record for Division 3. His time was 2 minutes 2 2-10 seconds. Potts, the Joplin star, won the individual point score in all three divisions with 25 points. He captured four firsts, one second place and a third.

The Liberty (Mo.) High School carried off first honors in Division No. 1. Joplin High was second with the 25 points scored by Potts. Kirkwood High took fifth in this division. Barnes of New Ark, Mo., equaled the high-jump record in this division with a leap of 5 feet 10 inches.

Keithley Breaks Record.

Another State record was broken in Division 2 when Keithley of Nevada, Mo., negotiated the 440-yard dash in 52 2-10 seconds. This enabled his team to finish third.

The summaries:

880-YARD RUN—Division 3: Won by Lambert, Kemper; second, Watson, Wentworth; third, Chubb, Wentworth; fourth, Berninger, Principia. Time, 2m 3.2s.

120-YARD HIGH HURDLES (Division 1)—Endacott, Liberty, first; Austin, Mt. Vernon, second; Barnes, Newark, third; Walsh, Kirkwood, fourth. Time, 17.3s.

100-YARD DASH (Division 1)—Wilcox, Liberty, first; Johnson, Slater, second; Wilhite, Salisbury, third; Powell, Kirkwood, fourth. Time, 10.4s.

100-YARD DASH (Division 3)—Peltret Principia, first; Taubman, Wentworth, second; Sparks, Kemper, third; Clark, Principia, fourth. Time, 10.5s.

220-YARD DASH (Division III)—Won by Peltret, Principia; second, Taubman, Wentworth; third, Stark, Principia; fourth, Goodman, Wentworth. Time, 22.7 seconds.

220-YARD LOW HURDLES (Division 3)—Won by George, Kemper; second, Sparks, Kemper; third, Todd, Wentworth; Richerson, Principia. Time, 26 seconds.

220-YARD DASH (Division 1)—Won by Wilcox, Liberty; second, Powell, Kirkwood; third, Johnson, Slater; fourth, Sheets, Macon. Time, 22.5 seconds.

KANSAS CITY SCHOOL WINS AT COLUMBIA

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 3. — State scholastic track and field championships in the annual University of Missouri meet here today went to Liberty, among the smaller high schools, and Kansas City Northeast in the larger class.

In Division 1 Liberty scored 30 points, Higginsville 17, Mendon 14, Mt. Vernon 13 and Kirkwood 10, while other schools trailed behind. Northeast's victory in Division 2 was gained with a 40-point total against 25 for Joplin, 24 for Kansas City Westport, 22 for Nevada and 11 for Kansas City Central, with the other contesting teams scoring scattering points.

Potts of Joplin was the star of the meet. Competing alone for Joplin, he was first in four events, second in one and third in one, with a total of 25. Henley of Northeast, George of Kemper, Wilcox of Liberty and Bunker of Nevada were among the other outstanding athletes.

YANKS BEAT SENATORS WHEN PIPP HITS HOMER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Pipp's home run with Meusel on first in the eighth inning won the last game of the series for the Yankees from the Senators here today, after the visitors had driven Jones from the box in the seventh with three straight hits and a sacrifice which, with a wild pitch, gave them three runs. The batting and fielding of Pipp and the fielding of Scott were features. The attendance was 20,000 in spite of threatening weather.

Yale Crew Starts 1924 Season With Smashing Victory

Blue Defeats Pennsylvania and Columbia in Varsity and Freshmen Races.

CREDIT LEADER'S SYSTEM

Former Washington Coach Has Raised Eli Rowing to Highest Plane.

By the Associated Press.

DERBY, Conn., May 3.—Displaying the same irresistible power and precision that marked its conquering performances of last year, Yale's home-bred, American-coached varsity crew inaugurated the Blue's 1924 rowing campaign today with a smashing victory over Pennsylvania and Columbia in the feature race of the triangular regatta on the Housatonic River.

Stroked brilliantly by Al Lindley young Minneapolis oarsman, who was the hero of the Blue's unbroken string of triumphs last season, Yale swept across the finish line five and a half lengths ahead of a game Pennsylvania crew after leading virtually from the start. Columbia, outclassed, was two lengths back of the Quakers.

Penn Junior Eight Wins.

There was some glory for Pennsylvania, however, and its new coaching combination of Joe Wright and Jim Rice, former Columbia mentor, for the Quaker junior varsity eight conquered Yale by a bare quarter of a length in the most thrilling race of the afternoon, a gripping battle from start to finish, that was not decided until the Red and Blue tipped oars shoved their shell into the lead with a final desperate effort in the last hundred yards.

Columbia Makes Dismal Showing.

The victory spoiled Yale's bid for a clean sweep, for the Eli yearlings came through impressively in the freshman race, opening event, defeating Pennsylvania by a length and a half. Columbia, a somewhat drab picture throughout the regatta, finished last in the freshman race by a length and a quarter, and in the junior varsity event trailed the Eli crew by three lengths.

All the races were over a mile and a half course.

It was another feather in the cap of Ed Leader, youthful Eli coach, who, fresh from a victorious record at the University of Washington, supplanted Yale's former English-coached system last year and in a single season lifted the Blue to among the most brilliant heights it has ever known.

Blue in Fine Form.

There was no denying the smoothness, the long-sweeping Yale stroke that diminished space with amazing swiftness today. Lindley set out with a terrific pace from the start and dispelled all doubt as to the outcome before half the distance had been covered. Pennsylvania tried gallantly to check the ever-widening gap that separated the Quakers from the Blue shell, but it was a futile chase.

Pennsylvania got a slight jump at the start, but was quickly overhauled by Yale, whose frictionless 36-to-the-minute beat shoved the Blue shell in front by a half length at the quarter-mile mark. At the half-mile, Yale added nearly a length, and then with a spurt that killed off all opposition, increased her lead to three full lengths at the three-quarter mile mark.

Carlinville High Wins Track Meet

School Scores 25 Points in Annual Carnival Held by McKendree College.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEBANON, Ill., May 3.—Carlinville High School captured the seventh annual interscholastic field and track meet held here today under the auspices of McKendree College. Carlinville scored a total of 25 points. East St. Louis and Murphysboro were tied for second place with 11 points each. Phelps of Carlinville and Jarboe of Murphysboro were tied for individual honors with 10 points each.

Egelhoff of Jerseyville gave a stellar performance in the javelin throw, setting a new record for the meet by hurdling the weapon 160 feet, eight inches. Jarboe of Murphysboro equalled the 100-yard dash record by running the distance in 10 seconds, and Herrin's five-mile relay team established a new time with 3:36-2-10.

Ray Goode, a freshman at McKendree and a member of the track team, gave an exhibition of javelin throwing in which he tossed the javelin 190 feet, 2 inches. He will try out for the Olympic team.

Kansas Crushes Missouri, 11 to 1

Tigers Make It Easy for the Jayhawkers by Turning Seven Errors.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 3.—The Missouri baseball team took another error-infested tumble before Kansas here this afternoon, making seven misplays, while the Jayhawkers chalked up 13 hits and 11 runs off three Tiger pitchers. Kansas scored in every inning except the second and eighth, while the Bengals were able to put across a single counter in the fifth.

Following yesterday's defeat Coach Brewer rearranged his infield, bringing Bishop and Jordan into the infield, but the three errors apiece which they annexed showed they were little improvement. Shifts in batterymen and use of pinch-hitters also failed to turn a victory.

KANSAS WINS DUAL MEET FROM AGGIES, 62 TO 50

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MANHATTAN, Kan., May 3.—Although first places were evenly divided between Kansas University and the Aggies in the annual dual track meet here today, the visitors took nine seconds to five for the Aggies, winning the contest by the score of 62 to 50.

The meet formally dedicated the new oval completed recently. Graham of Kansas State University was high point man, taking first place in three events for a total of 15. Kimport and Erwin of the Aggies tied for second individual honors with two firsts apiece. Due to the newness of the track, which needed a packing rain to put it in first-class condition, the marks in the track events were somewhat under expectation.

Concordia Nine Overcomes Lead To Beat Pikers

Washington's Star Pitcher Retires to Save Arm for Kansas and Opponents Score 6 Runs.

Concordia Seminary scored six runs in the last three innings to defeat Washington University by a 6—3 score in yesterday's game at Francis Field. The Pikers apparently had the game clinched, until timely bingles, Piker errors and two steals of home won the game for the South Side sluggers.

Levy pitched the first five innings for Washington and held the Concordians to three singles. He struck out five batters and not a man reached second. In the meantime, the Pikers were hitting Lang, Concordia pitcher, and amassed a three-run lead.

Levy was removed from the box in the sixth so as to be able to pitch for Washington in the Kansas game tomorrow, and Heist relieved him. Heist lost his own game by allowing two runners to steal home on his windup and by his failure to field bunts.

Mehl, who went in to pitch for Concordia at the start of the sixth, held the Pikers hitless for the four innings he worked.

The Pikers will open a two-game series with the University of Kansas team at Francis Field tomorrow.

14 Bouts Planned For Outdoor Show

Boxers Picked for A. A. U. Championships Invited to Appear at Battery Arena.

Four special bouts and at least 10 preliminary attractions are planned by the Business Men's Athletic Club for the outdoor boxing inaugural at the Battery arena next Friday night. Twenty amateur boxers have filed entries, according to Matchmaker Harry Cook, and several additional entries are assured. The tournament has been sanctioned by Verne Lacy, president of the Western A. A. U. A portion of the gate receipts will be turned over to the fund being raised by local A. A. U. officials to send a team of local boxers to the Olympic tryouts at Boston May 16 and 17.

Two of the three St. Louis boxers selected to compete in the Western A. A. U. championships at Kansas City next Wednesday night have been invited to appear in special events of the Battery card. They are Mike Sansone of the Business Men's A. C., and Eddie Reith of Tommy Brabell's boxing stable. Oliver Mohata, the third local boy on the W. A. A. U. squad, will also be offered a match if a suitable opponent can be obtained.

The Battery officials plan to book Sansone with Eddie Goldberg in a flyweight feature, while Reith is sought for a featherweight joust with either Bill Sincoff or Jackie Horner. Another special event will bring together Max Baum of Staunton, Ill., and Israel Mascowitz of St. Louis, a pair of 90-pound youngsters. Pat Powers of the Muny A. A. and Bill Johnson of Tommy Bramell's troupe are slated to mingle in a welterweight feature. The following entries have been received to date:

90-POUND CLASS—Max Baum, Staunton, Ill.; Israel Mascowitz, Business Men's A. C.

100-POUND CLASS—Eddie O'Nell, South Broadway A. C.; Tony Pirrone, unattached.

112-POUND CLASS—Buddy Redmond, Water Tower A. C.; Mike Sansone, Business Men's A. C.; Joe Sutter, Myo A. C.

118-POUND CLASS—Clarence Florance, unattached; Ted Chaffir, unattached.

125-POUND CLASS—Al Vasquez, Bill Sincoff and Jack Horner, National A. C.; Eddie Reith, unattached; Louis Terry, My A. C.; George Cubano, unattached.

135-POUND CLASS—Joe Shepard, unattached; Sam Schurman, South Broadway A. C.; Ray Milliken, unattached.

142-POUND CLASS—Pat Powers, Municipal A. A.; Bill Johnson, unattached; Benny Kessler, National A. C.

Golf at $10 a Year Will Be Dirt Cheap at Park Course if Links Are Kept in Condition

Forest Park Greens Will Compare With Best in the District When They Are Opened This Spring—Golfers Welcome Ordinance, but Hope Dollars Are Used for Golf Purposes.

By J. Roy Stockton.

What effect will playing fees have on the Municipal golf course in Forest Park? Will the revenue enable the city to keep the links in the condition, which with its natural topographical beauty will make it one of the best courses in the country? Or will the money taken in be thrown into the city treasury and resist efforts to divert it back to improving and keeping up the course? What effect will the playing fees ordinance have on the Forest Park Golf Club?

St. Louis golfers are asking many questions about the golf situation at the park links and though there is some opposition to the ordinance which provides for a $10 a year or 50 cents a game fee, the golfing public generally is eager to see the experiment tried.

The public course will open its regular greens in a week or two and when the course is thrown open golfers will see greens which for a time at least will compare favorably with any in the district. The Park Department has proved that it can build fine greens at Forest Park. No. 9 ranks with thebest in the district and the fine spring weather has been fine for the turf. There are only one or two at the public course which did not appear to be in excellent condition on a tour of inspection Friday afternoon. In fact the course generally impresses players this spring as being in better condition than it ever has been. The fairways could stand a bit of rolling and cutting the rough, would speed up play by reducing the lost ball delays. It is understood that a new mower will be available this year to keep the rough lower than in the past.

Pape to Return Wednesday.

Action on the ordinance providing for playing fees awaits the return of Park Commissioner Pape from California. He is due Wednesday and the Aldermanic Committee to which the ordinance has been referred will hear Pape's views on the provision of the ordinance.

The ordinance originated in the Comptroller's office and was introduced by Alderman August H. Niederluecke, who also is chairman of the Public Welfare Committee, to which the ordinance was referred.

Comptroller Nolte said he thought the course would be made to maintain itself. In the past the course was dependent on appropriations granted to the Park Department and usually before the season was ended there were no funds. In 1923, according to Nolte, about $20,000 was spent on the course.

The ordinance in its original form calls for a $10 annual charge, or of 50 cents a round on the 18-hole course and 25 cents a round on the nine-hole course. A similar ordinance was passed in 1923, but was vetoed by Mayor Kiel, on the grounds that it was an infringement on the free recreation policy.

An Unfortunate Feature.

Provisions of the charter make it impossible to word the ordinance in such a way as to meet the wholehearted support of the city's golfers. They would like to see all the revenue from the course kept in a fund for golf and gold alone. In other cities this is the case and additional courses have been provided from time to time from the revenue from the original courses.

Paul Palmer, president of the Forest Park Golf Club, said yesterday that his organization, having previously sponsored measures to charge for play at the course, could not consistently oppose the present measure and that the majority of the club members would welcome passage of the ordinance in the hope that it would result in better conditions at the Forest Park course. He intimated that the club would favor a few changes in the ordinance to insure the use of the revenue for golf development.

Golf is about the only form of municipal recreation that brings any funds into the city treasury. The golf professional at Forest Park pays for his privilege, the locker room yields a revenue and the sale of refreshments also adds to the city's revenue. It has been estimated that golf pays the city between $10,000 and $15,000 a year, Palmer said. Baseball, tennis and soccer, the other municipal sports, have only the debit side of the ledger.

Club Should Continue.

The Forest Park Golf Club should not permit the passage of the ordinance to cause it to disband. The club has done a great deal for golf in St. Louis. In 1921 and 1922 it contributed $3000 a year to the upkeep of the course, paying laborers, buying material and meeting other bills when the city was without funds for the purpose. In 1923 there arose a controversy between the club and Park Department officials and after spending about $2000 on the course the club locked up the cash drawer. There had been several misunderstandings and the final cause of the breach was the closing of the greens by the department when the club wanted to hold its annual club tournament.

The club posted signs asking players to protect the turf and the members made efforts to persuade players to replace the turf and in other ways keep the course in the best possible condition. Then the club made it possible for 12 municipal links golfers to compete annually in the St. Louis District Golf Association tournaments. The organization held annual tourneys and did much to stimulate competitive play among the park golfers.

Club Marking Time.

President Palmer said no efforts were being made to collect membership dues this year, but that many of the old regulars were insisting on paying their $5, even in the face of the ordinance. Last year the club had 1250 members and Palmer said that the organization could be counted on to buy playing permits virtually to its total membership. That would be $12,000 toward the amount needed to keep the course in condition.

Up to June last year there had been more than 11,000 applications for free permits to play on the golf courses. The total this year probably would be 15,000 if there were no charge and there is no way of estimating accurately the number of players who would stand the $10 a year charge. The comptroller's office is said to have estimated that about 7000 golfers would pay the $10 a year or contribute regularly on the charge per round basis. If this estimate were correct the revenue would be sufficient to keep the course in excellent condition, if it could be available for golf purposes.

It is probable that before the ordinance reaches a vote in the Board of Aldermen, provisions will be made for the negro golfers, who were given exclusive use of the course last year on one morning a week. It also is probable that a clause will be inserted to exempt children from the charge or to give them certain hours for use of the course free of charge.

It's Worth $10 a Year.

Certainly if the course could be kept in as good condition as it will be when it throws open the greens this year, it will be well worth $10 a year. If the turf and greens could be kept in condition the Municipal course would not have to bow to any course in the district. For natural beauty and what the golfers call "sportiness" it can stand up with any course in the country and that is no Dutch shoemaker's opinion, but a symposium of remarks by golfers of national reputation who have stroked the Forest Park course, marveling at its natural beauty and shaking the head in pity at its scalified fairways and lumpy and dried out greens.

If the hearing before Pape can be held Wednesday the ordinance may come up for a vote Friday and at the latest it is expected that it will be referred to the Aldermen by May 16. At present it has no emergency clause, which would make it operative as soon as signed by the Mayor.

Tilden Defeats Alonzo For Middle Atlantic Single Tennis Title

PHILADELPHIA, May 3. WILLIAM T. TILDEN II, national singles tennis champion, won the Middle Atlantic States clay court singles title today by defeating Manuel Alonzo, Spanish Davis Cup star, 3-6, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4, at the Manheim Club.

Alonzo played a wonderful game, especially in the last set, but he was unable to keep up the pace. He lost the three final games of the match through his inability to cover the court. Three games in the fourth set went to deuce many times and Tilden was the ultimate winner in all of them.

Colonel Gilmore New Dark Horse In Derby Field

Brown Colt Gallops Fastest Mile Workout of Any Derby Candidate Thus Far.

EASILY BEATS STARTLE

Form on the Derby Is Becoming Sadly Muddled by 3-Year-Old Races.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Ma 3.—A new Richmond is in the field for Derby honors. Big surprises are breaking daily now among the 152 eligibles for the classic, to be run at Churchill Downs, May 17. Col. Gilmore, a brown colt owned by J. T. and W. C. Weaver, Covington turfmen, worked the fastest Derby trial of the season at the Downs.

Col. Gilmore and Startle worked together and Col. Gilmore led the Hawkins mare every step of the road. Both broke at the three-quarter pole and the clockers caught Colonel Gilmore at the quarter in :23 3-5, three eights in :35 1-5, half in :47 3-5, three quarters in 1:12 2-5, seven eights 1:26 4-5 and mile in 1:41 2-5.

This is one-fifth of a second faster than the mile made by Wise Counsellor in a trial before that colt was shipped to Baltimore. Startle could never get to the flying Derby colt throughout the trial, although she made a strong bid three-quarters of a mile out. Startles' time for the mile was 1:41 4-5. Startle is a 3-year-old. Colonel Gilmore won four of the 12 races in which he started last year. He was second three times, third one and unplaced five times. His earnings aggregated $5539.

Speed Merchants in Tryouts.

King Gorin II and Bourbon Boy, the two Derby eligibles being trained by Peter Coyne, showed rare speed in a trial at one mile. Both colts were head and head the entire distance and pulled up going strong. They were timed at a quarter in :23 3-5, half in :48 2-5, three-quarters in 1:14 3-5, mile in 1:42 2-5.

Glide, the Kentucky Derby and Oaks filly, which will fly the colors of Harned Brothers and Jones, showed a nice move for a mile when she went the quarter in 24 2-5s, half in 49 4-5s, three-quarters in 1m 15 3-5s, and mile in 1m 42 3-5s. This was nice work for Glide, as she is not a fast work filly.

Samola, another Derby and Oaks filly in this same stable, went the first quarter in 23 1-5s, half in 48 3-5s, and three-quarters in 1m 16s.

Black Gold Shows Stamina.

Black Gold was given a slow mile and an eighth today. The little colt was timed a quarter in 24 1-5s, half in 50 3-5s, three-quarters in 1m 17s, mile in 1m 45s, and mile and an eighth in 1m 59s. Black Gold appears fit enough to run to the Rocky Mountains. How fast he can go the Derby route, deponent sayeth not; but it is a good guess he will be running when some of the Derby racers will be tired and slowing up.

Bracadale Much Improved.

Bracadale, the colt which beat Sarazen the first time he ever felt the sting of defeat at Jamaica yesterday, was an ordinary kind of a youngster last year. He started twice in Kentucky in stakes won by Wise Counsellor. The Ward colt "lost him" in both races.

The first time he met Wise Counsellor in a race was at Latonia when he finished sixth, beaten 16 lengths. The next time was in the Kentucky Jockey Club stakes at Churchill Downs, run Nov. 17, when he finished seventh, beaten five lengths. The latter was the race in which Mad Play, coupled with Bracadale, as the Rancocas stable's entry, came near running Wise Counsellor down at the end of the mile. The mile in that race was run in 1m 37 2-5s, the fastest mile any 2-year-old ever ran in America.

Chilhowee in Fast Workout.

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 3.—Chilhowee, Gallagher Brothers' 3-year-old colt, was worked the fastest mile and one-eighth on record for Derby candidates during the training period. He made the distance today in the fractional time of :23; :46 2-5; 1:8 4-5; 1:31 4-5; the mile in 1:39 and the final eighth in 1:52.

FORMER PRESIDENTS OF U. S. L. T. A. RALLY TO DEFENSE OF RULING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Suggesting that the spirit of the player-writer resolution has been misinterpreted by the so-called insurgent element of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, four former presidents of the U. S. L. T. A. have written to President George Wightman of Boston in defense of the ruling.

The letter in part follows:

"In the criticism of the association's position on this question, it seems to us that the vital principle at stake has been lost sight of in the maze of personalities. The policy of the association has been, and we trust will be, that tennis must be kept an amateur game.

"Can you visualize acclaiming our national champions of the future in the knowledge that whether they have been tennis writers or not the winning of the championship means for them an easily made income of from $5000 to $10,000, or possibly $15,000 a year, if they are willing to accept it? This income depends but little on their literary ability; it is merely the money value for publicity purposes of their names at the head of a newspaper column. To a corresponding degree, the same thing will be true of less important titles and tournaments."

Derby Eligible "Whose Name Leads All the Rest"

ABU BEN ADHEM

Who is by Omar Khayyam-La Deliverance by Ajax, and has one peculiarity. He tops all eligibles, even before the Derby is run, if we rate them alphabetically. In Leigh Hunt's poem, Abu Ben Adhem's name "led all the rest," at the finish. Perhaps the son of the former Derby winner Omar Khayyam, will live up to the name "hunch" May 17. He's a good-looking horse and as a two-year-old never finished worse than fourth. He is, however, at long odds in the future betting.

Wise Counsellor Now Favorite in Betting on Derby

Defeat of Sarazen and Other Results of Past Week Cause Fluctuations.

The many developments in the racing world last week have caused Derby bettors to about face in several particulars. The defeat of Sarazen by Bracadale, the fine race of St. James' in beating Zev, Mad Play's second to Zev yesterday, the blasting of the hopes of Senator Norris, some fine workouts, notably that by Col. Gilmore and Black Gold, have tended to still further confuse the mind of the speculator.

The race is certainly the most open in the recent history of the event. It also is signalized by the class of the eligibles.

The net result of the week's news has been to cause the future book odds on Sarazen to back up, leaving Wise Counsellor first choice and St. James and Sarazen second choices at 6 to 1.

The odds on the Preakness also have been shortened with St. James still favorite at 3 to 1, and Wise Counsellor at 4 to 1; Mad Play, 8 to 1.

OLYMPIC RUGBY MATCHES BEGIN TODAY WHEN RUMANIA MEETS FRANCE

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 3.—The Olympic rugby matches will be contested in two 40-minute periods, with a 10-minute rest, instead of two halves of 45 minutes each and five minutes' intermission.

This decision was reached by the new International Rugby Federation created today. In the event of a tie score after one hour and 20 minutes of play, an extra period of 20 minutes is provided for. This will be divided into two 10-minute halves.

The France-Rumania rugby football match tomorrow will be the curtain-raiser to the 1924 Olympic games. Beginning tomorrow with the rugby competition there will be no idle week in the Olympic calendar until the "big Olympic athletic week" starts at the Colombes Stadium July 5.

Petersons Win Handicap Title

Final in Five-Man Event Fails to Disturb Leaders in City Tourney.

The Peterson team of the Peterson Scratch League clinched the five-man team honors in the city handicap tournament with the record score of 3133. The Peterson five includes T. P. Forgoy, W. Kleinburg, Ray Niedringhaus, Joe Weiss and Walter Dietz. The team, in addition to the glory, won five gold medals and $90.

The final squad of the five-man teams last night failed to disturb the leaders.

The windup in the five-man event showed that, with 61 prizes awarded for the 206 teams entered, 2833 was low score in the prize money. This is by far the best bowling ever shown in the city tournament in the past.

The two-man team and singles events will be bowled daily until the final squad takes the drives on May 13.

Bowling will start at 9 a. m. today and continue until 11 p. m. There will be 56 two-man teams and 112 singles bowled today. Secretary Jack Helbert announced the official five-man prize winners last night. The first 20 were:

Champion Chacolet's Late Rush Wins Rich Dixie Handicap

Former Selling Plater Finishes Like a Whirlwind to Beat Martingale.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 3.—Chacolet, the mare that developed from a selling plater into the winner of a $50,000 race, last fall, won the $25,000 Dixie handicap at one mile and three-sixteenths at Pimlico today. The six-year-old daughter of St. Amant-Martial Note, carrying 116 pounds, coming from far back with a whirlwind rush through the stretch, beat Martingale a neck with Revenue Agent, one of the light-weights of the race, a nose behind.

Flintstone broke his shoulder during the running of the race and was destroyed.

There have been many good races and finishes in the history of Pimlico, where racing somehow seems keener than at most tracks, but none has surpassed this Dixie, as more than 20,000 persons will testify.

Twelve horses paraded with Wilderness favorites in the betting. After a delay of three minutes Martingale, breaking from the rail position, went right to the front with Cherry Pie, Wilderness and King Solomon's Seal close up. Chacolet broke slowly and was bumped and buffeted like a football and dropped far out of it. Mack Garner was forced to take up repeatedly until she was last half way up the back stretch.

Chacolet Comes From Behind.

Garner never gave up hope, however. Working her way up on the inside, Chacolet gradually improved her position until she was sixth at the head of the stretch, but then a dozen lengths back of Martingale. Chacolet then gave such another burst of speed as won her the Kentucky Special. Running over horses she closed three strides to the leaders two and just got up. The time was 1.59-1-5.

The Dixie, which had an added value of $25,000, was worth $24,840 to the winner.

Chacolet was second choice in the betting and paid $11.50 straight; $6.40 place and $5.30 show. Martingale paid $6.50 place and $5.30 show and Revenue Agent $10.70 show.

School Records Broken.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., May 3.—Seven track records were broken today in the annual May meet of the high schools of the 27 Southeast Missouri Counties in the Cape Girardeau college district, in which 215 athletes participated. Cape Girardeau Central, with 39½ points, won the meet, with Senath second, 31; Jaconson, third with 17 and Malden fourth with 14 points.

ACTIVE FOREIGN DEMAND FOR CANADIAN WHEAT IS HELP TO AMERICAN PRICE

Winter Wheat Prospects in United States Continue Favorable—Demand for Corn and Oats Falls Off.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The wheat market developed new strength toward the close of the week ending May 3, states the United States Department of Agriculture, in its weekly grain market review. Foreign crop prospects continued favorable, but there was a material strength in the European markets, notwithstanding the large world exports. There has been a rapid consumption of the large surpluses in the principal exporting countries. Exports from Argentine for the crop year to date were about 25 per cent larger than for the corresponding period last year, while the exports from Australia have been 40 per cent larger. Canadian exports have also been materially larger, but there continues to be an active foreign demand which has had recently a decided strengthening effect upon the United States markets. Winter wheat prospects in the United States continue favorable, but wet weather has not been so favorable for the decreased acreage of spring wheat. The continued light arrivals of high-grade milling wheat in both the spring and hard winter wheat markets has created an active demand for these grades, and premiums have continued very firm. While this strength has been reflected to some extent in the prices of the lower grades, the market for them generally has been very dull because of the lack of an export and shipping demand. The flour trade continues dull and there has also been a falling off in the demand for feed. This situation will probably be reflected in the milling demand for wheat. Imports of wheat from Canada have been practically discontinued, but American exporters are said to be planning to increase the milling of Canadian wheat in bond to supply flour for their foreign trade.

The demand for corn and oats has fallen off somewhat during the week because of improved pasturage conditions and cheaper prices for mill feed. Receipts have continued fairly heavy, especially for corn, and commercial stocks have increased. Future markets have advanced slightly with wheat, but it has been increasingly difficult to maintain the premiums for the cash corn. The demand for both corn and oats to the South and Southwest has decreased, but there has been an improved local demand for oats in the Central West, and farmers in Nebraska are reported to be buying back good accounts of oats from the local elevators. There has been a very limited export demand for corn because of cheaper offerings from Argentine. Industries continued to be active buyers and, while the general demand was less active, there was no accumulation on tracks of either corn or oats at any of the markets.

The rye market advanced 1 cent to 2 cents at the principal markets during the week. Offerings were extremely light and there was a good milling demand for No. 1 and No. 2 rye. May rye at Minneapolis closed on Friday at 69¾ cents, and mills were bidding from 2¼ to 3¼ cents over this price for desirable grades of milling rye.

The barley market reacted somewhat from the firm position which it has occupied during the past few weeks. The better grades continued in good demand at fairly firm prices at both Minneapolis and Milwaukee, but the lower grades were slow. Number 3 barley was quoted at 83 to 91 cents at Milwaukee, and the May barley closed at 72¾ cents on Friday at Minneapolis.

The flax market was very firm because of the light offerings. The best cars of seed sold 13 cents over the May at Minneapolis, which advanced 5 cents during the week and closed on Friday at $2.46¾.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE.

May 3.—Grain futures ranged lower at the final session of week on the local market, profit taking in wheat being a prime factor.

In the local cash grain market soft wheat was scarce, in demand and 1c higher. Hard wheat was scarce and steady. Corn was ½c up to 1c lower. Demand was limited. Oats were steady to ½c lower. Demand was good.

Weather was favorable for the growing crop and with the Liverpool market, which closed ½d to ½d up, not responding as much as some thought in the face of our upturn Friday wheat prices eased off early. Corn also was down.

July wheat opened at $1.06¼; September wheat, $1.07⅝; July corn, 80½c, and September corn, 79¼c.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 517 cars of wheat, compared with 555 a week ago and 564 last year. Minneapolis receiving 84 cars, Duluth 15 and Winnipeg 418.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators today are 748,253 bushels of wheat, 685,912 bushels of corn, 163,251 bushels of oats. SPORTS SPECIAL

THIS EVENING

EVENING UP TRADES EASE WHEAT AT CHICAGO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Wheat had an easier tendency today. The sum and substance of the market was the fact that local longers wanted to even up over the week-end and the buying power was not sufficient to take these offerings. There was buying on the dips by some of the elevators and a little wheat was taken out of the pit by Northwest houses. The news was of no great import. Weather was ideal for the growing crop and in the Northwest and Canada seeding is progressing rapidly to make up for the delay. Milling demand for wheat was fair, with sales possible when concessions were made. Seaboard reported further business in Manitobas and also some in gulf hard winters. It was reported that some Kansas City wheat was worked to come to Chicago, but this could not be confirmed. Vessels loaded 300,000 bushels wheat today. Deliveries today were 1,339,000 bushels. Shipping sales were 41,000 bushels. Report of the failure of a big St. Paul bank caused the late break and the market closed ⅞c@1⅛c lower. May, $1.03⅝@1.03⅝; July, $1.06¼@1.06¾; September, $1.07¼@1.07⅝; December, $1.09¾.

Corn trade was exceedingly slow and the market was affected by the action of wheat. The only trade worthy of mention was the buying of May which seems to be due to account of an Eastern short. Wet weather interfered with corn planting over some of the surplus states. Shipping demand was moderate. There were 200,000 bushels reported loaded out on vessels today. Deliveries were 105,000 bushels. Shipping sales were 10,000 bushels. Market closed ⅝c@1c lower, May, 77c; July, 78½c; September, 78¼@78⅝c.

Oats followed the trend of other grains. Shipping demand was quiet. Deliveries on May contract were 17,000 bushels. Shipping sales were 45,000 bushels. Market closed ¼c lower. May, 46½c; July, 44¼c; September, 40c.

Provisions were slightly easier, being affected by the action of grain. Lard closed 7½c lower; ribs 2½c off.

Irregular Range to Cotton Prices

NEW YORK, May 3.—The selling movement which had developed in the cotton market late yesterday was resumed at the opening today. First prices were barely steady at declines of 3 to 10 points, and active months sold 11 to 19 points net lower in the early trading. July declining to 28.94c and October to 24.10c. There were reiterated reports that replanting was necessary in the Southwest, but the early weather news indicated that recent storms had been followed by generally favorable conditions. The selling here was promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables.

Rallies of 20 to 25 points from the early decline resulted from covering and trade buying, but the demand was supplied around 28.20 for July and the market eased off later under renewed liquidation. The close was barely steady, net unchanged to 15 points lower.

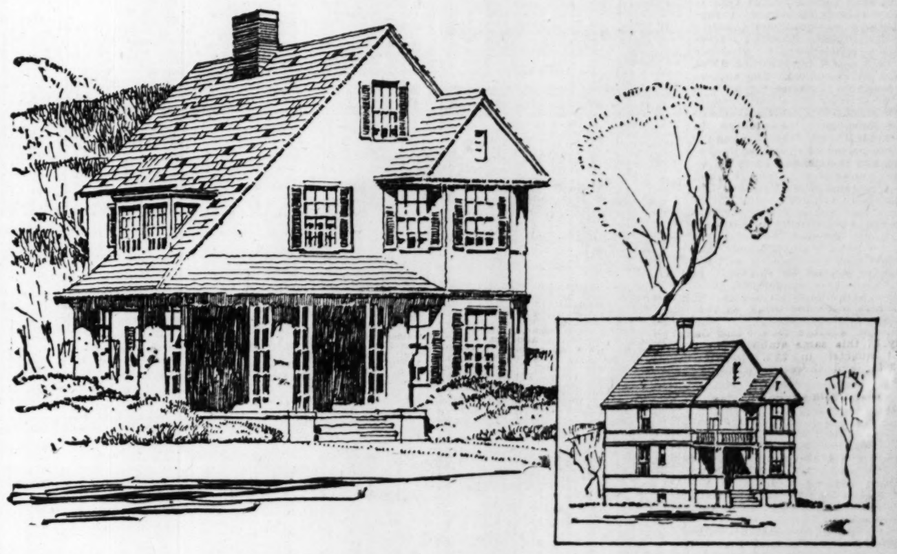
You wouldn't know the house that grandfather built—



What a difference these little changes make

Grandfather said this house he built in 1883 would last a hundred years. And undoubtedly it will—but styles of 1883 are not in style today.

We had wanted to remodel our house for years

We had thought and talked about remodeling the old house for years—but the Barrett Book, "Better Homes from Old Houses" settled the question by showing us how to do it—easily and economically. It is full of suggestions for changes we could really afford. And our local builder did all the work.

The cost was small—but see the result

We simply added the dormer window, built on a new porch and entrance and put shutters on the windows. But just see the difference. And it gave us more light and more room upstairs, too.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Nothing happened during the past week to indicate that the markets have broken out of the range of indecisive fluctuation within which they recently have been confined. It has been quite evident that the markets have been well liquidated and, in all probability, oversold. On the other hand, it has been clear that the public has refused to take an interest in the buying side. The Steel Corporations splendid first quarter earnings and its directors' declaration of an extra dividend of 50 cents left the market situation unchanged. The unexpected reduction of the Federal Reserve bank's rediscount rate led to a mild burst of short covering and a fair demonstration of bullish activity. The contrast of the response which followed the Steel Corporation's dividend action last fall was, however, striking. Sentiment in speculative quarters unquestionably was stead- ier, but the shorts were in no panic to cover and the bulls showed only a mild disposition of follow through.

"That such should be the case is not surprising or disturbing. Industry became extraordinarily active early in the year. Through its remarkable efficiency it produced more than could, for the time being at least, be consumed. The natural and desirable outcome of such a burst of activity is an early reduction in output to a level which will permit consumption to catch up. In the "typical" or "ideal" business cycle the period of expansion is prolonged and is attended by price inflation, congestion of credit and other symptoms of inefficiency. Under the more efficient conditions of the last year and a half production has speeded up quickly in response to stronger demand, but also has fallen off quickly when demand has been satisfied.

Short Buying Movements.

"We have been having, in other words, short buying movements, with production fluctuating about a relatively high level, instead of long buying movements with pronounced and prolonged swings in output. The industrial and commercial mechanism is readjusting itself quickly; the "typical" business cycle has, for the time being, disappeared. Applying this theory to the present condition, there is no reason for thinking that the readjustment is not proceeding in a satisfactory manner. Steel production is off about 20 per cent from the peak; Automobile output has been reduced perhaps 15 per cent. Sooner or later these curtailments are pretty certain to correct the situation.

"Under these circumstances the reduction in the official discount rate probably will not exercise a determining influence on the course of trade. The recession in production is not due to any shortage of credit or to its price. Neither is the Reserve bank's discount rate an influential factor in the money market under present conditions, except for its somewhat artificial connection with the rates member banks allow on deposits. Some good effect may be produced by the reduction if the unfounded prejudice against the Federal reserve system which exists in certain parts of the country is lessened.

"The reception given to the Dawes report on both sides of the Atlantic continues to be favorable.

"Something approaching midsummer dullness was the chief characteristic of all financial markets in the short session. In stocks an exciting contest, Western professional bearish interests on the one hand and pools operating for an advance in specialties on the other, developed with neither side obtaining any particular advantage. At extremely quiet first hour with advances and recessions evenly divided, was followed by considerably more activity toward the close. Declines in a few specialties were offset by gains of a point or so in others, such as the shipping shares. Most of the market leaders, including Steel, Studebaker and American Can were firm and the general market trend, if it could be said there was a trend, appeared to be upward. Bonds also were extremely quiet with a firm tone.

Greek Exchange Strong.

Narrow and featureless trading in foreign exchanges left quotations little changed on the day. The only item of interest was a further improvement in the Greek drachma, which at 2.20 cents added 10 points to its 6 point rise of the previous day. This exchange has been moving up since the repudiation of the monarchy. Sterling at $4.38¾ was 1¾ lower and French francs were down 1 point at 6.45½ cents. Other principal European currencies were mjostly a point or so higher, and actual transactions were in small volume.

A decrease of 1.5 millions in excess reserve is reported by the Clearing House. This leaves the excess reserve at $17,000,000. Loans $24,000,000 and demand deposits rose and discounts rose $34,000,000 to $4,- $67,200,000. Circulation was virtually unchanged.

HOW FINANCIAL LONDON VIEWS BUDGET PLAN

Reviewer Points Out Features That Make Appeal to Financial Interests — The Political Aspects Recounted.

Special Wireless to New York Evening Post.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of the Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post in weekly financial review says:

"The strongest criticisms of the budget probably will come from political and commercial rather than financial interests. The latter are so relieved over the maintenance of the sinking funds, the abolition of the corporation profits tax, of the duty on inhabited houses and the fact that there is no addition in direct taxation that much else is forgiven. Criticism in banking circles chiefly centers on fears that the estimates of revenue are too sanguine and upon Snowden's final announcement at the end of the budget that the prospective surplus of £4,000,- 000 will not meet all the expenditures contemplated, including the old age pensions, and that it is hoped to get the necessary money from further economics in expenditures. This postscript gave a slipshod appearance to an otherwise trim and tidy budget.

The Political Aspects.

"Turning to the political aspects of the budget I am inclined to think that Snowden's adoption of ultra-free trade principles as exemplified by the repeal of the McKenna duties may prove one of those excesses which injure rather than help protectionism. It might even mark a turning point in fiscal policy. The financial district favors free trade, but regards this budget as free trade gone mad. Similarly the refusal of the Government to fulfill the pledges given by the previous administration to the dominions has created a bad impression. Having, however, given you a faithful resume of Lombard street's criticisms of the budget the fact remains that it is sufficiently good to warrant the fulfillment of hopes for an early revival of financial activity, always provided that the reparation crisis develops favorably. What promises to be an epidemic of fresh capital issues begins Monday and if reparation affairs go well I believe an international loan for Germany soon will be discussed.

"The reduction in your Federal Reserve rate also is a highly important factor in the outlook, because if it had not occurred foreign and other loans would soon have raised conjectures as to the likelihood of a rise in our bank rate.

"The result now probably will be to occasion a temporary slight sagging in our money rates, with steadiness and probably little change in rates later on unless trade revives sharply. It is believed also that the effect on your side will be good; first, directly, and second, indirectly, through causing hopes of a revival of international trade generally.

Comparative Gold Holdings.

"Keen interest is displayed in Schuster's optimistic predictions at Liverpool concerning an early resumption in our effective gold standard. Schuster points out that, including gold and currency reserve, our total gold holdings are £157,000,- 000 against a total active note circulation of £406,500,000, this representing 37½ per cent in gold. This is contrasted with only £38,500,000 before the war. Note circulation then, however, was quite small, while it also must be remembered that the joint stock banks held enormous sums of gold in private vaults, which since has been surrendered to the Bank of England. Schuster, however, toward the end of his speech said: 'I advocate no rash withdrawal of the prohibition of the export of gold except under license, but feel that gradually licenses might be granted more freely until even actually a free flow of gold in and out is once more restored.'"

EVENING UP TRADES ON NEW YORK CURB MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Week and even-up-s of accounts characterized trading in the closing curb session of the week and price changes for the most part were inconsequential. An outstanding feature, however, was the selling of Borden shares following announcement of the proposed recapitalization plan of the company. Offerings were large enough to wipe out the 4½-point rise of the previous day as trading commenced, and thereafter further reaction occurred. A special meeting of stockholders has been called for May 28 to act on a proposal to increase the authorized common stock to $35,000,000 from the present $22,500,000. It is also proposed to place the common on an annual dividend basis.

Special weakness developed in Mesabie iron stock, carrying it to a new low record of 3, against the Friday final of 4⅛. Specialties, which were in demand recently, came off somewhat under profit-taking sales while the upward movement of public utility stocks was not renewed.

There was no letup to the buying of Universal Pipe common, which carried it up over two points. Stockholders at the closing meeting will be asked to enable directors to proceed with the carrying out of the plan under which the company was organized. This will mean acquiring of a majority ownership of Iron Products stock now outstanding by Universal stockholders. Lago Petroleum continued the feature of the independent oils and was actively taken up.

New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The feature of the market for coffee futures today was covering by May shorts who found sellers scarce and were forced to bid the price up to 13.70c or 44 points net higher to secure a few lots. May closed at 13.76c. Other months were pulled up by May strength. December advancing to 13.67c. The close was 7 to 50 points net higher. Sales were estimated at only 9,000 bags.

Closing quotations: May, 13.76c; July, 13.62c; September, 12.97c; October, 12.62c; December, 11.97c; March, 11.67c. Spot coffee, steady; Rio 7s, 15@15¼c; Santos 4s, 18¼c to 19¼c. No fresh Rio exchange on London 1-32d lower. Rio buying rate unchanged. Rio market closed to 375 reis lower. Santos unchanged to 175 reis lower. Brazilian port receipts 39,000. Pueblo, 22,000.

COURT ASKED TO QUASH SINCLAIR INDICTMENT

Judge Takes Matter Under Advisement and Decision in Three Weeks Is Expected.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—George Washington's farewell address, published in 1796, Patrick Henry's admonition to the Virginia State Legislation, Alexander Hamilton's Essays, Col. George Mason's advice to his fellow lawmakers, the opinions of James Madison and remarks and protests of other eminent American statesmen, legislators and jurists, figured in the Harry F. Sinclair controversy today before Justice Adolph A. Hoehling in Criminal Court.

Sinclair, indicted oil magnate, who is charged with contempt of the Senate for his refusal to answer 10 questioned propounded March 22 by the Senate Committee on Public Lands and Surveys, is defending his right to refuse to answer by a demurrer and motion to quash the indictment.

Messrs. Pomerene and Roberts, special counsel for the Government, and Peyton Gordon, United States Attorney, are attempting to have Sinclair's motions disregarded by the court and demand that he be brought to trial.

Martin W. Littleton, J. W. Zevely, George P. Hoover and G. T. Stanford, counsel for Sinclair, in referring to Washington's farewell address stated that the first President, in admonishing the people to be on their guard against usurpation of power, said: "It is important that the habits of thinking, in a free country, should inspire caution in those entrusted with its administration, to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres; avoiding in the exercise of powers of one department to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all departments in one and thus to create, whatever the form of government a real despotism."

Answering the attacks of Sinclair's counsel with reference to the charge of usurpation of power, Mr. Gordan declared that "The inquiry by the Congress is for the purpose of informing the internal machinery of the Government as to its rights and duties in the premises and as to any legislation that may be required touching the functioning of that official machinery. The courts are not concerned with what Congress may decide to do or not to do, for no action which Congress may take in that respect can in any wise affect the personal and property rights of any party to the transaction, which is past and done and which must be judged by the state of the law and of the statutes at the date when the transaction took place. It seems to me that the courts should hesitate before attempting to curtail the powers of Congress or any committee of Congress. If one act of a committee is susceptible of a legal construction in the courts, then why are not all of the acts of Congress and its committees?"

The case was taken under advisement by Justice Hoehling. It will be at least two weeks before any decision is made.

Malden Mayor Seeks Missing Boy.

Ira Morris, Mayor of Malden, Mo., yesterday wired the Post-Dispatch a request that it announce the disappearance of Phillip D. Burkhart, 15 years old, from his home at Malden, April 28. "The mother is distracted, searching and pleading for the boy's return," the Mayor asserted. The boy's description was given as follows: Five feet 8 inches tall, slender and slightly stooped, dark brown hair, rather long; brown eyes, irregular teeth, and timid disposition. He was wearing blue overalls, faded tan shirt, dark brown cap, half-soled shoes and no coat.

IVAN SUMMERS and Carson Donnell are holding a double exhibition in the Art Department of the Public Library which will continue for the first half of the month of May. The show comprises 75 pictures, in sizes from small sketches to 30 by 40 canvases.

Ivan Summers, as will be immediately guessed from his work exhibited, belongs in the Woodstock colony of painters. Study with F. Carlson has not definitely decided his individual manner although it has influenced his technique in many respects. A strong, broad brushwork like Mr. Carlson's is felt in miniature in Mr. Summer's little pictures. Considering the two factions in the Woodstock colony, the old conservatism and the new radicalism of the younger men, Mr. Summers has remained at a pleasant point of compromise, his work having the strength and force of the older members and the breezy experimentalism of the younger men. His color fluctuates as readily as does his mood, subject and brushwork. Mr. Summers leaps quickly from dull snow to brilliant spring sunlight; from cold, barren tree trunk silhouettes to tender summer foliage, always his color key kept in perfect relation to subject.

CARSON DONNELL, an Illinois painter having studied from time to time with Mr. Summers in addition to other training, works much differently than does Mr. Summers. With more consideration for light and the effect of light on his subject chosen to portray, he concentrates on that problem at present rather than distribute his attention over the points of composition and deeper feeling.

The sophistication so admirable in finished pictures, has not yet been acquired by Mr. Donnell. However, a number of nice qualities which will later constitute good points in the artist's more mature style, are already apparent. Mr. Donnell has at this time succeeded in grasping the big part of his subject, letting the details demand less of his care, whereas a great many young painters see only the details of a landscape at first, without power to visualize the fundamental significance of the scene.

Mr. Donnell's best painting shown here may be said to be the large canvas entitled "In the Valley." No tedious outline of tree forms, no precise delineation of foreground qualities or sky and cloud patterns are to be definitely found. Instead, one feels a rush of wind over a wide stretch of land, sees the trees bending beneath its force and watches the clouds scurrying before the breeze.

The display for the latter half of the month of May has not yet been definitely decided upon. However, an exhibition or architectural drawings from New York is expected to arrive in time to fill the vacant date.

The annual showing of posters made by the students at the St. Louis School of Fine Arts for the Fashion Pageant will be held shortly at the Library. Instead of being installed in the art department, these posters will be arranged in the main delivery hall and thus appeal to the general public rather than to visitors of the art department exclusively, as in the past.

CARL R. KRAFFT has recently placed 20 paintings with M. A. Newhouse & Son, local representatives. The collection covers a variety of subjects and handlings and well represents the flexibility of the artist's interpretations and manners.

In the majority of Mr. Krafft's works the outstanding features are a high sense of design and a powerful treatment of greens and blues. An unusual ability to combine decorative effects and the artist's own poetic interpretations of nature is noted in Mr. Krafft's pictures. By a fine technique he contrives to portray mass formations in his tree arrangements, yet at the same time to indicate the movement of foliage and the consequent changing relations of lights and shadows.

At present, the Progress Club of South Bend, Ind., is holding a large exhibition of Mr. Krafft's important works at the club rooms. Twenty-five fine pictures are shown, the range of subject matter including work in landscape in Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, figure painting, portraiture and moonlight.

St. Louis will remember Mr. Krafft's beautiful "Tree Tapestry" which was prominently hung in the City Art Museum's American Show last fall, and will be pleased to hear of its recent purchase by the South Shore Country Club of Chicago. The picture was first exhibited at the National Academy of Design in New York, next in our last year's American show and again at the Oak Park Club at the formal opening of the club rooms.

In addition to this representation in a prominent Chicago collection of art, Mr. Krafft's pictures are owned by the Municipal Art League, the Arche Club, the Englewood Women's Club and the City of Chicago, which circulates a collection of fine paintings through the public schools.

CARL BOHNEN, with whose splendid portrait work St. Louis has become well acquainted during the past two years, plans to visit the city again within the next few weeks. Mr. Bohnen has recently completed a portrait of Mrs. Erwin Higinbotham, an Eastern society woman well known here, who is now enjoying a dramatic career in Canada. Among Mr. Bohnen's other recent portraits are those of the Governor of Minnesota, to be placed in the State Capitol at St. Paul; Mr. Paul Watkins, art collector of Winona, Wis., and Mr. E. L. King and family of Winona. Charcoal drawings of Anton and Andreas Lang of the Oberammergau Players during their visit to Chicago were much admired.

MUCH attention from the large American museums has been attracted by the extraordinary exhibition of mosaics by the Emil Frei Co. of St. Louis. The large display of these works in New York within the past few months brought wide recognition from the New York collectors and art institutions, while the publicity through the last issue of the International Studio has aroused interest in the mosaics throughout the West.

St. Louis is now to be congratulated on the fine exhibit of these mosaics now at the Art League Galleries. However great the interest in these master mosaics in other cities, no pride in them can be quite like ours in being able to claim them as a St. Louis product.

CHURCH SUBSCRIBES $7000

Congregation of Union Avenue Christian Church Exceeds Quota.

The congregation of the Union Avenue Christian Church, at a meeting Wednesday night, subscribed $7000, or $1000 more than its quota, as a part of the national "golden jubilee" campaign to raise $1,000,000 for home and foreign missions. The Women's Missionary Society of the church has set double the quota as the goal, it being announced that a member will give $2000 when $10,000 shall have been subscribed.

The "jubilee" is in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Women's Missionary societies. The other aims are 500 new societies, 50,000 new members and 50,000 and 5000 subscribers, respectively, for the adult and juvenile missionary magazines published by the church.

And so do the children

Some Families Are Never Ill

FORTUNATE are the children whose parents fully realize the seriousness of constipation. Hospital records prove that 75 per cent of all disease originates in bowel obstruction, or constipation. Young children cry because of it; school children are hampered in their studies; grown people are made 25 per cent less efficient; elderly people's blood pressure increases 28 per cent. Realizing this Mrs. Carrie Moss of 1714 Church st., Lynchburg, Va., Mr. Louis C. Grahl of 1569 Winton ave., Lakewood, Ohio, and innumerable others, give a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at the first sign of constipation, and have no sickness among their children.

Largest Selling Laxative

Every up-to-date family medicine chest should contain a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and palatable aromatics, a prescription written 30 years ago by Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who practised medicine 47 years. You can buy a bottle in any store where medicines are sold, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. We guarantee that if you will give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to a child or for a few nights to an adult it will relieve any case of constipation no matter how chronic, or your money will be refunded.

10 Million Bottles a Year

Use it once and you will never again take coal-tar drugs in candyform, calomel or salts. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a vegetable laxative free from opiates and narcotics. It can be safely given to infants, yet it effectively moves the bowels of adults. It acts gently; does not cramp or gripe. Keep it in the house and use it for any indication of bowel obstruction such as constipation, biliousness, torpid liver, dyspepsia, pimples and like skin eruptions. Give it early and it will break up a fever or a cold overnight. A spoonful proves it.

HOW GROSSMAN PARDON, CRITICISED BY LANDIS, WAS DUE TO INFLUENCE

Willingness of Some Senators to "Go to the Front" for Constituents With Influence Illustrated by Case.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building,
WASHINGTON, May 3.

THE pardoning of Philip Grossman, Chicago saloonkeeper, after he had been sentenced to the House of Correction for a year and fined $1000 for selling liquor in violation of the Volstead act, offers a shining example of the devious ways by which pardons are sometimes obtained. It illustrates also the complacence of some United States Senators in doing favors for constituents with political influence. Finally, it is an interesting and typical by-product of the working of the prohibition enforcement machinery.

The story came out yesterday in the testimony of former Federal Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, now the Baseball High Commissioner, before the Brookhart-Wheeler committee of inquiry into the Department of Justice. Landis was the Judge who sentenced Grossman, after six witnesses had testified to the purchase of whisky at his place.

"Grossman," said Landis, "ran a regular saloon in a part of our town where they bred and developed criminals, and he just kept running it down to the day of the pardon."

Harding Twice Refused Pardon.

President Harding twice refused to pardon Grossman. After President Coolidge came in, the pressure for a pardon was renewed, with the result that the saloonkeeper went scot free without having served a day of the sentence that Landis had imposed. The former Judge in his testimony said that he could not understand the action of the President.

A statement he made at the time was read to him by Senator Wheeler, and Landis said that this correctly expressed his views.

"Just why," asked Landis in this statement, "may we expect $1800-a-year prohibition agents to stand up four square for law enforcement with the President of the United States granting a pardon under such circumstances? It is a gross misfortune that with the announcement is carried the statement of the activities of two political gentlemen in Grossman's behalf. Political power has just as much right to influence executive action after conviction as it has to influence judicial action before conviction."

Letter From Two Senators.

There is no doubt that political influence was exerted. Attached to the application for Grossman's pardon is a letter under date of May 4, 1923, signed with the names of William B. McKinley and Medill McCormick, the two Senators from Illinois. It follows:

"My dear Mr. President:

"We, the Senators from Illinois, will very much appreciate it if you will carefully consider the report favorably submitted by the Department of Justice in the case of Philip Grossman of Chicago. In this connection, we respectfully ask that you give consideration to the recommendation for executive clemency by the Attorney-General of Illinois who prosecuted the case and whose recommendation was left with Mr. Christian this morning."

Both McKinley and McCormick say they do not remember this letter. At the meeting of the committee yesterday, Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, and Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, said they had been authorized to state on behalf of one of the Senators from Illinois that he knew nothing of having signed any petition relating to Grossman. The Senator referred to, though his name was not given, was McKinley. Some time ago McKinley said that on the date of the letter, May 4, he was on a cruise to Alaska with Secretary of War Weeks.

The facts regarding the letter have not been fully established. The most likely explanation is that it was sent from the office of one of two Senators with both names attached, in pursuance of a working agreement which they have to act together in affairs touching their State.

It probably was sent as a matter of routine at the request of a constituent. Such communications to the Department of Justice, asking that consideration be given to applications for pardon, are frequent. The practice represents the willingness of some Senators to "go to the front" for an influential constituent without making an investigation of his case or even when the case is known to lack merit. In this instance McCormick and McKinley or their agents appear to have acted without knowing the facts in the Grossman case.

The point is that the letter signed with the names of the Senators, whether or not they are now aware of having sent the letter, indicates the political background of the Grossman pardon.

"Political Gentlemen."

Judge Landis in his testimony had a good deal to say about the "political gentlemen" who were apparently interested in Grossman. After saying that his views had been correctly expressed in the published statement attributed to him, he went on: "I ought in frankness to add something more. Coincidentally with the announcement of this pardon all the press dispatches carried an account of a conference at the White House between these political gentlemen and the President and in that connection was mentioned at that time, or subsequently, the name of Fred Upham.

"In dealing with that situation I made the statement that if the man was entitled to the pardon he ought to have it, but whether he was entitled to it or not, the pardoning power ought not to listen to these political gentlemen. I then said that it was a grave misfortune that this thing happened at that particular time—that is to say, the announcement of activity of Homer Galpin, Judge Barrett and Fred Upham—on the threshold of our campaign in Illinois for delegates to the National convention."

Fred Upham is the treasurer of the Republican National Committee. Homer Galpin is the chairman of the Republican Central Committee of Cook County, Ill., and Judge George F. Barrett is now in the legal department of sanitary district of Chicago. He is a brother of Charles V. Barrett, who is influential in Chicago politics. The pardon was granted on the immediate recommendation of C. W. Middlekauff, the Special Assistant Attorney-General who prosecuted the Grossman case.

It was brought out at the hearing that the pardon was on the charge of criminal contempt of court and was granted on the representation by Middlekauff to the Department of Justice that the conviction had been obtained by the testimony of an untrustworthy witness.

Senator Wheeler put into the record a memorandum from Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General in charge of liquor cases to Assistant Attor-

Centralization of Power at Washington Called Greatest Issue Today by Gov. Ritchie

"PROHIBITION ONLY ONE PHASE OF PROBLEM"

Voters Should at Once Set About Curbing the Powers Usurped by the Federal Government and Restore Them to the States Where They Belong, He Says—Organized Minorities in Control Under Present Plan.

By FRANK R. KENT,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
BALTIMORE, May 3.

WITH a stimulating clarity extremely rare in these muddy-minded times, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of Maryland, gave his views a few days ago on what he conceives to be the real issues in the coming campaign.

While Gov. Ritchie has been mentioned as a possible presidential nominee he does not take this mention too seriously. Both his feet are squarely on the ground. Although the Maryland Legislature has recommended him to the Democratic convention and there has been wide-spread comment on his availability, particularly since his ringing State's rights speech at the Jefferson day dinner of the National Democratic Club in New York two weeks ago, he does not think of himself in presidential terms. It is, he says, disturbing to his peace of mind.

But whether Ritchie thinks of himself that way or not, there are two things that stand him out among the Governors of the country as a distinct and recognized presidential possibility. One of these is his record and the other is an old idea, not a new idea but an old idea, so clearly and forcibly stated, so convincingly applied, so earnest and timely in form, so satisfying in substance that it "rings the bell" every time he presents it, and that is every time he gets a chance. Because, Gov. Ritchie believes in the historic Democratic doctrine of the right of the states to run their own affairs with as little Federal interference as possible—believes in it militantly, earnestly, sincerely. The encroachments of the national Government on the power and authority of the state, the resulting increase in the tax burden and diminution of personal liberty, arouse in him a real resentment that gets a remarkably popular response every time he voices it—notably at his second inauguration in January and again in New York on April 12. Both these speeches rang all over the country.

So far as the Ritchie record is concerned it can be briefly but significantly summed up in the recital of two outstanding and pregnant facts. Here they are:

He is the only Governor of Maryland ever elected for a second term.

After four years of service he was given last November the largest majority of any candidate for Governor in Maryland since the Civil War.

GOV. ALBERT C. RITCHIE.

Declined to Be a Senator

Those two sentences tell the story. Maryland elects her Governors for four-year terms. It is traditional that they are not renominated. Last summer it was conceded Gov. Ritchie could have gone to the United States Senate with no opposition in the primaries and very little in the general election. All of his friends and all of the politicians took it for granted he wanted to go. It seemed the logical thing—personally and politically. When the Governor finally announced that he was a candidate to succeed himself as Governor, giving as his reason the desire to finish the job he had started by reorganizing the State Government, it was a genuine surprise. From the politicians all over Maryland came the shout that Ritchie had ended his political career. They had already lined up behind another man. His friends feared he had made a grave mistake. For a while things looked pretty blue, but in a few weeks the situation cleared. It then appeared that there was behind Ritchie a public sentiment stronger than the political machine and stronger than the Maryland tradition. It got going and smashed both. He was renominated without opposition and triumphantly re-elected by an unprecedented majority. The answer is perfectly simple—the people of the State sized Ritchie up as a Governor who knew more about his job, had given it closer attention and done it better than any man who had held it. Besides that, they liked him personally—and the main reason for that is that, while Ritchie has undoubtedly grown in the last four years, he has not swelled.

It really was an amazing thing—that second victory of his—gained in the face of long-cherished custom and a political opposition that did not dream it would not prevail. It does stand him out as unique in the history of Maryland politics, unquestionably the strongest public figure the State has produced in a generation. Of course, there is a good deal more to Ritchie than his record. There is his attractive personality, his standing at the bar, his wide and varied acquaintance and the prestige of an old and honored name—but it is his record that makes him unbeatable in the State, that renders futile the shafts aimed at him by some of the short-sighted among the politicians. These fellows have been a great help to him. Always they organize fiercely against him, form a combination which is to eliminate him from political life and end by kicking him up the political stairs. That is exactly what happened at the recent session of the Legislature. A disgruntled group of politicians formed a combination and took away from the Governor control of the Legislature in the last days, which gave him the chance to veto a number of bills outrageously raiding the State treasury and glorified his fight to keep down the State tax rate in a way to greatly strengthen him with the people.

The net result of Ritchie's eight years of public life—four as Attorney-General and four as Governor—has been to make him the second Maryland man in a generation to be talked about in connection with the presidency. The other was the late Senator Arthur Pue Gorman Sr. Two more widely different types it would be hard to imagine. Not that Ritchie is a reformer—far from it. He plays the game as a party man and a Democrat. He believes in, recognizes and is sympathetic with his party organization. Many of its leaders are his personal friends, but he does not run the machine nor does he want to run it, and there are times when his conception of public service impels him to disregard both party and organization arguments. He has not hesitated to do this in the past, probably will not in the future. It is, for instance, Gov. Ritchie's feeling that his party in the coming campaign should not make its paramount issue the corruption in the Republican administration.

The Issue as He Sees It

He thinks that crookedness in the Cabinet and graft in the highest governmental circles are too terrible and shocking things for any attempt to capitalize them for partisan political profit. Besides that, he points out, the Democratic party does not have to make that the issue. The American people will make that themselves and they will definitely place the responsibility where it belongs. The Republican party will not escape retribution, but it is neither a patriotic nor a political intelligent thing for the Democrats to try to win on this as a single issue. What these exposures amount to is a great national disgrace which make every decent citizen regardless of party hang his head in shame. It would be a mistake for the Democrats to try to ride into power on that alone.

"What," Gov. Ritchie was asked, "do you think should be the big issue in the campaign?"

"There is, in my judgment, only one real issue," the Governor replied, "upon which the country can divide politically today.

"That is, shall this thing of centralizing in Washington more and more activities which the states were intended to do themselves and which they can do better and more cheaply themselves, shall that stop, or shall it go on and ultimately break down not only the American form of government, but the backs of the taxpayers who have to pay for it, as well? That involves the question of lower taxes, and much more besides."

Constitution Is Becoming So Cluttered Up With Amendments That Are a Menace to Our Form of Government He Would Refer All Future Proposed Changes to the People Before Their Adoption.

"Do you realize," Gov. Ritchie continued, "how much more the Federal Government collects from the people of the states than their own state governments collect from them? Take my own State of Maryland. In 1922 the Federal Government collected in Maryland from internal revenue taxation alone $45,971,936, which was $31.71 per capita. In the same year the State government of Maryland collected from its own people from all sources $14,679,700, which was $10.12 per capita. In other words, the Federal Government came into Maryland and levied on the people for this one source of revenue nearly four times as much as their own State government collected from all sources.

How States Are Taxed

"It is the same everywhere. In New York the levy for State taxes is $11.75 per capita, and for Federal taxes $65.54 per capita, so that the people of New York are required to pay the Federal Government nearly six times more than their own State government taxes them.

"In Kansas, the levy for State taxes is $3.35 per capita and for Federal taxes $13.29 per capita, or four times greater.

"In Indiana, the levy for State taxes is $4.86 per capita and for Federal taxes $14.41 per capita, or more than five times greater.

"An enormous part of this Federal taxation represents Federal aid for roads, agriculture, health and schools and the cost of the Federal bureaus which administer it."

"Why do you emphasize that, Governor?"

"Because Federal aid is the most insidious, extragavant and un-American form of centralization which has ever occurred to undermine the principles of the American Government.

"It is insidious, because it is made to appear that the Federal Government is giving the states something for nothing. As a matter of fact, every dollar which the Federal Government distributes among the states it first collects from the people of the states through some form of Federal taxation, and then it deducts the enormous cost of its bureaus and commissions before giving anything back at all.

Encourages Political Manipulation

"The original object was doubtless a worthy one, but now it encourages political manipulation and trading for supposed special favors to special localities and to special interests.

"It means the taking of Federal control over local activities in a way which could not be done directly under the Constitution; because the Federal Government always demands the right of supervision, and can withdraw its appropriation from any State which does not observe the Federal directions.

"It is a trade in which the state gives the Federal Government the right to superintend activities which primarily belong to the states in exchange for the payment by the Federal Government of one-half of some part of the expenses of administration.

"I want to see the day when the Federal Government, instead of collecting these vast sums from the people of the states, and then paying back part to them for the local purpose of the states, with the right of Federal control, will keep its hands entirely off all this money, so that the people of the states will have it and expend it themselves for their own roads and schools and health and agriculture, free from any Federal supervision and control whatever."

"Well, Governor, how about prohibition? You differed at the Harding and Coolidge conferences from all the other Governors who were there. A lot of people think that the big issue. What do you think?"

"Prohibition," Gov. Ritchie replied, "is simply one phase of the real issue—just one illustration of the centralization in Washington of things which the states ought to be left free to determine for themselves.

"What I said at the two Governors' conferences was that prohibition couldn't be settled by a hard and fast rule applying uniformly throughout the entire country; that the Volstead act could not be considered the Death Reveals Newspaperman of St. Louis Was on Verge of Fame As a Shakspearean Student

Archie Webster Had Won Recognition of High Order in Effort to Prove Marlowe Was Real Author of Bard's Best Works.

By Paul Y. Anderson.

"HE died on the threshold of success."

This poignant sentence, so often uttered in the past, is needed again, it seems, to describe the sad case of Archie Webster, former St. Louis newspaper man, who expired last week at Palm Beach, Fla., where he had gone in quest of health.

Known to numerous St. Louisans merely as an unusually acute observer and reporter of municipal affairs, he apparently was on the verge of achieving literary fame of a high order when pernicious anemia put an end to his career at the age of 38. There is added melancholy in the circumstance that, although his labors had received recognition from leading English authorities, the bare fact that he was engaged in them was unknown in this, his birthplace and lifelong home, to all save a few friends and relatives.

Webster chose a truly noble subject upon which to project his ideas—the subject of the Shakspearean literature. Rejecting the common assumption that William Shakspeare of Stratford wrote the poems and plays attributed to him, he set out to find one whom he could accept as the genuine author.

ARCHIE WEBSTER.

Employing the methods of deduction, analysis and synthesis learned in his newspaper work, but refined by him to a high degree, he eventually arrived at the conclusion that most of the poems and plays, including virtually all of the greater works, were actually from the talented pen of Christopher Marlowe—he of "the mighty line and high astounding terms." Toward the establishment of that theory his endeavors were bent. At his death he had nearly completed the collection of material for a book on the subject, which was to have been brought out by a London publisher.

Considering his limited scholastic training, and the strangely circumscribed conditions under which he worked, his results, if adjudged merely on the face of his uncompleted work and the serious consideration which it received from qualified critics, can only be described as remarkable. A little background will deepen this impression.

Member of Newspaper Family.

Webster was a member of a newspaper family. His father Sheridan Webster, has contributed to newspapers for more than 40 years. His three brothers, Ray, Wendell and Robert, are reporters. Archie became one before he was 20. He never attended a college or university. At various times he worked on all the St. Louis papers. Like all the tribe, he covered a multiplicity of assignments, but eventually found a congenial and rather settled berth at City Hall.

He achieved more than ordinary distinction here. To an engaging personality, and a faculty of great penetration, he added the habit of careful and exhaustive study which he applied to virtually every major civic issue that has been before the city for the last 15 years. In knowledge of the Free Bridge and street railways questions, he had few, if any, superiors, and his opinion was frequently sought by legislative and administrative officials, and by many other interested individuals.

A Prophetic Doubt.

The respect and affection which his work and his personality inspired among his colleagues was, in the knowledge of this writer, without a parallel anywhere. Before he was 30 his advice was eagerly sought by many young reporters and a few older ones. To round out a sketchy picture, it should be added that Webster's political convictions, which were characteristically deep-seated, bore a radical hue. He cherished a singular admiration for Senator La Follette, with whose public career both in Wisconsin and in the Senate he was intimately familiar. A month ago, when the Senator fell ill, Webster wrote from Florida to a newspaper friend in Washington, who is also a friend of the Senator, the following:

"I read with much concern today that Senator La Follette is a very sick man. When he fights off the pneumonia, as I have no doubt he will, I would love to hear that he has retired to some quiet spot, there to rest until at least June 1. My own candle flickered a short while since, and I had grave doubts as to whether I should see the daisies bloom again in old Mizzou."

As events proved, it was a prophetic doubt.

Newspaper "University."

The foregoing broadly comprehends the training and experience upon which Webster was to base his attempt to unravel a literary mystery which has occupied the lives and labors of some of the profoundest savants of the last century or two. His "university" had been the hurly-burly of a modern newspaper office in a large city, his "degree" the reward which comes from long study of trolley franchises, "joker" aldermanic bills and police mysteries. Incidentally, it is pertinent to record his shrewd and sometimes reiterated assertion—not in connection with himself—that genius arises most often from the common, hurried walks of life, rather than from the classic, cloistered halls of the academies.

It was in 1919 that his health gave way, soon necessitating his retirement from newspaper work. For some time he had been turning over the "Shakspeare mystery" in his mind and making occasional brief studies of it. With more zest than the average man musters in such a case, he seized upon his invalidism as affording an opportunity to explore the subject as thoroughly as was possible.

The 36th Sonnet.

Describing how he first became intrigued by it he once said: "I was reading the thirty-sixth sonnet, one of the many dedicated to the Earl of Southampton,

Deficit in Postal Receipts.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MUCH has been said about the deficit each year in postal receipts.

It is generally known that Postmasters at the small country towns operate stores in conjunction with the Postoffice.

The Postmaster will buy up eggs from the surrounding farmers and send them to commission firms via parcel post. The writer recently saw five cases of eggs in one lot on which there was 67 cents postage on each case or a total of $3.35. On another lot of eight cases there was 65 cents postage on each case or a total of $5.20. The Postmaster in both of these cases received the entire amount of cancellation and in addition 5 per cent for the sale of stamps. The Government in both of these cases carried these 13 cases of eggs without compensation, besides paying the Postmaster his commission. Then there is the railroad to pay for train service, and employes at terminals and delivery men who handle the eggs to the commission houses.

This looks to me like mighty poor management on the part of the postal authorities, as, if this condition exists over the entire country, which cannot be denied, the deficit is easily explained and the taxpayer can realize that there is little hope of reduction in taxes.

If the parcel post cannot pay for itself the Government should get rid of it and allow the common carriers who are in business and paying taxes for the privilege of doing business a chance to live.

The railroads will not make an issue of this, as they receive compensation from the Government.

The increased rates on parcel post, now pending, should be put into effect, not only as a means of increasing salaries for postal employes, but to overcome the constant drain on the taxpayers to make up the deficit.

Daniels and Denby.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

DANIELS, as Secretary of the Navy, warned the men who owned oil land adjoining the naval reserves, who threatened to sink wells and tap the naval reserves, when they found they could not lease the Government land: "You sink one well near enough to drain the naval reserves, and for every one you sink the Government will sink 10 and drain you. If you think you can bluff the Navy, go ahead and try."

Denby fooled away the naval reserves and brags about it. What is worse, President Coolidge shielded Denby until the Senate forced Denby to resign.

Bill Board Advertising.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHY all this agitation by metropolitan newspapers against landscape disfiguration of the national highways by bill boards? I venture the assertion that I have ridden more miles of country highways than all the editors quoting this abuse of the landscape, and I rode them on a bicycle, in Missouri, Tennessee, Texas, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. The only disfiguration I saw in my travels were on approaching some towns where certain dumps were better hidden than exposed by obnoxious sign boards. Out in the open country the landscape is hidden by signs by one-half of 1 per cent. Take between Gillespie and Carlinville, Ill., a stretch of 18 miles of perfect concrete and not more than two or three advertising signs.

The whole artistic frenzy is, in my opinion, propaganda to influence all advertising into the columns of the newspapers, just as was done with theatrical billboards and window advertising. Now be fair and publish this. I will show my sincerity and faithfulness in this matter by saying I don't know a person in billboard advertising. Publish my name.

College Graduates Want Jobs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH our colleges turning out dozens of young men yearly, thoroughly equipped for the higher paths of our economic life, it certainly seems the fact that an Eastern corporation saw fit to appoint a man to a $100,000 position who did not even have a high school diploma. I know of half a dozen college graduates, who would be willing to accept a high-salaried job, with three hours at the office in the morning, two hours at the club for lunch, followed by three hours at golf—say eight hours a day. I dare say, larger cities like New York, Chicago or Kansas City, could produce even a greater number of candidates.

ENGINEERS ON MUSCLE SHOALS.

Reference was made a day or two ago in the Norris committee hearings to a report by a committee of engineers which the American Engineering Council, at Senator Norris' request, appointed to investigate the Muscle Shoals situation. This report, it is explained, was hurriedly prepared because of the pressure of time, but, even so, the members are unanimously agreed on a number of points.

First of all, it suggests that a joint committee of Congress should be named to examine carefully into all offers and recommend the action which it believes Congress should take.

The committee of engineers further suggests that Congress make no disposition of any part of the property pending such report.

Finally the committee urges that in no event should any disposition be made of the power plants which is not in substantial accord with the Federal Water Power Act.

The engineers' report discusses the subject of fertilizer at some length. Nothing was found, it says, to justify the popular belief that the operation of the existing plants will make substantially cheaper fertilizers immediately available. It points out that nitrates constitute but one of three basic constituents of commercial fertilizer and that a reduction in nitrate cost would not materially lower the cost of the marketable product.

It also calls attention to a point stressed by former Secretary of War Baker that such remarkable progress has recently been made in the synthetic process of nitrogen fixation as to indicate that the chemical process will be the future source of supply. In view of that development the report ventures that Plant No. 1, which was designed to use the chemical process and has been considered a failure, will prove a fortunate investment and will render obsolete the No. 2 plant which was to operate on the cyanamide process.

The committee also says that the estimates of the power capacity of Muscle Shoals are greatly exaggerated. The rating of 600,000 horsepower accredited to Wilson Dam, for which generating machinery was ultimately to be installed, is not borne out by the facts. Government records on the flow of the Tennessee River at Muscle Shoals are quoted to show that the primary power, or power which can be delivered continuously throughout the year, has, in many years, not exceeded 80,000 horsepower. The highest year of which there is record approximated 200,000 horsepower. So that to guarantee continuous delivery of 200,000 horsepower—and delivery must be continuous if industry is to depend on it—a supplementary steam plant of 120,000 horsepower would be necessary. That would mean a large expenditure.

But regardless of the primary power in the Tennessee River, the engineers' report makes one point irrefutably clear and that is the necessity of the Government's knowing precisely what it does when it closes a deal for Muscle Shoals. The Government must know what the lessee contracts to do. It cannot take anything for granted. It cannot trust to any concessionaire's good intentions. And surely the Government must accept the preponderant judgment of experts that the lease must conform to the conservation requirements of the Federal Water Power Act.

Publicity has served the sound purpose in this instance of arousing a public sentiment which will hold Congress responsible for any blunder that jeopardizes the public's rights and material interests in this property.

THE SON OF JAMES MONROE.

Maj. Edward James Monroe of Jacksonville, Fla., whose neighbors are preparing to help in the celebration of his 109th birth anniversary on the Fourth of July, may be called America's oldest official orphan. His father, who was the fifth President of the United States, has been dead 93 years.

After all, the United States is a youthful republic. When Maj. Monroe was born, news of the battle of Waterloo, fought 16 days earlier, had not crossed the ocean; and down below New Orleans the citizens still were picking up and burying British soldiers who had fallen the preceding Jan. 8 before the rifle fire of Andrew Jackson's Kentuckians and Tennesseeans. Maj. Monroe has lived in the lifetime of all our Presidents save George Washington. It would have been physically possible for him to shake hands and talk with every President from John Adams to Calvin Coolidge; and when Adams and Thomas Jefferson died, both on the same day in 1826, young Edward James Monroe was celebrating, in addition to the Fourth of July, his own eleventh birthday.

The Monroe Doctrine, promulgated by the Major's father and still going strong, is eight years younger than the Major, who himself enjoys such health and strength that he does his own housekeeping, being an old bachelor, and raises most of his own food on a truck farm. If ever Maj. Monroe feels too old to work for his own livelihood, possibly Congress may be induced to pass a special bonus bill in his behalf. He served in the Mexican and Civil wars and offered his services in the World War. The fact that 102 years is somewhat above the age limit caused his rejection in 1917, but the Major is not to be blamed for that.

REGULARITY'S WORMWOOD.

The National Republican League, with the fervid support of the National Republican, organ of the Republican National Committee, announces the purpose of putting down the insurrection in the grand old party. The order has gone forth to "loyal" Republicans to oppose in the primaries and at the polls every candidate "who will not agree to be a Republican after he is elected as well as on election day."

The issue is merely one of loyalty to "the Republicanism of Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Harrison, McKinley and Roosevelt." To find a common denominator for this list of idealists and spoilsmen, let us say in passing, is a considerable order. Virtue, naturally, abides with regularity. "Honesty and courage in this matter are the best strategy. The only victory it is worth while for a party to win is that gained in a square-toed fight for principle."

What will the Republican constituents of Norris, Brookhart and La Follette say to this? Will they want Senators who, like Spencer, take orders from Lodge, Smoot and Watson or do they prefer those whom they know and trust to act in the popular interest? But there are worse calamities than losing an election. Does not the testament of regularity say: "What shall it profit a party to win nominal control of a Government only to find itself powerless to develop the policies to which it is publicly pledged?"

The loss of all States but the historic Vermont and Utah would be sweet as against the gall and wormwood of reform from within.

YOUNG MEN'S SUNDAY.

Today is set aside as "Young Men's Sunday" in St. Louis churches. It will be a day of appeal for the strengthening and development of young manhood through the facilities to be offered by the Y. M. C. A. That such facilities may be offered on an adequate scale a building program has been drawn up and a drive is to be made for financing it. More than 80 speakers from other cities are in St. Louis today to encourage the movement and testify to the achievements of the "Y."

George Sherwood Eddy, in a recent address, stated that, while St. Louis is sixth in population and seventh in wealth among the cities of the United States, it is forty-second in Y. M. C. A. facilities. This record is a reproach, the cause of which must be removed. The task of leveling up the dereliction of years is great, but certainly not too great for the capacity and spirit of the city. It will be undertaken in one master stroke. The program calls for a subscription of $3,000,000 to provide five new buildings to serve as many districts in the city and additions to three present buildings.

St. Louis' most important civic asset is not buildings or boulevards or other inanimate things, but its young men. On them depend the quality, competency and happiness of the rising generation. There cannot be happy wives or healthy children with physically or morally weakened men. The "Y," though a human institution and humanly susceptible to criticism, is doing a work of incalculable service in affording facilities within the reach of every young man for body and character building, for the wholesome spending of leisure time and for self-improvement and increase of earning power through its night schools.

St. Louis is under summons in a most worthy cause. It cannot, will not, fail to respond.

IMPROVEMENT THROUGH ADVERTISING.

Observers of the annual "pep" convention of the Missouri Association, whose principal mission is to advertise Missouri, must mark with interest how much more enthusiastically the genus homo takes to blowing his own horn than to improve the subject of his blowing. Missouri desperately needs reform and improvement in schools, roads, taxation, forestation, and government. But who can engineer a spirited outpouring of public sentiment for these things comparable to the love of boosting what we have? Constructive attempts in all these lines have met with the cold shoulder, not because of opposition but from sheer apathy.

Far be it from us, however, to disparage the program of the Missouri Association. In fact, we can see in it an indirect way to the end which has baffled direct attack. While it advertised us favorably to the rest of the world, it may spur Missourians to a sense of past neglect and a renewed ambition to rise to their opportunities. It appeals to the people in their most sensitive spot, the pocketbook. It advertises to ourselves the material benefit of better civic institutions.

By all means let us advertise Missouri—and work resolutely to make our State more worthy of advertising.

STORM PRECAUTIONS.

The storm king continues to defy man's science and precautions. After receiving favorable weather reports from the U. S. coast guard cutter Algonquin, by wireless, Maj. Martin, in command of the United States around-the-world flying expedition, must have thought it safe to take to the air in his efforts to catch up to his comrades. But he is lost in a 100-mile gale which caused even the seagulls to crouch in terror.

And no doubt hundreds of persons in the Southern states just visited by destructive tornadoes, which killed over 100 unprepared victims, were listening, by radio, shortly before the storm, to weather reports. We have not heard of any general storm alarm being sent to these states, such as would have been the case if weather forecasting had become an exact science.

It is evident that we shall have to learn a great deal more of climatology and aerology before we shall be able to predict the weather, and especially sudden storms, with that degree of accuracy that will enable us to give warning in time to take all possible precautions against injury.

It may not be possible to put up buildings that will be absolutely stormproof. But the question of greater safety can be partly solved by more substantial structures.

A NEW SOURCE OF WOOD PULP.

Experiments by the United States Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wis., in converting the wood of the ailanthus into wood pulp give promise of a new source of supply for the manufacture of paper that should be fully tested. If all that is said about this product is true, the ailanthus tree, or "Tree of Heaven," as the Chinese call it, may save our pulp-wood forests from the extermination which threatens them.

The Forest Products experts report that the ailanthus pulp develops into a high grade of book paper, also fit for use in the manufacture of lithograph and writing paper. The wood of this tree is also suitable for fine cabinet work. The tree grows so rapidly that, in New Zealand, where it is cultivated, it is said to produce 25 tons of wood in three and a half years.

In and around St. Louis the ailanthus is well known, coming up self-sown in yard corners and vacant lots. It is very easy of propagation from suckers, cuttings or seeds. A crop of 20 or more tons every five years, allowing for the difference in climate between New Zealand and Missouri, would be a crop worth growing, if the timber had a big demand for paper pulp. This information is commended to the lumbermen and farmers of the State, and to all those who are interested in forestry and our future timber and paper supply. Some such tree is needed to redeem our abandoned and cut-over lands and save the country from being compelled to buy its lumber and wood pulp from foreign sources.

SOCRATES AND HIS PUPILS.

SOCRATES: Last night at the agora we talked about Smithius. You know in New York they are pretty crazy about Smithius, and all sorts of people are out to make him the Democratic presidential nominee. Of course, this raises the question whether the Democrats could do anything to cost them the election this time or will win no matter what happens.

Glaucon: Isn't that, as a matter of fact, the way the Democrats always do win?

Socrates: Yes. The Democrats win only when the Republicans throw the election away, as Hughsius did in the second campaign with Wilsonus. Crites asked if anyone could think of a respect in which the victory is not fool-proof so far as the Democrats are concerned, and nobody could think of one. Can any of you think of one?

Thrasymachus: I can't.

Socrates: I suppose not. The Republicans are going to nominate Coolidgius. The insurgent Northwest will not vote for Coolidgius. They mean to beat him by putting their own leader in the field, so that irrespective of anything happening at the Democratic convention Coolidgius will lose. The insurgents in the Republican party are shrewd politicians, and their cue is to beat Coolidgius. They will beat him. It cannot matter whether the Democratic candidate is somebody Democrats are wild about or not. He will still be elected, and when they all go back to Washington the insurgent Northwest will resume control of the situation. They would rather have the appointive power in Democratic hands than to have Coolidgius have it. They can take care of legislation.

Polemarchus: So you don't attach any importance to the religion of Smithius or his state of moisture?

Socrates: No. Nobody at the agora did. There are people who think those things matter, but since nothing that can happen would make either the South or the Northwest vote for Coolidgius it cannot make any difference whom the Democrats nominate.

Glaucon: Did no one think the Ku Klux would beat Smithius?

Socrates: Not by voting for Coolidgius. That sort of thing usually peters out when it is tested. Everybody said that if the Turks chased the Moslem caliph out and cut his ecclesiastical family off the payroll there would be a holy war in the Orient, but when the Turks actually did this nothing happened. The same myth obtains in the matter of prohibition. How do we differ from other sensible people who entertained that ideal and abandoned it when it failed? Anyway, the South, which believes in state prohibition and was never enthusiastic about national prohibition, is not going to vote for Coolidgius because the Democratic candidate is not in favor of going on with the present farce.

Polemarchus: You have it, I think.

Socrates: Very well. Now let us go out and see how Nature, the great mother, is doing on Mothers' Day.

"MOTHER'S DAY."

WE DEDICATE this day, of all the year,
This little flower, of all the flowers that grow,
In memory of Mother, but we owe
Far more than this poor tribute of a tear.
She did not teach us, in her journey here,
To worship idols, such as now we know,
Or turn from honest ways that man should go,
To wander through this wilderness of fear.

God willed that she should suffer to sustain
His living light of truth to guide us on
Beyond this worldly carnival we hold;
But not that she should suffer so in vain;
For by her life He leads us to the dawn
Of days unsullied by ill-gotten gold.

No monument of stone has ever told
The worth of Mother, in this world of ours,
Nor can we hope with sacrificial flowers
To blind the future to our gyves of gold.
By love, alone, may we aspire to hold
Communion with her spirit in the bowers
Of memory—of childhood's happy hours—
Deep hidden from our hearts, so soon grown cold.

By deeds of truth we may at length attain
The summit of the service of her days;
There, pausing where her patient feet have trod,
We may resolve her life was not in vain,
And, turning from the idols of our ways,
Return to serve our country and our God.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH OWEN?

From the Daily Oklahoman.

LAST Thursday while Ambassador Howard of Britain was conveying to representatives of the Associated Press the hearty best wishes of Ramsey MacDonald and eulogizing the American press for its high ideals and valuable service and while Senator Reed of Pennsylvania was congratulating the press on its distinterested efforts in behalf of better government and public progress, Senator Owen of Oklahoma was standing in the American Senate, berating the press in rather severe language and urging the publication of a Government bulletin to take the place of a derelict press.

It is difficult to decide just what is ailing Senator Owen. No man in the official circles of Oklahoma has ever received so generous treatment from the press. In every battle he has ever fought to win or retain a senatorial seat he has had a press support that was all but unanimous. For full 15 years the press of the State with unstinted generosity praised Senator Owen, praised his service to the Commonwealth, praised his service to the nation, praised him as a man, praised him as a statesman. While editorial assaults were making less favored officials writhe with anger, the Senator received nothing but the most hearty praise.

It is therefore exceedingly difficult to understand the Senator's sudden animus toward the press of the country. It is against nature for a man who has been befriended to attack his benefactors so causelessly and so repeatedly. His pending bill to convert every publication into a collection of affidavits was bad enough, in all conscience. His intimation that the press is an instrument of imposture is infinitely worse. His sudden reversal will both puzzle and puzzle publishers who, without thought of reward, supported the Senator through out his political tenure only to find themselves despised and rejected when the Senator no longer needs their friendship and support.

SUGAR-COATED CENTRALIZATION.

From the Philadelphia Bulletin.

OPPOSITION of university heads to the Towner-Sterling bill to create a Federal Department of Education crystallized on Wednesday at the hearing before the House Committee on Education, and attained such volume that the protest must be given weight. Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, president of Johns Hopkins, was the only speaker but Harvard, Columbia, Chicago and Cincinnati all joined in the vigorous objection to Federal interference with the schools. Danger of political control was stressed by Dr. Goodnow. Infringement of the state's indisputable right to control elementary education within its borders was foreseen as an evil. Appropriation of $100,000,000 annually, conditioned as to distribution on equal appropriations by the subdivisions of states, was condemned as an indefensible policy in disposing of the public money which is contributing to the burden of Federal taxes. The arguments are all valid, but the overmastering objection is the menace of overcentralization, involving Federal intrusion in so intimate a domestic concern as education, with the incidental prospect of an attempt at a uniformity of instruction which would take no account of local needs.

Centralization of Power Called Great Issue Today

last word on the subject; but that the whole thing ought to be turned back to the States for each State to settle in accordance with the wants and needs of its own people. Then any State whose people wanted it could have it, but a State whose people didn't want it need not have it."

"Gov. Ritchie, you said in your Jefferson day speech that there ought to be a referendum to the people of each State before any further amendments to the Constitution are adopted. Will you enlarge on that?"

"Certainly," replied the Governor. "The Supreme Court has held that the act of a State Legislature in ratifying a proposed constitutional amendment is final and irrevocable. That may have been a wise provision in the light of history as it stood when our Constitution was adopted, because democratic Government had not then proved a success. But today four-fifths of the world is ruled by democratic Government. It is now a proved success, better than anything else which has been tried. When awakened, the popular voice can always be trusted.

Favors Amendment Referendums.

"It can be trusted better than the action of State Legislatures. A majority of the Legislatures in each of 36 of the States can ratify any amendment to the Constitution of the land which is submitted to them. In the 48 States there are about 7400 legislators, and you can secure a majority in each of 36 States if you have the votes of 2316 members.

"Think of that! Twenty-three hundred representatives out of 110,000,000 people can write into the organic law of the land any amendment they choose to ratify, without having figured in any campaign and without the opportunity of a referendum to the people.

"There could be no greater weapon in the hands of propagandists and organized minorities than that. And with exceptions so rare that they are conspicuous, the State Legislators yield to those influences.

"All that should stop. The way to stop it is to provide that hereafter there shall be no amendments to the Constitution unless each State is given the right to a referendum to its people from the action of its Legislature in ratifying any proposed amendment.

"The Legislautre makes the laws," said Gov. Richie in conclusion, "but the people make the Constitution. The people ought to be permitted to change their Constitution whenever they want and so often as they want and in whatever way they want. But they ought not to be made to live under any change in it unless they have the opportunity of saying at the polls whether they want to live under it or whether they do not."

How Grossman Pardon Was Due to Influence

ney-General Seymour, reading as follows:

"Ordinarily I would hesitate to grant leniency to Grossman. He is a bad egg. Judge Landis was, however, very drastic in the punishment imposed in these injunction cases. Special Assistant Middlekauff's recommendation created enough legal doubt to justify a pardon in which I concur.

When this view was called to the attention of Judge Landis, he denied that the penalty in Grossman's case was severe.

"I never," he said, "imposed a day's penalty of imprisonment upon a man who brewed a little domestic felicity for his own fireside. But I had the conviction that the way to enforce this law was to put the commercial violator in jail."

The testimony of James A. Finch, pardon attorney for the Department of Justice, given the early part of the week, was somewhat at variance with that of Judge Landis. Finch, quoting from Departmental records, declared that Grossman had been convicted on the testimony of Samuel Ball, then an employe in office of State's Attorney-General Brundage, which was later discredited—mostly by the alleged fact that Ball padded his expense account by putting down $1 for drinks, whereas the "going" price was 75 cents. Landis testified that there were six witnesses against Grossman.

Tried for Two Years.

Finch's testimony showed that Brundage, Middlekauff and Seymour tried for two years to get a pardon for Grossman.

After Grossman had been sentenced to one year to the House of Detention and fined $1000 by Judge Landis, he appealed to the Seventh District Court of Appeals, which sustained Landis' opinion.

After the trial in Landis' court, the newspapers gave much attention to the sentence. A prominent Judge in the Cook County Court of Appeals, whose name Finch said he did not know, was reported to have called upon Brundage the day after the trial and told Brundage that Ball was an exceedingly unreliable witness.

After the Court of Appeals had sustained Landis, Middlekauff wrote to the Department of Justice for instructions, stating that "my conscience tells me that Philip Grossman should not go to jail for one year on the ex-parte testimony of Samuel Ball."

He asked the department to permit him to confess to the court that the Government was in error so that the Circuit Court of Appeals mandate might not become operative. At this time Grossman was out on bond. The department is said to have replied that the better procedure would be to ask a pardon for Grossman, so on Aug. 23, 1922, Middlekauff petitioned the Attorney-General for a pardon. This petition bore the names of Homer Galpin, Republican boss of Chicago, and the alleged indorsement of Fred W. Upham.

Upham's Indorsement.

This indorsement read: "I have investigated this matter and think a pardon should be granted.

FRED W. UPHAM."

The petition was denied. Brundage also took the matter up by writing a letter to Attorney-General Daugherty recommending executive clemency. This letter was presented to President Harding, who on July 18 made the following indorsement:

"No further consideration can be given this case until some part of the sentence is served."

Seymour had recommended that the President act favorably upon the request.

This letter was accompanied by a letter, signed with the names of two Illinois Senators, to George B. Christian Jr., secretary to President Harding, dated May 23, 1923.

A copy of this letter is now on file in Senator McCormick's office, where it is said that the letter was written by McCormick's secretary, Gen. Dickson. The letter follows:

"My Dear Mr. Secretary:

"We, the undersigned Senators from Illinois, understand that the file on the Philip Grossman case, being applied for pardon, is about to be returned to the White House.

"We earnestly hope that after you have examined the file that you will be good enough to take the matter up with the President.

"Not the Usual Run."

"This is not the usual run of applications for pardon and is not based upon an appeal to the heart of the President, because of family connections, ill health and so forth, but is based upon what appears to be a grave injustice to Grossman.

"He was convicted and sentenced to one year upon the testimony of one witness, Samuel Ball, a former employe of the office of the Attorney-General of Illinois, who filed and prosecuted the Grossman case.

"After Grossman had been sentenced and after the District Court at Chicago had lost jurisdiction, Attorney-General Brundage discovered that Ball was thoroughly unreliable, and he was summarily discharged from the service of the State of Illinois, and Attorney-General Brundage of that State has declined to use Ball as a witness in any other pending cases in which evidence was procured by Ball. We understand further that the cases in which Ball is also a witness have been dismissed.

"Attorney-General Brundage, in view of his lack of confidence in Ball, has made a very strong recommendation for executive clemency, and we believe a careful examination of the files in this case will convince you, and the President also, that unless executive clemency is granted a grave injustice will be done. Sincerely.

"MEDILL McCORMICK."

"William B. McKinley."

Finch was uncertain how the case was called to the attention of President Coolidge and why the President granted a pardon after President Harding had twice refused to act.

On Dec. 31, 1923, Finch signed Attorney-General Daughterty's name to the following telegram to United States Marshal Levy:

"Imprisonment of Grossman is not necessary if fine is paid. Deliver warrant of commutation to Judge. Court will undoubtedly order his release from your custody.

"DAUGHERTY."

Marshal's Reply.

Levy wired back the same day that Grossman had not served any of his sentence and called attention to the fact that the records stated that commutation or pardon could not be granted until part of the time had been served.

The records did not show what answer was made to this.

Senator McCormick, who is in Chicago, has issued a statement denying knowledge of any letter to the President in Grossman's behalf. Regarding the letter to George Christian, the Senator's Washington secretary said that McCormick had been quoted in Chicago papers as saying that one of his secretaries had signed a "round robin" for Grossman's release. The secretary explained that this "round robin" was probably the letter which was in the Senator's files, and was thought to have been written by his secretary, Gen. Dickson.

Senator McKinley reiterated today that he had no knowledge of having written any letter asking a pardon for Grossman.

CANTON (O.) MAYOR REMOVED

Official and His Brother Charged With Neglect of Duty.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., May 3.—C. C. Curtis, Mayor of Canton, and his brother, E. E. Curtis, safety directory under his administration, were removed from office today by Gov. Donahey on charges of malfeasance, nonfeasance, neglect to enforce prohibition laws, gross neglect of duty and misconduct in office.

The Governor recommended a grand jury investigation.

On Verge of Fame As A Shakspearean Student

when these lines attracted my attention:

"'I may not evermore acknowledge thee,
Lest my bewailed guilt should do thee shame;
Nor thou with public kindness honour me,
Unless thou take that honour from thy name.'

"Obviously, if these lines were written by William Shakspeare, as they purported to be they were silly. Shakspeare rested under no 'bewailed guilt' of a sort that would disgrace a man whom he acknowledged as his benefactor, or who might publicly honor him. As a matter of fact, Shakspeare previously had publicly acknowledged Southampton by publicly dedicating to him the poems 'Venus and Adonis' and 'The Rape of Lucrece.' Nor was there any suggestion that the Earl was disgraced by this linking of their names."

From this beginning, Webster launched his investigation of the authorship of the Shakspearean literature.

His theory rests largely as is began under his interpretation of the sonnets, and in that respect, too, its originality consists. Earlier commentators have believed that Marlowe was the real "Shakspeare."

Mark Twain once suggested it. But Webster, so far as is known, was the first to discover an answer to the mystery in the sonnets. He often expressed his amazement at this. In view of the fact that so many Shakspearean students have been mystified by passages such as the above, and so many efforts, many of them ludicrous, have been made to explain them, Webster could not understand why nobody had attempted to explain them upon the ground of Marlowe's authorship, when, to his mind, they became so clear when read in that light.

Argument in Brief.

Perhaps the best brief statement of his argument and exposition is contained in an article which he wrote for the National Review, an ultra-conservative English periodical, and which appeared last September. A few excerpts must serve:

"The sonnets purport to be a story of Shakspeare's life from his own pen. That story conflicts with all the historic information we have of the Stratford genius, hence the difficulty of explaining it. The story is just as foreign to the history of Francis Bacon, Sir Walter Raleigh, the Earl of Oxford, and sundry others who have been suspected of hiding their poetic talent under the name of Shakspeare. It is caviar to all schools.

"In many sonnets the author protests that he is absent from England against his will. His name had received a brand and he was a lonely outcast, disgraced in the eyes of men. This alleged absence is an abysmal mystery to the scholars, who know nothing of such a period of exile in the career of the Swan of Avon."

From the 81st Sonnet.

Further on he quoted from the eighty-first sonnet, also indited to the Earl, the lines:

"Your name from hence immortal life shall have."
"Though I, once gone, to all the world must die."

And yet again, the separated lines:

"Your monument shall be my gentle verse."
"You still shall live, such virtue hath my pen."

Reverting to the melancholy plaint recorded in sonnet 36, Webster pointed out that the author evidently did not fear that Southampton would be disgraced by having verses dedicated to him by "William Shakspeare" because, "on the contrary, we find him asserting in other sonnets that they will immortalize Southampton. The bard must have known also that if they would immortalize the name of Southampton, they must, ipso facto, immortalize the name of William Shakspeare, which was signed to them as author. Therefore, when he says his own name was not William Shakspeare and that he adopted this pen name for the very good reason that he offers in sonnet 36 his bewailed guilt had disgraced his own name."

Life Story of Marlowe.

Coming then to the life story of Marlowe, as Webster reconstructed it from the evidence at hand, he wrote:

"Although born the same year as Shakspeare of Stratford, Marlowe's prolific and gifted pen had completely revolutionized English drama and established heroic blank verse through the media of such plays as "Tamburlaine," "Faustus," "The Jew of Malta" and "Edward II," before the name of Shakspeare appeared on the scene in 1593.

"In that memorable year Marlowe, at the age of 29, was recognized as the master of all English poets, the creative genius who had given English letters the heroic blank verse that all contemporary poets unhesitating adopted.

"Marlowe's glorious morning was suddenly turned to misery and disgrace. On March 20, 1593, one Richard Cholmelei was arrested for heresy and confessed that he had been converted to 'atheism' by Marlowe. This was, indeed, the worst disgrace conceivable and its usual punishment was burning at the stake.

"On April 28, following, the name of William Shakspeare made its first appearance in print as the author of the poem 'Venus and Adonis.' On May 18, a warrant for Marlowe's arrest was issued by the Privy Council, after Richard Bame, a professional spy, had filed a lengthy document with the councilors, impeaching Marlowe as a heretic. And 'Shakspeare' wrote in sonnet 125:

"'Hence thou suborned informer.
A true soul,
When most impeached, stands least in thy control.'

Arrest of Marlowe.

"On May 20 Marlowe was arrested at the home of Sir Thomas Walsingham, Chiselhurst, to which Bame had directed the bailiffs. He was produced before the Privy Council and was granted bail.

"On June 1 the bailiff reported that Marlowe had been stabbed to death by a 'bawdy serving man in a lewd brawl at a Deptford inn three miles from London.' No one was arrested for the killing, and no witness to the event is on record. At St. Nicholas' Church, Deptford, the register records the burial of 'Christopher Marlowe, slain by Francis Archer, the 1 of June, 1593,' but no grave in the churchyard was marked as Marlowe's."

In fine, Webster concluded, Marlawe was not killed at all. Either, he concluded, Marlowe jumped his bail, and the Bailiff hatched up the stabbing story to justify himself to the Councilors for not keeping a better watch on him, or, as Webster thought more likely, the Bailiff was bribed to make a false

MARKS SENT TO BERLIN BANK FOR SAFE-KEEPING 'ABSORBED'

St. Louisan Gets Notice His $900 Investment Is Written Off Books.

Persons who sent their German marks to a Berlin bank for safe-keeping got food for thought yesterday in a form letter including this paragraph:

"As a payment of this amount cannot any more be effected, owing to the great depreciation of the Reichsmark and, as also the general charges connected with further keeping your account would be against your interest we have decided to write off the balance, thereby closing your account."

John Leonard of 2043 Park avenue, who received such a letter, compared the typed-in note, "The postage on this letter cost 300,000,000,000 marks," with the caption giving capital and surplus of the bank as 3,527,950,000 marks, and wondered why they didn't write off that balance, too. His account of 5,041,500 marks represented an investment of $900.

GAYNOR CHORAL CLUB TO GIVE CONCERT IN WEBSTER MAY 13

Willard McGregor, Pianist, Will Make Farewell Appearance as Soloist.

The Gaynor Choral Club, under the direction of Leo Miller, will give its spring concert in Webster Groves on May 13. Willard McGregor, pianist, will be soloist, making his farewell appearance before leaving in June for two years' study in Europe.

Mrs. Frank Peterson will sing an incidental solo part in Horatio Parker's "Water Fay," and Miss Clare Schlief will have a solo in Debussy's "The Blessed Damosel." John Kiburz will play the flute obligato in Mrs. Dorothy Gaynor Blake's new choral work, "Oriental Night."

DEATH REVEALS NEWSPAPERMAN ON VERGE OF FAME

a very skeptical and often a scathing one, the quality of this praise can hardly be overestimated. L. J. Maxse, editor of the National Review, was another who admitted being deeply impressed with the former St. Louis City Hall reporter's Shakspearean investigations.

But Webster's health grew steadily worse. He underwent several painful and debilitating operations. Winter trips to Arizona and Florida failed to improve his condition. When too weak to walk he would sit all day reading, making notes and smoking his pipe. He never grew morose. His pungent humor did not forsake him, and he maintained to the full his native newspaperman interest in current events.

He died. Whether his notes and manuscript will yet be arranged and published is to be decided by his father and brothers. Time will determine whether it entitles his name to a place in the [illegible] halls of fame. In the hearts of the newspaper men who saw him daily for many years under the trying circumstances that attend getting out of five or six editions in five or six hours and who knew his exquisite gentleness and his courage, he has a place already.

Simple Home Treatment For Swollen Veins

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that many physicians are now prescribing.

Ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. Emerald Oil is a powerful, yet harmless germicide and results are guaranteed.

CHILDREN TO PRESENT SONG AND DANCE FROLIC

'The Seasons' to Be Given by Mrs. Bambridge's Pupils at Shubert-Jefferson, May 8.

Mrs. K. B. Bambridge will present her pupils in "The Seasons," a song and dance frolic, at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater next Thursday night. The little musical play is told in four episodes each representing a season and the songs and dances will be appropriate to the time of the year. A butterfly number and a "snow shower" in which a large sleigh filled with tiny children will be drawn on the stage, are to be features of the entertainment.

The dances and songs were arranged by Mrs. Bambridge and the music was arranged by John Bambridge.

Dies After Taking Poison.

Joseph Merlo, 5233 Delmar boulevard, died at the city hospital yesterday from arsenic which he had taken Friday. He refused assistance from the first and antidotes had to be administered forcibly. He gave no explanation of his act.

BOSS PENDERGAST REACHES OUT FOR NATIONAL POWER

Throwing of His Vote to Hay at Springfield Viewed as Effort to Placate Rural Opposition.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

Boss Tom Pendergast's action at the Democratic State convention in Springfield in throwing to Charles M. Hay, for delegate-at-large to the national convention, the full vote of the Fifth District delegation, is beginning to have a greater significance in State politics than being merely a city boss, recognition of "a game and fair fighter," or than being merely a desire for revenge on State Chairman Frank H. Farris and Charles H. Mayer of St. Joseph.

It is now being looked upon as the opening wedge in a small boss' ambition to placate opposition that he may become a big boss, that he might be in Missouri what the late Charles F. Murphy was in New York, what George Brennan is in Illinois and what Tom Taggart is in Indiana.

Kemper His Ally.

With a close political ally, with whom he has worked in politics for many years, a member of the Democratic National Committee in the person of William T. Kemper, Pendergast, whose political control in the past has been confined largely to Kansas City undoubtedly is in a much better position to branch out into more extended fields. He will have the ear of the Democratic National Committeeman in matters of appointments if the Democrats come into power nationally, and he will be in position to have a part in organization affairs of the party nationally.

Real political bosses ordinarily do not care to be members of the National committee, and undoubtedly Pendergast had no desire for the place for himself. Murphy, long boss in New York, was not a member of the committee, nor is Brennan in Illinois nor Taggert in Indiana. Pendergast and Kemper, the new committeeman from Missouri who will succeed Edward F. Goltra at the National convention, have been linked in nearly every political campaign in Kansas City in a number of years. Their only difference has been over Senator Reed, and they did not fall out about that. Pendergast supported Reed and Kemper opposed him, but there was nothing in that situation to prevent Pendergast going all the way with his Kansas City delegation to elect Kemper to the National committee.

With Pendergast in touch with the national organization, the connection which has existed for many years between the Democratic organization in St. Louis and that in Kansas City is expected to become even closer. St. Louis, except for a partial support of Goltra on the first ballot at the State convention, worked with Pendergast for Kemper. The inclination of the organization Democrats in St. Louis is to go where Pendergast and Joseph B. Shannon, his co-boss in Kansas City, lead, or when they fall out to go with one of them.

The Rural Situation.

But there never has been a close following by rural Democrats of the Kansas City boss. In fact, in many sections of the State a knowledge that Pendergast was supporting a particular candidate had the effect of driving from that candidate much support he otherwise would have had. And of course the converse also is true. Pendergast's support usually meant the lining up of many rural politicians who wanted to be "with the winner" and who believed the power wielded by Pendergast in Kansas City would mean the success in the primary of any candidate he supported.

The politicians are beginning to talk now that the Prendergast support of Hay was a wily scheme to court favor in rural Missouri, where Hay has a large following, to the end that there might be a lessening of the opposition to Pendergast because of his city boss reputation, and that it may have a real effect on the campaign for the nomination for Governor this Pendergast has not openly espoused the cause of any candidate but the word has been passed through the under-currents of politics to all parts of the State that the Pendergast strength will be thrown to Dr. Arthur W. Nelson of Bunceton and that with Nelson's admitted strength in the rural sections, where he is running as the farmer candidate, it will be sufficient to win the nomination for him.

It has frequently been reported from Kansas City that under no conditions would Pendergast support Floyd E. Jacobs of Kansas City, whose political fortunes for years have been thrown with Shannon. Jacobs has not attempted to reach the Pendergast organization, apparently believing his best chance to be to make an active campaign of the State in an effort to build up a following which would force the party organizations in the big cities to come to his support before the day of the primary.

Jacobs Making Progress.

Jacobs has been pounding away, delivering from two to a half dozen speeches a day, and making progress. Nelsen has been campaigning principally through farmers' organizations and by correspondence, with a visit or two to Pendergast.

While the campaign is just warming up, it is being accepted generally as a contest between Nelson and Jacobs with George H. Moore of St. Louis, formerly Collector of Internal Revenue, having a very considerable support in the eastern half of the State, which so far has hardly been touched by Nelson or Jacobs.

A possible weakness of Nelson is that he has been known as contributor, either of money or time, to the party organization, but that is much less a weakness now than it was a few years ago when nominations were made by party conventions. However, Jacobs Moore have been more closely tified with party organization

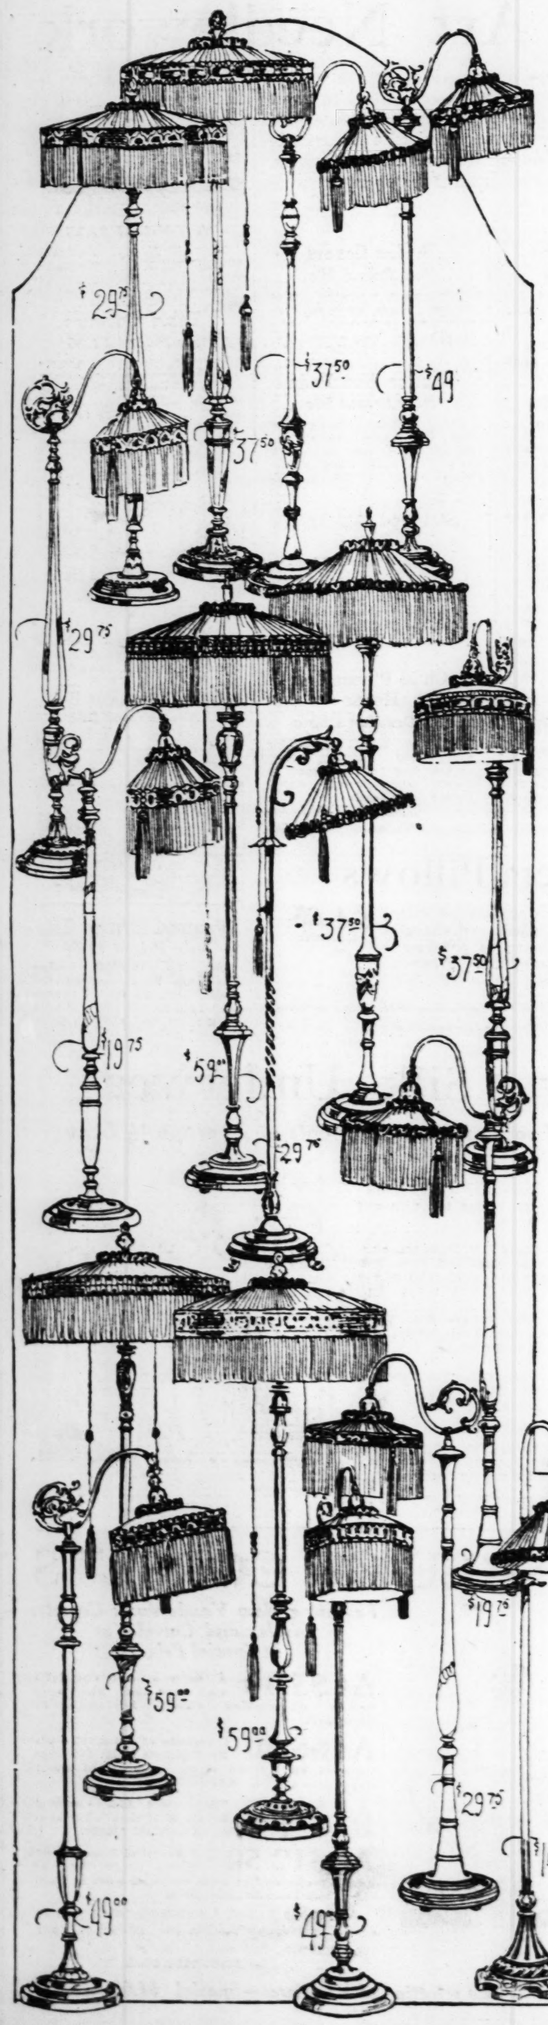
"St. Louis' Greatest Lamp Sale"



Starts Monday Morning—Featuring

ALMCO LAMPS

—A $25,000.00 Purchase

In Five Groups Representing Savings That Average Nearly One-Half

HERE is Lamp news that rivals anything since the days of Aladdin!

There have been Lamp Sales before; you have read about them, attended them; but you never heard of, read about or attended a Lamp Sale such as this.

It is the biggest Lamp purchase in the history of Vandervoort's and one of the largest shipments ever made from the Almco Studios and the only time that such a tremendous quantity of new Almco Lamps has been offered in St. Louis at such remarkable savings.

You have only to compare Almco Lamps with other makes to realize why they are called "the most beautiful Lamps in America"

The Almco people have completely revolutionized the lamp industry. They have made the lamp a thing of exquisite grace and beauty—an important unit in the scheme of interior decoration.

Almco lamps are so beautiful that people today are buying two, three and four lamps where a few years back they bought only one.

The unusual beauty of Almco lamps is due to the extensive use of hand carving and hand metal work on the bases. The individual touch which this gives to the lamps is further accentuated by the carefully chosen fabrics used for the shades—and their softly blended colorings, and the marvelous needlework with which they are finished.

The perfect proportions and harmony of line and coloring found in Almco lamps are the result of designing the whole lamps—shade and all—AS ONE COMPLETE UNIT.

Both Bridge and Juniors in 5 Feature Groups

Group 1— Regular $25 Almco Lamps	Group 2— Regular $35 Almco Lamps	Group 3— Regular $40 Almco Lamps	Group 4— Regular $50 Almco Lamps	Group 5— Regular $60 Almco Lamps
$14.75	$19.75	$24.75	$29.75	$37.50

Limited Quantity Groups, Special at $49, $59, $64.75 and $69.75

Every Lamp Complete With Shade and Pull Cords

Thirty-three styles are illustrated. The price under each Lamp includes the shade. Every Almco Lamp is carved by hand where such decoration is used. They are all hand decorated. Piped throughout and weighted to prevent tipping; wired to stand underwriter's inspection. All joints soldered and association sockets and plugs used. Shades innerlined and strictly hand tailored.

This tremendous display of Lamps will reach the entire length of our Fourth Floor, both in the North and South Aisles and in the East and West Aisles. In addition, they will stretch across the entire block across our First Floor.

You have never seen such a display of Lamps as will greet you at 9:00 o'clock Monday morning

Unusually Large Number of St. Louisans Plan to Pass Summer in Foreign Travel

Olympic Games in Paris, Advertising Men's Convention in London and Great Empire Exhibition at Wembley Among Attractions That Will Lure Many to Europe.

THE call which Europe makes to society birds of passage is particularly strong this year, and new records may be set, not only for volume of steamship travel but for dullness at home and gayety abroad. The Olympic games in Paris, the Bar Association and the advertising men's convention in London, the British Empire Exposition at Wembley make a battery of attractions almost irresistable to those persons who can afford to sail the many leagues of blue sea water which lie between us and those non-Volstead lands.

In addition to those who go on special missions, there will be the usual large number of former soldiers, now resting from the wars, who will take their wives across to show the exact spot where the conflict was won, and the identical cafe in which this or that fortunate meeting occurred.

An interesting trip has been planned by Dr. and Mrs. Given Campbell of Webster Groves. They will go East June 2, to spend a few days at Woodstock, Vt., before sailing, June 11, from Montreal. Their itinerary while abroad will include a visit to William Woods Bliss, United States Minister of Sweden, a cousin of Dr. Campbell, who makes his home in Stockholm. They will be away until September.

Miss Marianne Coleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Coleman of 5042 Washington boulevard, who was recently chosen class beauty at Mary Institute, will spend the summer in Europe with her mother after her graduation in June. She will enter Vassar College in September.

Mr. and Mrs. John Howard Holmes and their daughter, Miss Mary Brook Holmes, will sail July 1, returning in time for Miss Holmes to enter Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., this fall.

An unusually large group will depart that month. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee, with their two sons; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Kennard and their son Samuel M. Jr.; the George H. Steedmans and their daughters, Misses Katherine and Medora; Mrs. Edward F. Goltra and Mrs. J. Dwight Dana are planning to leave during the first week. Mrs. Dana and Mrs. Goltra will sail July 5, and the latter's older son, Richard, will spend his vacation from college over there with a classmate.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Holliday plan to sail in July. A trip to Europe is quite a usual thing with them, for Mrs. Holliday's sister, Lady Peek, and Sir Wilfred, make their home in London, and visits are often exchanged. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. White will sail July 2 after the festivities incident to the wedding of Mrs. White's sister, Miss Lucy Weisiger, and J. H. McNaugher, June 5, have subsided.

Mrs. Catherine Lumaghi Drew and Miss Mayme Lumaghi, with Mrs. Daniel Bordley of New York will sail late in May to join Mrs. Teresa Lumaghi for an indefinite stay abroad. They will join Teresa Lumaghi, a sister of Mrs. Drew, and Miss Lumaghi, who has been there several weeks. Mrs. Lumaghi had an interesting stay in the Holy Land during the Easter season, and attended

Miss Glory Huckins of Oklahoma City, who will arrive tomorrow to visit Miss Elizabeth Tupper.

Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd has been appointed chairman of the Women's Bishop Tuttle Memorial Committee, which will co-operate with the general committees in the campaign for the Bishop Tuttle National Memorial and Endowment Fund. A building is to be erected in connection with Christ Church Cathedral for general church and community use in memory of the great churchman who was a national figure for many years. Mrs. Mudd has asked the following to serve on her committee: Mmes. Samuel C. Davis, Henry Clarkson Scott, George Warren Brown, George C. Hitchcock, Robert Burkham, Newton Wilson, John T. Davis Jr., C. R. McDonald, Charles Pope O'Fallon, Clay E. Jordan, Frank Crunden and Frank V. Hammar. Mrs. Mudd will also have a Woman's Executive Committee composed of prominent women in the various Episcopal Church parishes.

The Wednesday Club will hold its annual inauguration ceremonies in the garden of Mrs. George T. Moore, 2361 Tower Grove avenue, on Saturday, May 10, at 3 o'clock. Following the installation of the newly elected directors, a play, "Mother Goose Garden," from "Told in a Chinese Garden and Other Plays," by Constance Grenell Wilcox, will be presented. The characters are as follows:

People of Mother Goose Inn.

Mother Goose.....Mrs. Robert Atkinson
Mother Hubbard..Mrs. Herman von Schrenk
Simple Simon.....Dr. Arthur Proetz
Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary—
Miss Gertrude Walther
Little Tommy Tucker.....John Boyd

Livingston-Robertson Nuptials Open May Season of Weddings

Marriage of Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Livingston at St. Peter's Episcopal Church a Colorful and Elaborate Event.

A VERY diminutive bride, fluffy in quantities of filmy tulle with which her gown was fashioned, with enough orange blossoms to add the conventional touch, and almost covered by a cloud of tulle veiling, was the central figure last night in one of the first May weddings of the season. Miss Marjorie Livingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dalzell Livingston and one of the best amateur fancy dancers in society, was married in St. Peter's Episcopal Church to William Bryan Robertson. The Rev. Dr. Edward Travers officiated. A large bridal party preceded her down the long aisle to the chancel, the spring flowers carried by the bridesmaids giving the color note to the procession. Mrs. Donald Hudson of Tampico, Mexico, was her sister's matron of honor, and she, with Mrs. Norton Schuyler, another sister, of Clinton, Mo.; Miss Mildred Edwards of Kansas City, and Miss Katherine Farrar, wore beige georgette over flesh colored satin slips. They were fashioned quaintly with tight bodices and lace berthas drooping over the shoulders after the mode of 1830. The skirts were of the double, full variety, and the slippers and hose of flesh color. Their large hats matched the gowns, and with the exception of the matron of honor, whose ribbons were blue, a broad band of coral pink ribbbon drawn across the crown of each fell through a slot in the brim and cascaded to the floor into a train. The young women carried delphinium Ophelia roses and Snapdragons tied to match their trains. Margaret Salmon of Jefferson City, a cousin of the bride, and Nancy Powell wore frocks of pink organdie banded with lace, and made with pink sashes and puff sleeves. With these they wore poke bonnets and carried baskets of pink sweet peas and roses. Dalzell Schuyler, a niece of the bride, as flower girl, wore pink voile and Irish lace with a poke bonnet to match, trimmed in French flowers. She carried a Colonial bouquet.

the religious celebration in Jerusalem. Mrs. Boardley will depart today for her home after a visit here. Mrs. Eugene Cuendet will make the trip in July, taking with her her daughters, Misses Rachel Lee and Elizabeth Cuendet.

A large contingent also plans to sail this month. Mrs. Henry Elliot and her daughter, Miss Georgia, will depart soon, and Mrs. Stanley Stoner will join her daughter, Miss Marion, now in school in Italy; Mrs. J. W. Jacob and Miss Grace Bell will leave St. Louis in a few days. Mrs. George Castleman sailed yesterday on the Minnewaska and Mrs. Samuel W. Fordye will spend the month with relatives in England.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Goddard will visit the latter's sister, who has a country home near Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Sterling E. Edmunds and their daughter, Miss Eugenie, will sail early in the summer. The F. A. Luyties family—Mr. and Mrs. Luyties, Miss Elizabeth and W. H. Luyties—will spend August in England, and Mrs. George W. Perry and her daughter, Miss Marguerite; Miss Henriette de Penaloza and Mme. Karst, and Mr. and Mrs. George Meredith Block will spend the late summer in foreign travel.

Mrs. Joseph Gilman Miller has already sailed, as have Mr. and Mrs. George Mepham, their niece, Miss Beatrice Thomas, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bray. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Clark and Mrs. Clark's mother, Mrs. Sproule, are over there, and among those planning to go are Mr. and Mrs. Henry McCree and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel K. Catlin. The John Overall family will go early and will join her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Gustavo di Rosa, in France. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burkham and their daughter, Miss Margaret, will spend the summer in European travel.

Two of next year's buds—Misses Marjorie Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alden H. Little, and Miss Marie Louise Cotter, daughter of William Cotter, will sail July 5 with the latter's sister, Miss Leota Cotter, to remain until September.

In addition, Mr. and Mrs. Clay E. Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Klipstein and their daughter, Miss Julia; Mrs. Charles L. Manter and her daughter, Miss Harriet; Misses Mary Louise and Florence Van Sickler and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Searcy will sail within a few weeks.

LIVINGSTON-ROBERSON NUPTIALS OPEN MAY SEASON OF WEDDINGS

The bride, with a five-yard lace and tulle court train trailing from her shoulders, was given away by her father. The bodice of her gown was of Callot satin, its lower edge covered with orange blossoms which also decorated the many-layered tulle skirt and were sewn in tiny wreaths on the train. A rose point lace bertha characterized the low necked bodice. In keeping with the quaintness of the costume her flowers were gardenias and valley lilies in an old-fashioned round bouquet.

John M. Robertson was his brother's best man, and the groomsmen were Norton Schuyler, Donald Hudson, Frank Robertson, Christy Farrar, Ben Thomas and John Janes.

A reception followed at the Livingston home, 40 Kingsbury place. Butterfly roses and smilax made the rooms more attractive, while the reception table was adorned with white roses and lilies of the valley with silver candelabra. The fruit cake given to the guests was made in Mexico for the occasion.

After a three weeks' honeymoon, which will include a short sea voyage, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson will make their home with her parents for a short time.

Mr. Robertson is the Major commanding the 110th Observation Squadron, Air Service, Thirty-fifth Division and during the war was an aviator.

One of the early spring charities in St. Louis is a special exhibition and sale of imported Russian embroideries, Russian Batiks, raffia bags and other articles to be held under the auspices of the American Mission to Poland, Tuesday and Wednesday, next, in the parlors of St. John's Methodist Church, from 10 to 4 o'clock. The articles are made by members of more than 800 families belonging to the old order of Russian aristocracy now exiled into Poland and the proceeds will go toward alleviating their distress. The exiles are for the most part in deserted internment camps, where whole families are living in a small room in one of the barracks.

Luncheon will be served on Tuesday. The general committee in charge comprises Mmes. John W. Anderson, H. Murray French, Emmett M. Myers, Glenn C. Hill, Luther Ely Smith, Benton H. Pollock, Joseph R. Barroll Jr., Ivan Lee Holt, Carrington Cabell, H. P. Barton, L. Guy Blackmer, Joseph W. Lewis, B. C. Jinkins, Frank B. Alice Hough. John C. Wilkinson Waddock, W. W. Oliver and Miss represents the mission.

ENGAGEMENTS AND RECENT WEDDINGS IN ST. LOUIS

Miss Katherine Louise Russell, daughter of John Bent Russell of 3958 Lindell boulevard, became the bride at 8 o'clock yesterday morning of John William Cooper of St. Louis, formerly of Nicholville, Ky. The ceremony was performed in St. Francis Xavier's Church by the Rev. Father J. J. O'Brien, in the presence of the families and close friends. Mrs. Charles Whitfield Collier came from Pittsburg to be her sister's matron of honor. She wore green crepe with a horsehair braid hat and carried Ward roses.

The bride was gowned in blue crepe romaine embroidered in two shades of blue. Her hat was gray lace trimmed with blue flowers and she carried orchids and lilies of the valley. Edmond A. B. Garesche was best man.

Following the ceremony a breakfast was given at the Forest Park Hotel, and Mr. and Mrs. Cooper departed on a wedding trip. They will make their home at 4354 Forest Park boulevard. Mr. Cooper is a graduate of the University of Kentucky.

The engagement of Miss Mary Hope, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hope of 5711 Chamberlain avenue and Dr. Alfred Poyneer Briggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Briggs of Dixon, Cal., was made known yesterday when her mother entertained in her honor with a luncheon bridge at the Forest Park Hotel. Miss Hope was graduated from Mary Institute and Washington University, and is a member of the Pi Beta Phi fraternity. Dr. Briggs, who has been residing in St. Louis for the last five years, is a graduate of the Washington University School of Medicine, and is engaged there in experimental medicine.

Those present at the luncheon were: Misses Ethel Hope, Margaret Pottenger, Dorothy Jackes, Margaret Martin, Peggy Moffat, Mary Green, Ellen Richardson, Julia Griswold, Margaret Knight, Ruth Hammerstein and Mmes. Elmer H. Grimm, Albert E. Happel, Monroe C. Lewis, James V. Dunbar, Carl E. Finch, Edwin H. Hilmer, A. E. French, Paul S. Barker, W. C. Payne, Kenneth C. Baker, Harold H. Knight, Thomas H. Galleher, Percy R. Blackmer, Herbert Hausman, Ralph F. Gildehaus and Archibald C. Loud.

The marriage of Miss Catherine Fuller Lautz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Lautz, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Robert Lee Hedges, Jr., of St. Louis, was solemnized Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. W. Hamilton Benham, officiating. The bride wore a hand embroidered cream net gown over flesh color and cream chiffon with a bertha of rose point lace. A garden hat of cream taffeta trimmed with French flowers completed the costume. She carried an arm bouquet of orchids, sweet peas, lilies of the valley, and spring flowers tied with pink and lavender ribbon. She was attended by her sister, Miss Charlotte W. Lautz, gowned in corn flower blue crepe with deep ecru lace bertha and full skirt banded with lace, a girdle of French flowers, in the pastel shades adorned the waist line. She carried a bouquet of flame colored sweet peas tied with ribbon to match. John A. Lautz was best man.

Out of town guests at the ceremony included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Hedges of St. Louis; Miss Dorothy Smith, of Morrison, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Van Horn Ely, of Haverford, Pa., John B. Williams of Narberth, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Hood and Miss Marjorie Howell of Seneca Falls, N. Y., Mrs. Charles Hamlin and Mrs. Henry I. Foote of Cleveland, O., and Mrs. Thomas McCabe of Toronto, Ont., Canada.

A reception followed the ceremony. The house decorations were spring flowers. The bride's table, with covers for 16, was centered with a mound of spring flowers and was lighted with candles.

Mr. and Mrs. Hedges will be at the home after June 15 in St. Louis.

At an informal tea Sunday afternoon, April 27, the engagement of Miss Edith Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Welch, and Frank S. Parker, both of Webster Groves, was announced. The house was decorated in lilacs and roses and to each guest was given a rose with a card attached, bearing the two names. Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Leslie Johnson, Misses Marie Burke, Viola Reitter, Genivieve Landry and Gladys McGuigan. Miss Welch, in a party with Miss Burke and Miss Reitter, will sail June 28 for Europe.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Marietta C. Cranston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cranston of 1399 Belt avenue, and William A. Geary of St. Louis. The wedding will take place in June.

C. J. Kecoe of 4394 West Pine boulevard announces the marriage of his niece, Miss Jeannette Kehoe, and Dr. Henry Hasset, Tuesday at 8 o'clock in the New Cathedral. The couple are in Chicago on their honeymoon trip, and will make their home at the Commodore Apartments. Dr. Hasset is an alumnus of St. Louis University.

The engagement of Miss Katherine Frees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Frees of 4943 Lindell boulevard, and Marcus Allan Jacobson is announced. Mr. Jacobson is the son of Isaac Jacobson of Leeds, England. The arrangements for the wedding have not been announced.

The marriage of Miss Emily Rose Madden and Thomas Kendrick Costello took place April 23 at the Church of St. Rose, the Rev. Father J. J. McGlynn officiating. A wedding breakfast for members of the two families followed at the Coronado Hotel. The bride wore a cocoa colored brocaded crepe gown, with a picture hat of the same shade, and carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses. She was attended by Miss Mary Kirby, who was gowned in poudre blue brocade and hat to match. She carried sunburst roses. Robert Baxter Brown was best man. Upon their return from a motor trip to Canada, the couple will make their home at 5964 Woodland place.

The marriage of Miss Hildegarde Weber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Weber of Kingshighway Park, and Meinoff J. Krekeler, son of Joseph Krekeler, took place on April 23 at Saint Cecelia's Church. The Rev. J. B. Benten officiating. Miss Paula Diez was bridesmaid and Herbert W. Weber, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Charles W.

The Genuine Silmerine Hair Curling Method

If your hair is straight, flat, dull looking, you need not be asked if you long to possess perpetually wavy, soft, glossy, beautiful tresses. What to do? Take a clean toothbrush, dip it in a saucer of pure liquid silmerine and run this through the hair just before doing it up. This will give you a real surprise. Your hair will have a prettier and more natural-looking curl and luster than it has ever had before—and there will be nothing streaky, sticky, greasy or anything unpleasant about it. A few ounces of liquid silmerine from your druggist will last for months. This is just the finest thing imaginable for the purpose and it keeps the hair in curl a considerable time.

ENGAGEMENTS AND RECENT WEDDINGS IN ST. LOUIS

Weber and William Malverd Schnyder.

The bride wore a gown of bridal satin with a court train of the material. The bridal veil, which was worn by the bride's mother, was arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms and fell over the length of the court train. The shower bouquet was of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore an apricot colored chiffon frock of colonial style, with hat to match and carried an old-fashioned bouquet.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents to members of both families and a few intimate friends of the bride. The out of town guests were Mrs. T. P. Ferry of Denver, Colo., and Miss Lillian Trog of Chicago. Mr. Krekeler and his bride are spending their honeymoon at Niagara Falls and in Canada.

Mrs. A. Silverman of 1419 South Broadway announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Leah, to Perry S. Feldman of New Orleans, La. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Word has been received by Mrs. Kate Kennedy Hazlitt of 1119 Aubert avenue of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Emily Louise Kennedy, to Jack Francis Fields of Los Angeles, Cal. They are making an extensive motor trip through the West and will be at home after June 15 at 808 Brett street, Inglewood, Cal.

Dr. David M. Gibson, formerly of 4337 Washington boulevard, and Miss Irene Kemmerle of Iowa City, Ia., were married at the home of the bride's parents yesterday. They have departed on their honeymoon and will reside in Chicago, where Dr. Gibson is superntendent of St. Luke's Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Orenstein of 711 Eastgate avenue, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Irene Orenstein, and Louis Karpf, son of Mrs. Adela Karpf of 1221 Blackstone avenue.

Miss Agnes Schmitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schmitt of 3517A Alberta street, was married to Hugh F. Englerth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Englerth of 2606 Minnesota avenue, Wednesday. The ceremony was performed in St. Anthony's Church by the Rev. Father Bernard and a breakfast for the two families followed at the Schmitt home. Miss Clara Schmitt, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Frank Englerth, the bridegroom's brother, best man. The bride wore a crepe satin gown trimmed with pearls, and made with a long train hanging from the shoulders. Her veil was of rose point lace and orange blossoms. She wore the bridegroom's gift, a strand of pearls, and carried lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore a pale pink dress trimmed with ostrich, with hat to match. She carried roses and sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. Englerth have departed for Chicago on their honeymoon and on their return will reside in Pinckneyville, Ill.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Clara Horn of Olivette, Mo., and Lawrence D. McLafferty, son of Mr. and Mrs. U. H. McLafferty of 6724 Marmaduke avenue. The wedding will take place soon.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Schweizer of 1246 Amherst place announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lena Schweizer, and Milton Marcus, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Marcus of 5203 Virginia avenue.

Miss Jennie Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cohen of 5129 Vernon avenue, has chosen June 18 as the date of her wedding to Harold Franzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Franzel. The ceremony will take place at the Gatesworth Hotel. The bride will be attended by her sisters, Misses Blanche and Goldye Cohen, and Miss Adeline Franzel, sister of the prospective bridegroom.

The College Club will hold its annual business meeting Tuesday. Standing and special committees will give their reports; election of officers and nomination and election of a nominating committee will take place and action will be taken on the question of proposed membership in the St. Louis Council of organizations promoting peace. Mrs. Charles E. Witter will be hostess with Mrs. Charles Collins Franklin Miller, Leslie Purdom and Miss Anita Weakley as assisting hostesses. The College Club Buying Compaign for the National Club House Fund has been extended to June 1. The annual luncheon will take place May 17 in the ballroom of the Hotel Chase the program will be in the hands of the dramatic committee. Announcement of the scholarship awards for 1924-1925 will be made.

The Musical Research Club will give its annual concert Thursday at 8:15 p. m. at the Wednesday Club auditorium.

The Gama Delphian Chapter met Monday at the Barr Branch Library with Mrs. B. W. Follenius presiding. Palestine and the Hebrews was discussed. General theme, "A Civilization Developed and Dominated by a Spiritual Religion." Those participating were Mmes. Katherine Gale, Robert Wycoff, Fannie Fleming, Albert Schacht, B. W. Follenius, Bennie Pesnelle, Harry Loud and Florence Richardson.

The Wanderers met at the home of Mrs. John L. Phelps, 36 Aberdeen place. Election of officers was held with Miss Mary Miller, president; Mrs. W. E. Hudson, vice president; Mrs. H. R. Murray, secretary, and Mrs. W. B. Upton, treasurer. Mrs. C. E. M. Champ read a paper on "Noah and His Sons," and current topics were treated by Mrs. Upton. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Upton in Collinsville, Ill., Wednesday.

The Tuesday Club of Kirkwood was entertained at luncheon Tuesday by Mrs. Gano Bryan and Mrs. Sterling at Mrs. Bryan's home, Scott avenue. The annual business meeting was held with election of officers and the reading of committee reports.

Every dish in your pantry proves that a rounded corner is cleaner than a square one. Sharp corners hold dirt. Rounded corners can be wiped by a single sweep of a cloth.

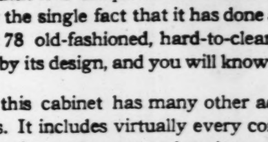
The Kitchen Maid has rounded corners. It is the only kitchen cabinet built with this modern labor-saving advantage which means complete cleanliness.

IF YOU have an average-sized kitchen and want to put an unusually fine kitchen cabinet in it, then choose this Kitchen Maid.

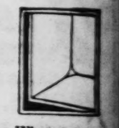
The experience of thousands of women who have used this cabinet will prove to you that it is unique in cleanliness. Consider the single fact that it has done away with 78 old-fashioned, hard-to-clean corners by its design, and you will know why.

But this cabinet has many other advantages. It includes virtually every convenience of arrangement and equipment. It is roomy—and yet compact, to go in smaller wall space and floor space.

See all the Kitchen Maids at a Kitchen Maid dealer's.



78 dirt-catching corners are eliminated by the rounded inside corner and no-panel doors of the Kitchen Maid, "as smooth as a table top."



Who wants to dig out an old-fashioned corner, when the Kitchen Maid has all inside corners rounded, like the inside of a bowl?

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads—that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

Most unusual price concessions given us by a leading Lamp manufacturer, because of the largest purchase of Lamp Shades and Bases we have ever made, enables us to establish the lowest price levels that we have ever known in the history of Lamp merchandising. You will find this a timely opportunity to purchase Lamps of unusual distinction for June wedding gifts.

Bases and Shades will all be sold in separate groups. Many of the Shades have been individually made for us and are shown in only one of a kind. The fine quality of materials and workmanship will instantly reveal their superiority. We feel confident that we cannot overstate the advantages to be derived from purchases made in this, our greatest Lamp sale.

Shades, $19.95
Of best quality silk and Georgette, with silk and bullion fringe, many individual Shades are shown in only one of a kind. The newest pleated effects reveal exquisite workmanship.

Our Advance Showing and Annual May Sale of Fur Garments

Authentic Styles for the Winter Season 1924-25

May 5th to 10th; daily, 9:30 to 12; 2 to 5

THIS Exposition is primarily for the purpose of enabling our patrons to remodel their fur garments before placing them in cold storage. Advance models embodying the newest ideas will be brought to us personally by a leading New York manufacturer, and from these you may pattern your own garments, secure in the knowledge that you are following the latest style dictates.

During this sale we are giving special prices on all orders that are placed. Garments will be made to your order from selected skins; linings and every detail will be carried out in accordance with your requests. Garments displayed may be ordered at especially low prices. All remodeling and repairing of your own fur garments will be done at Summer rates.

Garments purchased during this sale will be held for you free of charge in our Cold Storage Vaults during the Summer months, and charges placed on your Winter account.

Our Dry-Cold Air Storage Vaults

—will protect your furs, your rugs, your Winter garments and draperies

From Moth, Fire and Theft

Each article you send us will be cleansed from loose dust and soot by our electric vacuum process before being hung safely away in our airtight vaults.

CLUBS AND THEIR ACTIVITIES IN ST. LOUIS

The St. Louis Chapter, D. A. R., will meet May 16 at the Jefferson Memorial at 2 o'clock. Reports of delegates to the national convention will be given.

A called board meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Joseph T. McAdoo on Thursday, May 1.

Mrs. James H. McCabe, 5611 Bartmer avenue, entertained at her home an "Arrow Rock Tavern Rag Rug" party on April 14.

The Monday Club of Webster Groves installed its new officers for the coming year at its annual luncheon: President, Mrs. Wm. John Parker; first vice-president, Mrs. Wm. C. Goodlet; second vice-president, Mrs. John Q. Patterson; recording secretary, Mrs. William V. Kopfstein; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ernest M. Leonard; treasurer, Mrs. Walton J. Wright, and auditor, Mrs. Wm. A. Stine.

Mrs. Malcolm Robb, dramatic reader, gave "The Pied Piper of Hamelin," and Mrs. Wm. Black sang. The Parliamentary Law Class closed its year with a luncheon in honor of its leader, Mrs. N. P. Zimmer, to whom was presented a gift in appreciation of her splendid work.

The Earnest Endeavor Club gave a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Busy Bee Tea Rooms before the regular meeting. Mrs. Gordon Z. Davis presided. Reports of committees were given and committees were appointed for the coming year. The next meeting will be held at Vandervoort's tomorrow at 1:30 p. m.

The Matthew Fontaine Maury Chapter, U. D. C., celebrated its second anniversary, April 24, by giving a luncheon for its members and guests at Forest Park Hotel, preceded by an informal reception.

The guests of honor were representatives of the State Society and the local chapters in St. Louis. The State society was represented by Mrs. H. S. O'Bannon, State Chaplain; the Margaret McLure Chapter by Mrs. Thomas F. Browne; the Confederate Dames Chapter by Mrs. C. A. Mareno. The table decorations were in red and white and flags were placed in dining room.

A special feature was the first public display of the handsome silk Confederate flag presented to the chapter by Mrs. Lorraine Jones in memory of her late husband, Capt. Lorraine F. Jones. Mrs. W. L.

CLUBS AND THEIR ACTIVITIES IN ST. LOUIS

Kline, the president, introduced the Rev. James L. Fowle of the Central Presbyterian Church, who gave an address on "Mothers of the Confederacy."

The program included a piano duet by Mrs. W. A. Taylor and Mrs. J. C. Wasson, and songs by Mrs. Clarence Robbins.

The Wednesday Club held its annual election and business meeting on Wednesday, April 30. Mrs. E. R. Rombauer presided. Reports of the various officers, committee chairmen and section chairmen were heard.

The following were elected as directors for a term of two years: Mmes. A. V. L. Brokaw, J. L. Munger, E. C. Klipstein, C. A. Houts and Miss Mildred McCluney; to the Membership Committee for a term of three years, Mrs. Theodore P. Conant and Miss Annie E. Lewis; to the House Committee for a term of three years, Mmes. Harry M. Pflager, Felix Anderson and E. W. Le Beaume.

Mrs. Richard Jones was elected as delegate to accompany the president to the biennial of the G. F. W. C. in Los Angeles in May.

Mrs. F. H. Dodge was elected to fill the vacancy in the Membership Committee caused by the resignation of Miss Sarah Tower.

The Douglas Oliver chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution gave a luncheon at the Gatesworth Hotel Monday, complimenting the new State regent, Mrs. W. W. Botts, of Mexico, Mo. Mrs. Frederick C. Harrington, the former regent, was toastmistress. After an address by Mrs. Botts, reports of the Thirty-third Continental Congress, N. S. D. A. R., held recently in Memorial Continental Hall, Washington, D. C., were given by the following delegates: Mrs. John Trigg Moss, Mrs. Eugene Fusz, Mrs. Shelby Curlee, Mrs. Murry Forristell, Mrs. James M. Crawford, Mrs. L. C. Riley. Mrs. John Pacgelow of Scott Field, represented the Hannah Jack chapter of California, Mo.

Mrs. Ray A. Burns, national vice chairman Students' Loan Fund, gave a toast in verse to the State regent.

Other speakers were: Mr. Linn Paine, president Missouri Society Sons of the American Revolution; Mrs. C. W. Swingley, regent, Jefferson Chapter; Mrs. J. P. Higgins, treasurer general, U. D. C.; Mrs. H. P. Williams, regent, a Cahokia Mound Chapter, East St. Louis; Miss Virginia Merrills, representing the Belleville Chapter, Belleville; Mrs. Edward L. Love, ex-regent Gov. George Wyllis Chapter, Hannibal, and Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, State parliamentarian.

Other out of town guests were: Miss May Shannon of Fulton and Mrs. George S. Gould of Sierra Chapter, Berkeley, Cal. Mrs. Botts and Mrs. Harrington were entertained at luncheon on Tuesday at Scott Field as guests of Mrs. John Pacgelow, wife of the commanding officer of the post.

The St. Louis Women's Auxiliary to the Railway Mail Association, met on April 3 at the home of Mrs. George P. Wehneier, 4226 Labadie avenue, assisted by Mrs. R. G. Young. Mrs. F. R. Edmunds read a paper on "The Life and Works of Edgar Guest." The auxiliary met on April 17 at the residence of Mrs. R. B. Gordon, 515 Clark avenue, Webster Groves. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. F. R. Edmunds, president; Mrs. Arthur Schonard, vice president; Mrs. A. Kraft, recording secretary; Mrs. J. A. Holliday, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. F. W. Hohn, treasurer.

The Applied Education Committee of the Eighth District, M. F. W. C., will meet at Vandervoort's auditorium Wednesday at 10:30 o'clock. Miss Lillie Ernst, assistant superintendent of the St. Louis schools, will speak on "Special Schools." All interested are welcome.

A series of bridge parties have been given by the members of the Essex Study Circle to raise money for the club's membership in the Scholarship Loan Fund, M. F. W. C. Mrs. C. Nystrom of Lafayette avenue was hostess Monday afternoon.

NEWS OF MISSOURI FOLK AT NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Miss Bessie McKeldin, daughter of Mrs. Leigh Palmer, wife of the chairman of the United States Shipping Board, was awarded the palmy of beauty at the debutantes ball Monday. All the debutantes wore their debut gowns or replicas of them. Miss McKeldin, who was in the long receiving line of debutantes, was gowned in a tightfitting bodice of white silk falling off the shoulders and a bouffant skirt of many flounces of white lace.

Mrs. Coolidge is still the busiest woman in Washington. She begins her daily task of receiving delegations from women's organization, intimate friends and small groups of formal callers at 12 o'clock each day. She lunches with the President at 1 o'clock or 1:30 and afterward again receives, often until 5 or 5:30. There usually are guests at dinner, although the Coolidges give few formal dinners outside of the scheduled official state affairs.

Mrs. Grant Gives Luncheon.

It is remarkable to many of the women visitors how freshly groomed and cheerful Mrs. Coolidge remains through long days of handshaking and receiving of one group directly after another. This may perhaps be due to the fact that almost always she chooses for these little at homes at the White House gowns of soft, clinging chiffon which retain their freshness more persistently than any other type of gown and because her softly waving dark hair is always beautifully coiffured.

One of the interesting dinner parties of the past week was that given by Major-General and Mrs. George Barnett for the new Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Wilbur Thursday night. Mrs. Barnett, who is to be one of the delegates to the National Republican Convention, is taking a deep interest in politics and is to preside at the opening meeting of the Republican woman's campaign training school next week.

Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant entertained at luncheon this week for her granddaughter, Princess Bertha Cantacuzene, in honor of Miss Elizabeth Hanna, granddaughter of the late Mark Hanna, whose marriage to Richard Porter Davidson took place Saturday. Princess Bertha is passing the winter with her grandmother while her mother, Princess Michell Cantacuzene, is in Florida.

Missouri Society Meeting.

One of the social events of the week was the reception by the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt in honor of the new Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Wilbur. The invitation list was confined to officers of the Navy and Marine Corps and their families. Among the young girls assisting Mrs. Roosevelt were Miss Janet Moffett and Miss Bertha Coontz.

The last meeting of the season of the Missouri State Society was held this week. Representative Cleveland Newton was re-elected president.

Other officers elected were Representative Joseph Manlove, first vice president; Mrs. Bessie Bruggeman, second vice president; James L. Bailey, third vice president; Stanley H. Ridings, secretary, and Horace J. Phelps, treasurer. The musical program was given by Mrs. William T. Reed, accompanied by Mrs. William E. Sterling.

The Mark Twain Memorial Association, which has developed a national campaign indorsed by President Coolidge, for a memorial park at the birthplace of the writer, at Florida, Mo., was indorsed by the members of the society.

Those in the receiving line after the meeting, besides the officers, were: Representative and Mrs. Ralph Lozier, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Romjue, Dr. and Mrs. A. Ross Hill, Mr. and Mrs. James Hagerman, Mrs. Edgar C. Ellis, Mrs. E. H. Andrew, chairman of the Reception Committee, was assisted by Mrs. L. C. Dyer, Mrs. Sidney C. Roach, Mrs. Charles P. Keyser, Mrs. W. M. Holmes, Miss Tillie Steiner, Mrs. Agnes T. Miller, Miss Octa Bassett, Mrs. E. M. Wallace, Miss Inez Justis and Mrs. Otis Rogers. Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bagley were in charge of the dancing.

Blue Skies & Sunny Days Call You to Boulder
Here is the Vacationland of Your Dreams—the bluest of blue skies, and the longest of sunny days—not the sweltering kind of sunshine, for it is always tempered by invigorating breezes from nearby snow-capped peaks of the Continental Divide.
At Boulder you can camp or tramp in the shadows and sunshine of luring canons or forest-clad hills; you can match your skill with the cunning of the speckled trout in racing mountain streams or crystal-green lakes; you can climb rugged mountains to eternal snow and ice of the famed glacier country—do whatever you choose; go wherever you please; answer when your fancy beckons.
Whether you stay a week or a month, your vacation here will come to a close all too soon—for every day is entrancing, every night is refreshing (blankets are always comfortable). You'll wish the days had more hours, and your vacation more weeks, when you come to Boulder.
Begin now to plan your trip to Boulder and the Glacier region. We really want you to come.
Your ticket agent will tell you about the low railroad rates to Colorado—or you can motor all the way.

SACCHARIN CASE ENTERS SECOND WEEK TOMORROW

Many Defense Witnesses Called by Monsanto Chemical Works in Second Trial.

Trial of the Monsanto Chemical Works, for alleged misbranding of the chemical product saccharin—a synthetic sweetener possessing 500 times the strength of sugar—will enter its second week tomorrow before a jury in the Federal Court. The concern is charged with labeling its product as "positively harmless," a practice abandoned when prosecution was started in 1916, which resulted in a mistrial of the suit in January, 1920.

The second trial opened last Monday with the introduction by Government experts of testimony that saccharin is a retardant of digestion, provocative of headaches, nausea and other symptoms of indigestion, and is therefore harmful. Upon its showing of such testimony by Government chemists and by experiments detailed to the jury by Prof. Anton J. Carlson, professor of physiology at the University of Chicago, the Government rested its case Wednesday.

The defense, thereupon, followed with the introduction of a lengthy and impressive array of witnesses, including physicians specializing in internal medicine, laboratory specialists, patients treated for diabetes or obesity—where saccharin was administered or recommended as a sugar substitute—and former soldiers in the war, who were rationed saccharin as a result of the sugar shortage.

Under questioning by Attorney Theodore Rassieur, counsel for the chemical company, they have uniformly testified as to the harmlessness, both in theory and practice, of the sugar substitute. Cross examination by District Attorney Curry and Special Counsel Horrigan the Department of Agriculture has elicited from the experts the admission that saccharin was as harmful as any condiment, such as salt, pepper, vinegar, mustard, etc., or as one witness declared, as harmful as a cup of tea.

The previous trial consumed nearly three weeks and the jury deliberated two days before failing to agree, after a final vote of 7 to 5 for conviction, upon a verdict and being discharged. The charge involves only a misdemeanor, with a resultant small fine for conviction. Back of the suit, however, there is involved large commercial interests. There appears also an intense interest in the case on the part of the medical profession, which seems to be divided upon the relative merits or demerits of the product.

FUNERAL OF ALDERMAN REIS

Fellow Members of Committee Are Pallbearers.

Members of the Public Utilities Committee, of which Alderman Adam Reis of the Sixteenth Ward, who died suddenly last Wednesday, was chairman for many years, were pallbearers yesterday at his funeral from a chapel at 2223 South Grand boulevard. City officials and members of the board attended in a body.

The Board of Aldermen adjourned Friday without business and voted resolutions honoring Reis as having shown "an unfaltering devotion and fidelity to the public interest that must forever remain a shining example to those upon whom the mantle of a similar responsibility must fall."

MAY 12 TO BE 'HOSPITAL DAY'

Open House to Be Observed by Community Fund Members.

At the St. Louis Children's Hospital groups of children from the Masonic Home will entertain on the hospital lawn at 4 p. m. and a May pole dance will be given by children from Miss Boehmer's dancing class. Ice cream and cake will be served.

DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

Anthony Ewercowski, 23, Dies in Westminster Hospital.

Anthony Ewercowski, 23 years old, of 1530 Hogan street, died yesterday at Westminster Hospital, 8520 Hall's Ferry road, from a fractured skull and internal injuries suffered in an automobile accident Friday.

Stanley Comiskey, 25, of 1320 North Twentieth street, driver of the machine, was able to leave the hospital yesterday. A third man who accompanied them was uninjured and left the sceen of the accident. The automobile was demolished.

STILL OPERATORS CONVICTED

Two Moonshiners Get Six Months Each and Are Fined.

James Rosso and Joe de Blasi, moonshiners, were sentenced to six months in jail when the pleaded guilty to the operation of a still before Federal Judge Davis yesterday. Rosso also was fined $2000 and De Blasi $1000.

They were arrested Feb. 19 last on a farm near Ferguson, Mo. A third man, who was with them, recently pleaded guilty and was fined $1000 and sentenced to four months in jail.

NOTED MINISTERS TO SPEAK FOR 'Y' TODAY

Prominent Laymen Also to Occupy Pulpits — Special Speakers in 111 Churches.

Speakers in behalf of the Y. M. C. A. development program campaign, including a number of noted Ministers, will occupy St. Louis pulpits at one or both of today's regular services. One hundred and eleven churches have scheduled these special speakers, most of them for two services.

The Rev. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, Pastor of the First Congregational Church of Washington, who is President Coolidge's pastor, will speak this morning in the First Presbyterian, Washington boulevard and Sarah street, and at night in Fountain Park Congregational Church, Fountain and Aubert avenues. Gov. William E. Sweet of Colorado will speak this morning in the Third Baptist Church, Grand and Washington boulevards.

Other Ministers.

Dr. Gaius Glenn Atkins, of the First Congregational Church, Detroit, will speak in St. John's Methodist Church, Kingshighway and Washington boulevard, this morning, and at 4 p. m. in Grace Methodist Church, Skinker road and Waterman avenue.

The pulpit of Christ Church Cathedral will be occupied this morning by Dean Warren L. Rogers of St. Paul's Cathedral, Detroit. Dr. Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century, will speak in the Second Baptist Church in the morning and at St. John's Methodist at night. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Grace M. E. Church, New York, will speak at Union Methodist Church, while Dr. Ralph D. Sockman of Madison M. E. Church, New York, will be at Maple Avenue Methodist. Rabbi Leo M. Franklin of Detroit will speak at a special meeting in Temple Israel this morning, and Bishop Treophilos M. Pashkovsky of Chicago, will speak in the Russian Orthodox Church, 1125 Hickory street.

Upshaw to Speak.

Congressman W. D. Upshaw of Atlanta, who has announced as a candidate for vice president on the Democratic ticket, will speak at Delmar Baptist Church this morning and at West Park Baptist Church tonight. Col. John T. Axton, chief chaplain of the U. S. Army, will speak at Compton Heights Christian Church this morning, in Pilgrim Congregational this afternoon, and at the First Presbyterian this evening. The chief chaplain of the Navy, Capt. E. W. Scott, will speak in St. George's Episcopal Church at the morning, and tonight at Maplewood Congregational.

Two special meetings are scheduled for this afternoon, one a men's meeting at 4 p. m., at the Pine street "Y" addressed by Dr. C. H. Tobias of New York City, senior secretary of the negro department of the International Committee, and the other a vesper service at 5 p. m. at the Y. W. C. A., Fourteenth and Locust streets, with Capt. Scott as the speaker. Dean Rogers of Detroit will speak from the Grand Leader broadcasting station, W C K, at 3 p. m.

Negro Donors Give $25,000 to Y. M. C. A. Campaign.

A $25,000 gift from Mr. and Mrs. Aaron E. Malone, founders and proprietors of Poro College, which trains negro "beauty experts," was announced yesterday by George D. Markham, chairman of the special gift committee of the Y. M. C. A. campaign.

This is said to be perhaps the largest single gift ever made to any cause by a negro. Malone is chairman of the negro unit of the campaign, and a member of the board of the Pine street Y. M. C. A., to the present quarters of which he and Mrs. Malone gave $5000 in 1917.

The $3,000,000 program includes additions to those quarters, and a second building for negroes to be located in "Ellearsville," the Eastern Enright avenue district. Porto College began many years ago in a small building on Pine street as in the manufacture of a preparation to make hair straight. It now occupies a four-story brick building, extending a half-block on Pendleton avenue at St Ferdinand avenue.

TOWER GROVE HEIGHTS BODY FAVORS PLAZA SITE

Board of Aldermen Urged to Act Immediately on Courthouse Location.

The Twelfth boulevard site for the proposed $4,000,000 courthouse, as approved in the $87,000,000 municipal bond issue, is strongly urged in a resolution adopted by the Tower Grove Heights Improvement Association, and the Board of Aldermen called upon to determine immediately the plaza site as the definite location.

The resolution, adopted at a meeting Friday night, sets out that this location has been favored by the City Plan Commission, the General Council of Civic Needs, by a vote of 320 to 201 by the St. Louis Bar Association, by a vote of 175 to 67 in a referendum of the real estate agents of St. Louis, by a vote of four to one of the committee on courthouse site of the Board of Aldermen, and by other approving votes of various civic organizations.

The resolution also recites the great need of a new courthouse and the definite suggestion during the bond campaign of the plaza site, and asserts that "a movement has been started to delay the erection of the new courthouse, apparently because of objections of special property and business interests in the vicinity of the present courthouse to the removal of the courthouse away from the present location." The plaza site is now owned by the city, the resolution points out, thus saving $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 to the proposed expenditure, which another site would entail.

At Last! Something That Does More Than Prev

PYORRHEA

COMPLETELY BANISHED IN 20 DAYS

ACTUAL PHOTOGRAPH showing terrible ravages of pyorrhea set of sound perfect teeth. Leading dentists and doctors recommend the use of BESLIN to prevent and clear up all pyorrhea conditions.

NO longer is it necessary to suffer with loose teeth, ulcerated bleeding gums, polluted breath and the hundreds of ailments caused by pyorrhea poisoning. For Science has at last succeeded in producing an amazing preparation which absolutely accomplishes what up to the present has been thought impossible—it completely BANISHES PYORRHEA — the worst case as easily as the mildest.

Due to its remarkable penetrating properties, BESLIN reaches into the diseased gums and root sackets which hold the teeth. It destroys all forms of bacteria that cause pyorrhea, clears up pus, stops bleeding, heals gums and makes them firm and healthy, and through its tissue-building power actually tightens loose teeth!

Severe clinical tests fail to show a single case of pyorrhea that has not been eliminated by this remarkable preparation.

But we don't ask you to take our word for anything. You can easily prove every claim made for BESLIN by testing it for yourself. A 20-day treatment will absolutely banish your case of pyorrhea, no matter how serious or your money will be refunded, so you assume no risk in making the trial.

DOUBLE GUARANTEE

Every package of BESLIN contains written guarantee to refund your money if, after using a 20-day treatment, you are not completely satisfied. For double protection your druggist who you know and who has your confidence will sign this guarantee. Each bottle makes 2½ quarts of solution at a cost that is small, indeed, compared to the wonderful results guaranteed by this remarkable preparation.

Not until Home Building is handled as a problem of Modern Manufacture can Costs Come Down

Building costs are going to stay high as long as building methods remain antiquated.

You couldn't buy a pair of shoes for less than fifteen dollars or an automobile under several thousand dollars if these industries were clinging to the imperfect ways of long ago.

As long as homes continue to be built singly each house must stand the cost of avoidable wastes. Every person who buys or builds a singly-built home must pay the cost of this waste. And waste costs everybody but serves nobody.

Quantity Production Must, and Can, Be Applied to the Building of Homes

Quantity production for every article we wear, and every article within the house has worked a double result: the bettering of quality and the lowering of the cost of making—why cannot it be applied to home building with the same results? It can! Sand, cement, brick, lumber and hardware must go into the building of every home. These raw materials, like the raw materials of every product cannot be bought to the best advantage unless they are bought from original sources and bought in the large units that bring lowest cost. Buy materials for a hundred homes and you buy better and buy cheaper than when you buy for a single home.

Besides the Savings in Materials, There Must Be a Saving in the Manufacturing Cost of Homes

Building homes singly is like opening up a new factory to make a single pair of shoes or a single automobile. There is a tremendous "overhead." There can be no co-ordination of effort. The efficiency that comes from repeated operation and an experienced working force is destroyed before it is even achieved. No factory ever produced a product at lowest cost or of highest quality until they accomplished two things—first the building up of a steady force of workmen, second the maintenance of steady and continuous operation. Homes cannot be built economically until to the building are applied the proven economical methods of manufacturer.

The Majestic Plan Brings to the Building of Homes the Proven Methods of Economical Manufacturing

By the Majestic Plan homes are not built singly but in groups—groups scientifically determined to permit first, the purchase of materials from producers' hands in units of lowest cost—second, in largest possible groups to permit the greatest spread of overhead expense; financing, designing, engineering and supervision. Third, the groups are so planned that building operations become continuous; a picked and experienced force are on the job the year around. All the elements of successful manufacturing are present. Large scale production, skilled management and supervision, the selection of the cream of skilled workers, continuous operations.

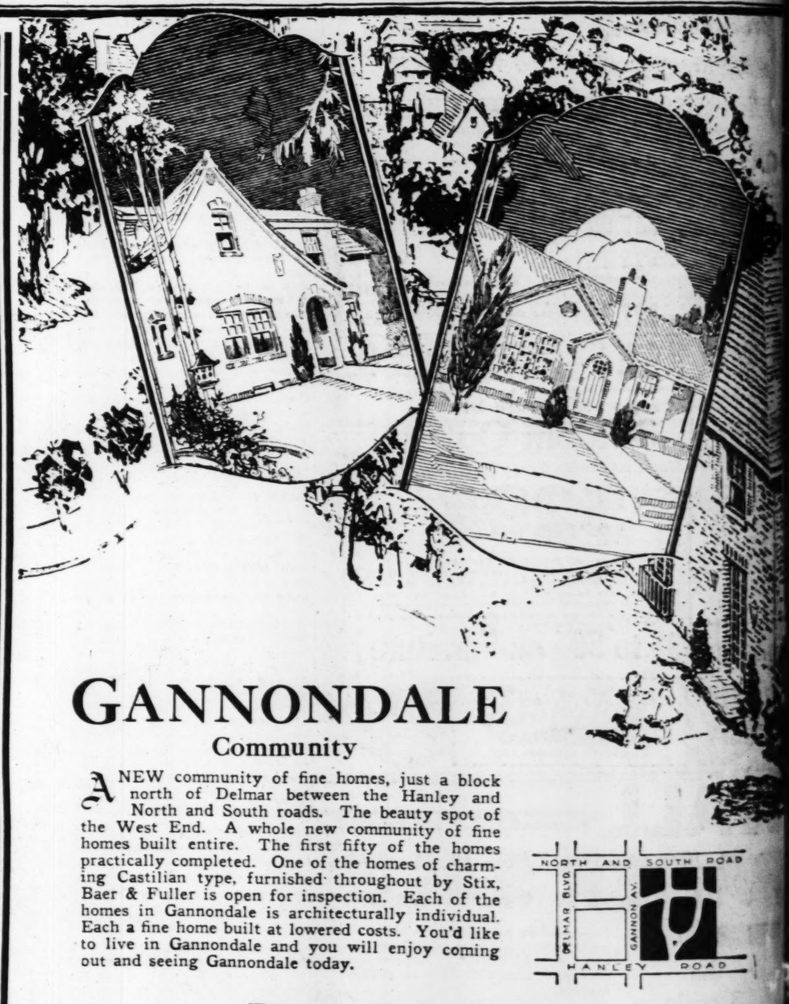
Quantity Production Savings Are Not Made at Sacrifice of Individuality in Design

The structural quality of a home depends upon the grade of materials used, the specifications of erection, the skill of workmen in meeting the specifications and exacting supervision. These, in building of homes, can be supplied in fullest measure only by a plan, as all-inclusive and basically sound as the Majestic Plan.

The beauty of design, utility of arrangement and the individuality of each home are not hindered, but helped by the Majestic Plan. For to achieve this advantage most completely calls for architectural ability not ordinarily within the reach of the builder of a single home. But economically applied to Majestic homes because pro-rated among a group—bringing up the desirability and bringing down the cost.

See the Result of the Majestic Building Plan—See the Majestic Homes Themselves

More than a half hundred Majestic homes have been built, sold and occupied. More than a hundred are now being built. These homes built and being built answer fully the question, "Can better homes, better looking and better built and being built answer fully the question.



GANNONDALE
Community

A NEW community of fine homes, just a block north of Delmar between the Hanley and North and South roads. The beauty spot of the West End. A whole new community of fine homes built entire. The first fifty of the homes practically completed. One of the homes of charming Castilian type, furnished throughout by Stix, Baer & Fuller is open for inspection. Each of the homes in Gannondale is architecturally individual. Each a fine home built at lowered costs. You'd like to live in Gannondale and you will enjoy coming out and seeing Gannondale today.

BOY SCOUTS TAKE PART IN TREE PLANTING

Lumbermen's Fraternal Organization Assists in Ceremonies in Parks.

Trees dedicated to greater American forests were planted yesterday afternoon in St. Louis and St. Louis County, preceding the annual round-up of Boy Scouts, by Boy Scouts and representatives of the lumbermen's fraternal organization, the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo.

Each tree bears a plate with the inscription, "This tree was planted May 3, 1924, by the Boy Scouts of St. Louis, co-operating with the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo for Greater American Forests." The brief ceremonies took place on picnic grounds No. 1 and 2, Forest Park, north of the Fairgrounds swimming pool, in the northeast corner of Tower Grove Park, and in the athletic fields of McKinley and Webester Groves high schools.

Representatives of each of the 181 Boy Scout troops in St. Louis, who attend a "Friends of the Forest" dinner to be given tomorrow night at the Chase Hotel, will receive a tree to be planted in a church yard next Sunday. State and city officials, presidents of civic clubs and persons who have humanitarian or other interests in forest preservation have been invited to the dinner.

Two Government experts will speak. R. D. Forbes of New Orleans, director of the Southern Forestry Bureau, will tell, "Where Is America's Timber," and T. R. Truax of the Forest Products Laboratories at Madison, Wis., will give an illustrated lecture on modern uses of wood and tree products.

The timber situation will be brought home to Missourians by Dr. Herman von Schrenk, president of the State Forestry Asociation, who will speak on "Missouri's Timber." "The Spirituality of the Trees," will be disucussed by "the lumberjack sky pilot," the Rev. P. A. Simkin, chaplain of the lumbermen's order.

COUPLE IN SUICIDE PACT TO BE BURIED TOGETHER

Stephen and Theresa Toth, Wedded 40 Years, Took Poison When Life Proved Unendurable.

Stephen and Theresa Toth, who lived together 40 years and at last, when life became unendurable, drank death's potion together, will be buried together, as was their wish.

For a day it looked like the wife would be put away and the husband would tarry, though he willed to die. But Friday night, after arrangements had been made to bury Mrs. Toth, who had died Thursday night, Toth died, and the arrangements for the woman's intermen were halted in favor of a plan for a double funeral.

The Toths swallowed carbolic acid and chloroform Wednesday morning at their home, 1512A South Twelfth street, when they were at the end of their resources. According to their wish, the arrangements for the funeral are in the hands of E. Nussbaumer, 1204 Hebert street.

30 WOMEN DRIVERS TO COMPETE FOR TROPHY TODAY

Graduates of Safe Drivers' School Will Participate in Series of Six Contests.

Thirty women who have just concluded a course in the Safe Drivers' School, will contest for a silver pitcher at 2:30 p. m. today on Kingshighway between West Pine Boulevard and Laclede avenue. Obstacles will be placed on the street and the women will participate in six events including driving in reverse, driving forward through obstacles, changing speeds, a brake test, entering a garage from an alley and parking.

Mrs. C. Howard Stewart, chairman of the Womens' Safe Driving School, will assist in directing the contest.

The prize will be presented to the high point scorer by Lawrence McDaniel, former Circuit Attorney.

DELEGATION GOING TO KANSAS

C. of C. Members Will Make Trip on New Train to Wichita.

A delegation from the Chamber of Commerce will make the first trip of the new Missouri-Pacific St. Louis-Wichita, Kan., train, which leaves Union Station at 7:30 tonight. The party will arrive at 9:55 a. m. Monday. This cuts three hours off the time formerly required to make the trip. The road is designed to result in the routing through St. Louis of freight and passenger business which is now sent through Chicago and Kansas City.

Sam Fishman, noted Kansas farmer, will accompany the St. Louis delegation on the trip.

RED CROSS DEMONSTRATION CAR

It Will Arrive in St. Louis Wednesday for Five-Day Stay.

The first aid demonstration car of the National Chapter of the American Red Cross, which up to 1917 had traveled more than 208,000 miles and had been seen by more than 1,000,000 people, will arrive in St. Louis Wednesday and remain five days.

Demonstrations of practical first aid will be given by physicians and surgeons in charge of Dr. John A. B. St. Clair, field representative of the American Red Cross. The car will be open for the inspection every day, though the hours cannot be fixed until its arrival.

$460 Stolen From Laundry.

Burglars entered the Justin Flint laundry at 4234 Finney avenue Friday night by cutting a hole through the glass of a rear door and unlocking it. The combination was knocked off from a safe in the office on the second floor and $460 was taken.

WOMAN AT WORK KILLED BY FUMES

Burners Under Heater in Basement Generated Carbon Monoxide Gas.

When David Pascalis, a chauffeur, awoke in his home at 1930 America avenue, yesterday morning, it was with a consciousness that something was wrong. The electric lights were burning as he had left them the night before to be extinguished by his wife, when she retired. She was missing.

Pascalis rushed into the bathroom, where the hot water faucets were hissing from steam generated by the gas heater in the basement. He recalled his wife was washing clothes in the basement, when he came home the previous evening. He had retired almost immediately, after suggesting the wife finish the laundry work in the morning.

At the foot of the basement steps, he found the lifeless body of his wife. She had fallen with some of the wet clothing clutched in her hands. Two burners were lighted under the water heater, and police reconstructed her efforts, unsuccessful, to reach air uncontaminated by the carbon monoxide gas generated by the gas burners. Mrs. Pascalis was 32 years old.

VOCAL TEACHER, FOUND IN NEED, TO RETURN HOME

Edward X. Rolker Has Been Cared for by Musicians' Fund of America.

Edward Xavier Rolker, 67 years old, a San Francisco vocal teacher, who was found in a Market street hotel March 15 after he had been without food for days, will leave shortly for his home, it was announced by the Musicians' Fund of America yesterday.

The local headquarters of the fund cared for Rolker since he was found here and upon his arrival at San Francisco, he will be received by representatives of the organization there.

Rolker was under the impression that his wife had disappeared and that sinister influences sought his life in San Francisco. Mrs. Rolker is now in that city awaiting his return. Rolker had told police that he had $265 when he arrived in St. Louis but that it was stolen from him. He had given up personal jewelry to pay for his hotel bill when his condition was reported to the police.

The Musicians' Fund announced a contribution of $100 from Jascha Heifetz.

CIVIC BODIES TO SUPPORT "CLEAN-UP, PAINT-UP WEEK"

Literature Stressing Importance of Work as Aid to Health to Be Distributed.

The Chamber of Commerce, Board of Education, high schools, civic and industrial clubs and other associations have pledged their cooperation to the city of St. Louis in carrying out the provisions of a proclamation issued by the Mayor setting aside the week beginning May 5 as a "Clean Up, Paint Up" period for the city.

Literature setting forth the importance, from the health standpoint, of abating the nuisances lurking in back yards, rubbish heaps and the accumulated refuse of winter will be distributed by teams of workers assigned to various districts into which the city has been divided. These teams will make daily reports to the Health Department.

Under the direction of Health Commissioner Starkloff, representatives will advise with property owners to aid them in carrying out the designs of the week.

MEMORIAL FOR WAR DEAD

Mayor Issues Proclamation for Observance Saturday and Sunday.

The National Society services will consist of a march over Kingshighway Memorial boulevard with appropriate services.

Mayor Kiel has designated next Saturday and Sunday as "War Mothers' Days." Citizens are asked to wear a carnation for the two days in honor of the sacrifices of American mothers during the war.

MOCK NATIONAL CONVENTION

Washington U. Political Science Students to Stage Stunt.

A mock Democratic National Convention will be staged by 350 students in the Washington University department of political science at 8 p. m. Thursday in Graham Memorial chapel. The stunt is planned to acquaint students in a practical way with the workings of a national political convention.

Campaign headquarters for various candidates, party leaders, committees, banners and orators will all be in evidence, under the guidance of faculty members. Students of the School of Journalism will report the event in detail.

Joint Patriotic Rally.

A joint patriotic rally for the Daughters of America and the Junior Order of United American Mechanics will be held Tuesday at Central High School auditorium at 8 p. m. John B. Edwards, chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, will speak on "Duties of Citizenship and Their Relation to the Constitution." State and national officers of the two organizations will be present at the rally.

PART FIVE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 4, 1924. PAGES 1—12.

Otis Skinner Stars in 'Sancho Panza,' Based On Cervantes' Romance

Lengyel's Comedy Closes Season at American —Marjorie Rambeau Heads Orpheum Bill in One-Act Play.

THE theatrical season comes to an opulent close this week with a spectacular production of Melchoir Lengyel's "Sancho Panza," in which Otis Skinner will be presented tomorrow night at the American. The Shubert-Jefferson ended its activities until next fall with Miss Ethel Barrymore's concluding performance of "The Laughing Lady," last night.

"Sancho Panza," by the Hungarian author of "The Typhoon" and "The Czarina," was produced last November at the Hudson Theater, in New York, and was described as a medley of drama, music, pantomime, the dance and rich-hued costumes and settings. It is based on the second part of Cervantes' novel, in which the faithful squire of Don Quixote at last attained his ambition of reigning over an island as King of Barataria.

Readers of the immortal romance will remember how Sancho Panza insisted on sharing his newfound luxury with Dapple, his little gray donkey; how court etiquette perplexed him, how he was advised by his physicians, how a troublesome end came to his rule, and in what plight he returned to Don Quixote. These events, set forth in the play, provide Mr. Skinner with a role of munificent comedy.

Distinguished Producers.

THE producers of the play are Russell Janney and Richard Boleslawsky, the latter of whom was formerly connected with the Moscow Art Theater. The dances were arranged by Bert French, of the "Music Box Revue," and the incidental music is by Hugo Felix, composer of "Madame Sherry," "Lassie" and "Marjolaine." The scenery and costumes were designed by James Reynolds of the Ziegfeld "Follies."

A part second in humor only to that of Sancho Panza is said to be that of Dapple, the donkey, played by Robert Rosaire. In the cast will be Russ Whytal, Frederick Tilden, Olga Treskoff, Marion Marcus Clarke, Russell Lennox, Herbert Delmore, Charles Dalton, Harry Lewellyn, H. H. McCollum, Rubi Trelease, Robert Robson, Anthony Andre, Richard Bonner, William H. White, Meyer Lawrenson, Helen Grenneile and Royal Cutter. In addition, there will be a troupe of singers, dancers and supernumeraries.

"Sancho Panza" was pronounced by a New York reviewer to be a play "gay in costume and brave in setting"; and Mr. Skinner was said to have a "rich role with ample opportunity for him to loose his fine round voice—a voice as hearty in color as anything in the way of trappings which may be brought against it."

"The First Year" at Empress.

THAT comedy of connubial battle, "The First Year," by Frank Craven, is the Woodward Players' undertaking this week at the Empress. The play was seen at the American during April of last year, with the author in one of the principal roles. The second of the three acts is laid in Joplin, Mo. The principal parts will be taken at the Empress by Alexis Luce, Hazel Hiltmore, Clare Hatton, Alice Baker, Raymond Brown, Edward Schilling and Sylva Farnese.

Miss Marjorie Rambeau, popular actress, is the headliner this week at the Orpheum, appearing in a playlet by Sewell Collins entitled "Bracelets." She will be supported by A. E. Anson, who formerly played with Bertha Kalich and David Warfield. The Cansino family of Spanish dancers is returned in what is declared to be an entirely new offering, and Lillian Fitzgerald, comedienne, is back with a new act written and staged by herself. On the current bill are also Helen Raymond and a company in a one-act version of "Twin Beds;" Leo Beers, raconteur and pianist; Shaw & Lee, eccentric comedians; Jackie and Wills, talking cockatoos, and Julius Furst, in "The Man on the Block."

The Rialto's bill for the first half of the week is headed by Paul Zimma's "Chicagoans;" the schedule beginning Thursday features a production called "Music Land." The Columbia's captioned performer is Teddy, a wrestling bear, and the photoplay is "Discontented Husbands," starring James Kirkwood. The nine-act bill at the Grand Opera House is led by a song and dance revue called "Everybody Step." The Liberty Music Hall announces "The Girl From Kirkwood," a musical comedy revue.

Justine Johnstone Is an "Eyeful," Says London

LONDON, May 3.

BRITISH reaction to an American comedy, "Polly Preferred," by Guy Bolton, with Miss Justine Johnstone, American actress, in the principal role, is represented by the following review, which appeared in the Daily Telegraph, following a recent presentation of the play at the Royalty Theater:

Lives there the man with soul so dead that he is not prepared to lay aside his intellectual prejudices for an hour or two in the theater, and give himself up to the thrill of hearing once again the story of Cinderella? This is a rhetorical question, expecting the answer "No"—the only proviso being that Cinderella shall be pretty and charming, and the story well told.

In the present instance Cinderella is played by Miss Justine Johnstone, who is pretty enough to be acclaimed as "the most beautiful woman in America" without running any risks of public protest; and Mr. Guy Bolton starts off to tell his story with enormous zest and some ingenuity.

Cinderella Is Polly Brown.

When we first meet Cinderella—or, to give her the name she bears in her latest reincarnation, Polly Brown—she is a virtuous Brooklyn chorus-girl, very much down on her luck. She has just lost her first two-line part because one Joe Rutherford, a rich backer of plays, wants it for some frailer lady. At the automatic restaurant where she is brooding over her wrongs, she meets Bob Cooley, an artist in salesmanship, who has just been given the sack because he cannot bring his soaring soul to take an interest in purveying underclothes, and is looking for something more inspiring to sell.

He sees in Polly all the gifts of personality, charm, beauty and grace which, owing to her retiring modesty, have hitherto escaped the notice of managers. Here is a chance for both of them. Polly says Bob, is a valuable film property going to waste; all that is wanted is a salesman of genius (his

Will Use Natural Stage Resources for Operas

RADICAL innovations in stage setting are promised for the sixth season of the Municipal Theater Association, which opens in three weeks at the open-air auditorium in Forest Park. The announcement is made that a policy will be adopted utilizing to the utmost the natural resources of the stage, and that simplicity, instead or ornateness and overcrowding, will be the aim. A special department devoted to costuming, which was inaugurated last season in the production of "Die Fledermaus," will become a permanent institution.

A newcomer to the productions staff is Eugene Ford, who has been engaged as assistant to Stage Director Rainger. Ford has conducted orchestras for musical shows, written popular songs and served for some years as stage manager of Charles Dillingham's touring productions.

The season will begin with Julian Edward's operetta, "Princess Chic." In addition to Rainger and Ford, the executive staff consists of Charles Previn, musical director, and William A. Parson, chorus master. The chorus of 90 St. Louisans has been rehearsing during the past week. The principals are expected to arrive this week. They are: Miss Dorothy Francis, soprano; Miss Dorothy Maynard, ingenue; Miss Flavia Arcaro, contralto; Ralph Errolle, tenor, of the Metropolitan Opera Co.; Raymond Crane, first comedian; William J. McCarthy, second comedian; Thomas Conkey, baritone; and Roland Woodruff, juvenile. Miss Francis and Errolle are newcomers in the organization. A singer of basso roles will be selected this week.

Orchestra in Granite City Today.

AT 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, directed by Rudolph Ganz, will give a concert at the Community High School Auditorium, in Granite City. Mrs. Helen Traubel Carpenter will be soloist. The program will include D'Albert's overture to "The Improvisator," the second movement from Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony, the third movement from the same composer's Sixth Symphony, Glazounoff's "Valse de Concert," Wagner's overture to "Tannhaeuser," Massanet's aria, "Pleurez, pleurez, mas yeux," from "Le Cid," and Chabrier's rhapsody, "Espana."

"Der Zigeunerbaron" ("The Gypsy Baron"), a comic opera by Johann Strauss, will be sung in the original German tonight at the American Theater by the German Theater Stock Company. This work was produced in English at the Municipal Theater last July, when the music won high praise for the exuberant vitality of its dance rhythms. The plot is taken from Moritz Jokai's novelette, "Saffi."

Max Bratt and Miss Lena Weingartner will sing the leading roles, and Felix Marx will be principal comedian and stage director. A chorus of 60 voices, a troupe of Hungarian Czardas dancers and a gypsy orchestra are promised.

Whiteman Announced for May 21.

PAUL WHITEMAN in person, and his band of 25 pieces, are announced for a concert at the Odeon on the evening of May 21. The same program will be given which was presented on Feb. 12 at Aeolian Hall, New York, and which had the purpose of establishing "jazz" as an art form—an endeavor in which Miss Eva Gauthier was the pioneer.

Whiteman is America's most distinguished exponent of "jazz." His band consists of three saxophones, two trumpets, two trombones, two pianos, celesta, horn, tuba, drums and strings. The soloists will be Zev Confrey and George Gershwin. The program will include Whiteman's adaptation of works by Puccini, Rimsky-Korsakoff, Chopin and MacDowell, as well as a semi-symphonic presentation of three tunes by Irving Berlin.

Pupils of Alice Martin's dancing school will give a program at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater, Friday evening. The chief number will be a ballet, "Once Upon a Time," by Louis H. Chalif, to music by Rubinstein, Grieg, Liadow, Berlioz, Sgambati, Glazounoff and others. Another ballet will be Marius Petipa's two-act creation, "Les Millions d'Arlequin," to music by Richard Driga. There will also be a group of four divertissements.

Mrs. Carrie P. Johnson's pupils will give a fairy drama, "The Sea Maiden," Friday evening, at the Odeon. There will be Spanish and East Indian ballets, besides many solo and ensemble dances.

Knights of Columbus Program.

THE Knights of Columbus Choral Club, under the direction of William Theodore Diebels, will give its second concert of the season Tuesday evening at the St. Louis University Auditorium. Miss Thelma Hayman, contralto, will be soloist. The choral numbers include Schubert's "Serenade," the old English song, "To Celia;" Macy's "Gay Hearts." Sir Arthur Sullivan's "The Beleaguered," Spence's "Good Night, Beloved," Di Capua's "O Sole Mio," and the Neapolitan son, "Santa Lucia." Diebels will give a free organ recital at the New Cathedral, at 3 o'clock this afternoon. George E. Muskens, tenor, will be soloist.

Mrs. Paul J. Guerard, Mrs. Carroll Smith and Mrs. Helen Stevens Phillips will sing songs from the Shakspeare plays at a concert in connection with National Music Week, which will be given Tuesday afternoon at Vandervoort Music Hall by the St. Louis Tercentenary Shakspeare Society. Richard Spamer will speak on "Music in Shakspeare." Mrs. Jacque Landree will read a paper on "The Pipe Organ" before the Morning Etude, Wednesday afternoon at Baldwin Hall. A musical program will follow.

Cantata at Graham Chapel.

THE Washington University Chapel Choir, under the direction of Charles Galloway, will give George B. Nevin's cantata, "The Crown of Life," at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Graham Memorial Chapel. Soloists assisting the 35 choristers will be Miss Marie Becker, Miss Margaret Stille, Adolph J. Pessel and Merritt F. Williams. Admission will be free.

A one-act musical play, "His Dream," will be given by pupils of Mrs. Karen van Kempel Wednesday night at the Artists' Guild. In the cast will be Eugenia Ri[illegible]en Wilkerson, Vera Janeson, Gerald Barrett, Edit Kempel, Albert Charles and Anita Wagner.

'Why Men Leave Home,' And 'Bluff' Featured On Photoplay Bills

"The Lone Wolf" Also Among the New Offerings and Continued Indefinite Run of "The White Sister" at Two Houses Is Announced

THE Missouri Theater offering this week is a Sam Wood production entitled "Bluff," with Agnes Ayres and Tony Moreno. Rita Weiman wrote the story which deals with the supposition that New York is a city of bluff. Betty Hallowell, the unsuccessful designer of fashions, is played by Agnes Ayres, while Robert Fitzmaurice, a young lawyer is played by Tony Moreno.

Betty and her brother, Jack, arrive in New York hoping in their new environment to attain success. Jack is run over by the automobile of one of New York's political leaders and crippled for life. Refusing an offer to settle for one thousand dollars, Betty is threatened by the politician. Newspapers announce the disappearance of Nina Loring, international beauty. Betty recognizes her resemblance to the missing Nina, and decides to impersonate her. Established in luxurious quarters Betty offers for sale imitations of the renowned Loring gowns. The real Nina is wanted for stealing charity funds, so Betty finds herself in an uncomfortable position when recognized by the secretary of the politician and arrested. Bluff carries the story to a happy ending, but not until the lawyer has put into action every clever method at his command.

The stage attraction at the Missouri is Coon Sander's Kansas City Night Hawks Orchestra. This organization of vocalists and instrumentalists is well-known to radio fans.

"Why Men Leave Home" is featured at the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol Theaters this week. Taking Avery Hopwood's stage farce as the working idea, John M. Stahl, director of "The Dangerous Age," has made another picture of everyday married life. Lewis Stone, Helene Chadwick, Alma Bennett, Mary Carr and William V. Mong are featured.

A Lige Conley comedy will be on the bill at all three theaters, together with the orchestral and organ features.

Katherine MacDonald in "The Scarlet Lily" will be shown at the West End Lyric the last half of the week. Skouras Brothers also announce that the Lyric Skydome will be opened for the season Saturday, May 9, when Mae Marsh in "Daddies" will be the attraction.

The new Tivoli Theater, located on Delmar, west of Skinker, will be opened either this week or next. Wednesday, May 7, has been announced as the tentative opening date, but it is thought last-minute delays may cause a postponement. The policy will be a combination of first and second run pictures, with a vaudeville program on Sundays.

"The Lone Wolf" is the picture attraction at the Kings this week. Dorothy Dalton and Jack Holt are the principals. In the cast also are Wilton Lackaye, Robert Haines, Tyrone Power, Charlotte Walker, Lucy Fox and Edouard Durant. The picture is an adaption of Louis Joseph Vance's novel of the same title. It is a detective story which dips into the hidden mysteries of diplomacy and gives glimpses of studio life in Paris. It visits the haunts of the Apaches, and the action includes an airplane battle. The many fans to whom the charming Dorothy Dalton is always a delight are downcast when they see her consorting with the infamous Paris Pack, but will breathe sighs of relief when finally she is revealed as a secret service agent and not a bobbed hair bandit. Similarly, Jack Holt's legion of admirers rejoice when he resolves to abandon the life of a bandit and "go straight."

"The White Sister," with Lillian Gish as the star, seems to have settled down for a long stay at the Delmonte and Rivoli theaters, where it is now in its second week, with more to follow. A special orchestral score at both theaters has added to the effectiveness of the film and at the Delmonte there is a colorful prologue which attracts much attention.

What They Are Doing In the Movie Studios

The cast for "The Strength of Desire," the E. Phillips Oppenheim story which J. Stuart Blackton is producing, is headed by Irene Rich, Marguerite de la Motte, Charles Ogle, Harry Myers, Rosemary Theby and Anders Randolph. The picture deals with life in the movie colony of Hollywood.

David Smith's coming production with John Bowers and Alice Calhoun in the leading roles, supported by Alan Hale, Charlotte Merriam, Otis Harlan, Kitty Bradbury and Joseph Rickson has been named "The Code of the Wilderness." It is an adaptation of a novel by Charles Alden Seltzer.

Booth Tarkington is to be represented again on the screen. "The Magnificent Ambersons," one of his most famous novels, dealing with the growth and development of a middle western town, has been purchased by Vitagraph for production.

Scenes depicting the retreat of the British forces at Lexington were taken recently on Hunter Island by Cosmopolitan for its production of "Janice Meredith," the picturization of Paul Leicester Ford's story of the American Revolution, in which Marion Davies will star.

"Barbara Freitchie" will be the first of a series of five big features starring Florence Vidor. A sumptuous presentation with a notable cast is promised.

Berry Compson's second picture for Hodkinson release will be "Ramshackle House," an adaptation of Hulbert Footner's novel. Miss Compson is in Florida working on the production.

Constance Bennett and Holmes Herbert have been signed by Eastern Productions, Inc., to appear in support of Helene Chadwick in the Ethel M. Dell story, "Her Own Free Will," to be released by Hodkinson.

The optimistic note observed in and about ukulele factories this spring is accounted for by the fact that Richard Walton Tully is already laying his plans for the filming of his most spectacular stage success, "The Bird of Paradise," which is to be released as a First National picture. The production will be made in the Hawaiian Islands, and the cameras are scheduled to start turning late in May or early in June.

"From Fire-Mist to Man" has been decided upon as the title of the educational picture which Sol Lesser and Louis H. Tolhurst will begin work on immediately. This production to be made on a super-production basis and road-showed at top prices, promises to mark a definite step forward in the realm

False Cynicism Blight on New York Season

BY HEYWOOD BROUN,
Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, May 3.

A BLIGHT of smartness threatens the theater. Not authentic smartness, to be sure, but its dim and imitative poor relations crowd in upon the fag-end of every season. There seems to be a notion that an affinity may be found between wit and wickedness. All the villians of the week have fancied themselves as clever fellows. And the authors have abetted them in these fancies.

At least a ton of epigrams has fallen on my devoted head within the last seven days. There has been a deluge of lines beginning "All men" or "All women." The pattern produces little of merit. Boil wisdom down into a generality and you will find falsehood in the pot.

The Wit of Wickedness.

BUT that sounds dangerously like an epigram. It will be better to get down to cases and nominate "Garden of Weeds" as a typical example of the sort of play in which the author tries to catch the popular attention by tinkling cynacism. Virtue triumphs in the end, but the fun is supposed to arise from the worldly wisdom of the evil folk. Unfortunately, they are not wise. The author makes them strive infernally hard for their wit, and the result is boredom.

"Garden of Weeds" is the sort of play concerning which a reviewer ought to be either clever or indignant. But I can't think of anything clever, and during the closing weeks of the season I am all worn out getting indignant at bad plays.

Silliest Play of the Season.

POSSIBLY there is no reason for consuming rage. Leon Gordon, the author, has proceeded on the theory the moron the merrier. This is quite the silliest play of the season. If the villain had a long black mustache, "Garden of Weeds" might prove an engaging and preposterous entertainment But the playwright has sicklied o'er the old devices of melodrama with a thin coat of third-rate sophistication. The old-style miscreants were not above horrid deeds, but at least they never stooped to epigrams of a philosophy of life.

Phillip Flagg boasts that he can bring out the worst in every woman's nature by tempting her with luxury. Dorothy Delbridge yields to his wiles, but later repents and marries a good man. Unfortunately, she does not dare to tell her husband. Instead, she invites some of her old associates to the house for tea and they give her away. No harm is done, as it develops later that the husband knew all from the beginning. The only missing link was the name of the man.

ONE thought that he might have arrived at that knowledge by the simple process of asking. Instead, he waited until the villain paid a call to gloat. The monster was allowed enough innuendo to fill out the final act, at the end of which time the hero threw him downstairs and broke his neck. At this announcement hero and heroine embraced and the play was over.

It didn't seem to me fair. If broken necks were in order the distribution should have been much more generous. And besides, Lee Baker, who played the villain, was the best player in the piece.

"The Dust Heap" a Bad Lot.

THE authors of "The Dust Heap" evidently said to themselves before they started: "Plays about white slaves go well and plays of the great north woods are also popular. Why can't we do both at once?" They have solved their problem by putting the brothel in the Canadian Yukon.

However, they seem to have remained a little fearful that even after this amalgamation they might not have enough material, and so a touch of "Abie's Irish Rose" has been added and Sergt. Pat O'Day of the Royal Mounted marries the daughter of Abraham Levy. Before the revelation comes that she is the daughter of Mr. Levy, the impression prevails that her name is Nina Moosha, which brings up the question of miscegenation between the red and the white races and gives the play a jump on "All God's Chillun."

The "Kick" Tediously Prepared.

INDEED, it is fair to say that no fewer than 12 standard types of drama have been combined in "The Dust Heap." The authors have managed to retain the worst features of each.

In spite of a few minutes of furious excitement, "The Dust Heap" achieves dullness. The playwrights have been intent on putting their play over with one terrific kick, but there is such an enormous amount of preliminary wiggling of the toe that when the boot actually does drive forward everybody is overly prepared for the big scene.

Blasphemy and Piety.

MOREOVER, Paul Dickey and Barnard J. McOwen have been too greedy. From each situation they attempt to gain at least two vintages. Thus, after the rascals of the Yukon resort have played cards for the possession of the beautiful Nine Moosha (nee Miss Levy), another player is suddenly produced and the game is played all over again. And the villain, who is struck by lightning to furnish a fitting climax for the end of the second act, must be revived to meet Sergeant O'Day in a death struggle just before the final curtain.

But "The Dust Heap" should not be dismissed merely as a clumsy and slow-paced melodrama. It manages to be offensive as well as tiresome. Blasphemy, when backed by honest belief, should be allowed free rein, but I object to blasphemy when it is used in this cheap play merely to add shock to scenes of empty commotion. For that matters the piety of the play is in equally bad taste. It also deals in dirtiness. "The Dust Heap" is a thoroughly bad lot.

"Cobra" an Unusual Play.

"COBRA," the new play by Martin Brown, commands a profound interest. Not all its scenes seem true, but even those which are a shade off key have enough dramatic dexterity to hold attention, and it is played throughout with high skill.

Brown has built his dramatic conflicts around the clash of right and wrong. He is rather dogmatic about vice and virtue, which is not necessarily a theatrical flaw, but he has erred in occasionally setting forward mere dumbness as noble conduct.

Judith Anderson Stars.

THE play is largely written around a woman whom the author conceives as evil no end. She is the Cobra. And this part has been intrusted to an actress who plays a little better than all the rest in a brilliant cast. Judith Anderson, last seen here in "Peter Weston," gives another beautiful performance. In her last role she was condemned to rather excessive austerity. Wickedness she does even better. More than that, Brown, no matter how much he may disapprove of his villainess, has paid her the compliment of writing her down as a far more vivid person than the poor heroine. The evil Elise does lie upon occacordingly, this spectator was not wholly satisfied to watch the downfall of evil and the triumph of good works. Elise Van Zile was burned to death because she had no moral scruples, and Judith Drake, the virtuous stenographer, lived to marry the hero. I did not find that altogether heartening.

sion, but only about other people She reports her own feelings and desires with entire accuracy and frankness. And what she wants she goes after.

Annoying Virtues.

THERE is something admirable in this. The aged woman annoyed me a great deal. It wasn't because she was good, but because she was so full of reticences. She loved the hero just as much as the villainess did, but on account of being a heroine she seemed in honor bound not to tell him. At least not right away. "It can never be" was her attitude, while the wicked Elise went right up to him and threw her arms around his neck. She didn't waste any time in being cryptic or wistful, and so it seemed a shame that she should be burned to death for her sins.

And I think most people like that will get to heaven. If there were a fifth act to "Cobra" indicating the hereafter, I would rather like to take a wager on the chances of Elise and all like her. She at least will pound on the gate and say "I want to get in." Judith Drake and her [illegible] and will hang about the entrance and act coy until St. Peter gets sick of it. With so many souls thronging up to the golden gate, he will have no time to waste on people who don't know their own minds.

Story of the Play.

TO get back to the play, "Cobra" tells the story of Elilse Van Zile, who marries a man for his money and then falls in love with his best friend. Ralph Morgan plays Tony Dorning, the husband, and Louis Calhern is Jack Race, the friend. Race is a young man of low boiling point, but a good deal of ambition toward reform and remorse. In a capitally written and played scene, Elise prevails against his scruples and arranges for him to meet her and have supper in the rooms of a rowdy hotel. Remorse seizes Race in time, and he merely goes to the hotel to bid the woman a stern goodby. After his departure the hotel burns and she is killed.

The problem then arises as to his duty toward her husband, his friend. The husband only knows that his wife has disappeared. Is it best that he should be told the circumstances and put out of his misery of doubt, or have the truth, and with it the destruction of the woman whom he has idealized? In this situation the virtuous stenographer falls down badly. She has no advice to contribute, but only sweetness, which is not particularly helpful under the circumstances. Race decides not to tell, but in the end the husband learns everything except the part which Race played.

Louis Calhern, a young actor, must be set down among the fine prospects of our theater. He is first-rate already. Ralph Morgan does a scene of abject misery in the last act with an eloquence to tear your heart out. And he does it without a single alienating trick. "Cobra" may annoy you here and there, but it is worth seeing.

WASHINGTON ALUMNI TO PRESENT THREE-ACT COMEDY

"The Romantic Young Lady" Will Be Given Tuesday and Wednesday Nights.

The alumni of Washington University will present "The Romantic Young Lady," a three-act comedy from the Spanish, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, at January Hall, on the university campus, for the benefit of the women's building.

In the cast will be Misses Mae Green, Mignon Rosenthal, Dorothea Burbach, Mathilde Watson and Julia Jonah, and John Becker, William Saunders, Kenneth McMath and others.

unassuming self) to negotiate the bargain. They pool their small capital, and Polly is next seen in a marvelous (hired) frock and hat, drawing all eyes in "Fashion Row" at the Biltmore, and holding, in the hearing of anybody who looks like a financier, carefully rehearsed conversations with Bob, hinting that she is a Miss Pierpont, an aristocratic Southern girl who has run away from home to go on the films.

Anxious to Be Devoured.

Business men, artists, advertising agents hurry up, as eager for the treat as the Four Young Oysters, and the astute Bob makes appointments with them all for Saturday afternoon in "his office." This is the very establishment for the dissemination of silk underwear from which he has been so recently cast forth. Knowing that it is now empty for the week-end, he cooly takes charge, enlists the film-made office boy on his side with a bribe, alters the name on the outer door, and prepares for the syndicalising of Polly (in another frock and with Southern accent in full working order).

The scheme is nearly shipwrecked when one of the business men brings Joe Rutherford to inspect the new star, and he explains who Polly really is, and denounces the ingenious Bob as a swindler; but it is providentially steered off the rocks again by the famous film-director, Crawford Boswell, who turns up just in time to reassure the disgruntled group that, Southern heiress or Brooklyn chorus-girl, Polly is all that Bob has divined, and the Polly Pierpont Syndicate is promptly formed. (End of the first act, and amid enormous enthusiasm. Bravo, Cinderella!)

Story Abruptly Slumps.

But from this point, quite unexpectedly, Mr. Bolton altogether loses grip of his story. He allows a year or two to elapse, and shows us Polly, now an arrived star, in a rehearsal of a scene in her new film—a scene which is not convincing if it is intended to be real, nor funny enough to be considered as burlesque. His main plot devolves into a carelessly-handled story of Polly's revenge on Joe Rutherford, not only for his original offenses against her, but also for his treatment of Bob Cooley, whom he has deprived of his shares in the Polly Pierpont Syndicate by a legal technicality; and the curtain falls on a perfunctory happy ending, with Bob in possession of the girl and his shares. It is a long time since we have seen the promise of a first act so completely unfulfilled.

However, there are consolations. Miss Justine Johnstone is certainly what her picturesque-minded countrymen are wont to call "an eyeful"; and she wears some beautiful clothes. In the matter of looks, therefore, she justifies the most extravagant claim that is made on behalf of Polly Pierpont. Also, we find it easy to accept this Polly as a potential film-star, the more so as Miss Johnstone has in her own person seated that particular height.

The one postulated quality which she does not quite succeed in suggesting is personality, and this is probably due to that same film training, which has taught her a good deal about the technique of gesture and expression but has led her to neglect her voice—the weapon upon which the experienced stage-player relies to do more execution than any other in his armoury. Miss Johnstone's voice tends to be monotonous, and in consequences she loses life and color.

of "educationals." It is a direct outgrowth of the "Secrets of Life" series of insect pictures.

Sylvia Breamer, First National star, gave 50 retired fire horses a treat when she presented them with six barrels of lump sugar to keep them in sweets for a year. The horses lost their jobs when automobile engines were installed.

Twelve years of stellar experience on the screen are behind Ruth Stonehouse's characterization of Ethel Durland in "Broken Barriers." Born in Denver, Miss Stonehouse was one of the earliest favorites in pictures, beginning her career with the old Essanay Co. when Francis X. Bushman and "Broncho Billy" were better known than Henry Ford.

Ralph Graves has been signed by Mack Sennett to star in a series of two-reel comedies. Graves will be remembered as a discovery of D. W. Griffith and for his performance in that producer's "Dream Street." More recently he has been seen as the country sweetheart of Mabel Normand in "The Extra Girl," and he has just completed the leading role opposite Marion Davies in "Yolanda."

"Little Robinson Crusoe" is Jackie Coogan's next vehicle, which is said to be filled with humorous situations. Tom Santschi has been engaged to play the role of Capt. Dynes in this story, which "was written by Willard Mack. Just as Robinson Crusoe found his "Man Friday" so has Jackie Coogan in a measure, only his is a "Cat Friday." Jackie's "Friday" is paid every day with a fried fish, two pieces of liver and a ball of catnip. He has also been promised that if he is a good cat he will have a fine home for the rest of his days.

Clara Bow has been engaged by Universal to play an important role in "Wine," adapted from William McHarg's story dealing with illicit traffic in alcoholic liquors. Miss Bow's first important part was in "Down to the Sea in Ships." In "Wine" she will portray the role of a New York society flapper, whose life is almost wrecked through her utter disregard for conventions. Louis J. Gasnier will direct this production.

"The Throwback," the story which won first prize in Carl Laemmle's intercollegiate scenario scholarship competition, is nearing completion. It is being directed by Tom Forman, the leading roles being played by Pat O'Malley and Mary Astor. William Ellwell Oliver, a student at the University of California, wrote the story.

Combing Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and it never fails to do the work.

THE CALL OF THE WILD

(Copyright, 1924.)

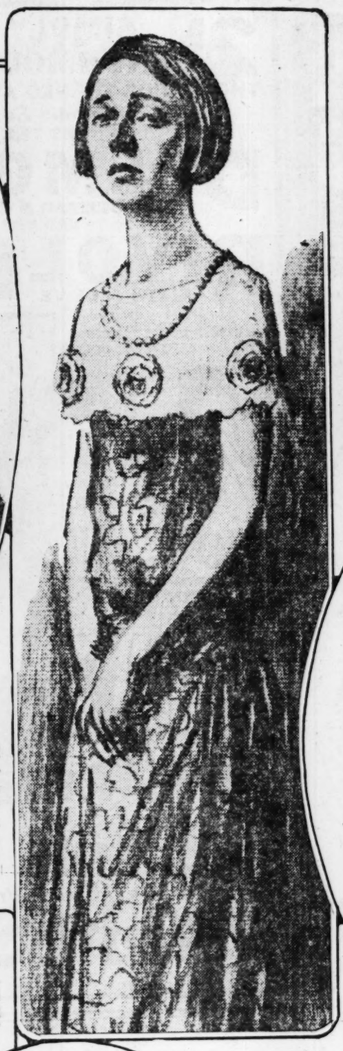
Drawn by W. E. Hill for the Sunday Post-Dispatch

Marie has harkened to the call of the wild and is going in for classic dancing and poses for all the world like early Greek stuff. Just look at her, will you?

Sometimes the answer to the call of the wild takes the form of a community pageant, or a masque, and, oh, what a jolly time the people in it do have! Here's Adolph Peters, who clerks at Baldwin's drug store, all fixed up as General Washington, in the Revolutionary episode.

Every springtime Ida hears the call of the wild, which is a terrible feeling in a family steeped in Puritan tradition. Ida is being just a bit kittenish—not enough, mind you, for him to get fresh on—with a delivery boy. When Ida goes in, her mother will want to know who came and why she was so long in answering the door.

A feeling of vague unrest has gripped Alma, only daughter of $17,000,000. Tomorrow she's going job hunting and by day after she'll be installed behind the counter of a "Little Book Shop."



Beautiful ladies who are all tied up with social activities can't, of course, get very far into the wild, free, open spaces, so, when the call of the wild gets them, they take up with a lot of wild artists and minor celebrities and have a beautiful time.

The Geographic Magazine has Arthur so upset he can't settle down to anything. Oh, to be in a thicket on the Malay Peninsula now that it's the month of roses!

There's more than one answer to the call of the wild. When Mr. Pawling feels the urge to get out of his rut in the egg and butter business, he ups and follows in the wake of a convention.

The call to higher life has got Mrs. Waldo Ormsby She is going in for Eastern soul culture all by herself with a little handbook as guide See how ardently she sits in meditation before a beautiful rose. Whether or not the chops came from the butcher. how stupid Joe was not to remember the theater tickets, three unpaid bills that have come in red ink—these are only a few of the items which claim Mrs. Waldo's inner mind at the present moment

It's the call of the wild, the wanderlust, that has got old "Dud" Hoegate. He's being a boy again with the class of umpty umph at reunion. Hear him saying "Twenty-three, skidoo, you lemon!" and all the snappy stuff

Poor Mr. Grubb. He felt the urge to seek the open places and did. He's wondering if there's much in the way of mail accumulating at the office.

Voice of Union Labor And the Radical Press

The Post-Dispatch herewith extracts from editorial or other articles in organs of labor unions and Communist and Socialist Parties showing the tendency of thought on public questions among the bodies of citizens and indicating causes of social unrest.

DAUGHERTY AND DEBS.
(From the Illinois Miner-Labor.)

Words of "wise men" often have a personal application of which the author is unaware, but which comes home to roost with disconcerting directness. Consider the words of ex-Attorney - General Daugherty to Eugene V. Debs when the Socialist leader was released from Atlanta where he had served a term for alleged violation of the infamous Espionage act. "I hope that you will not attempt to capitalize your notoriety."

TENANTS OF THE STATE.
(From the Seattle Union Record. Labor.)

Taxes on farm lands are rapidly approximating the annual value of farm lands. Unless there is a check in the movement, farm land in most states will be virtually confiscated by the State and farmers will practically be tenants of the State.

These significant statements were made by Dr. Richard F. Ely, professor of economics at Wisconsin and director of the institute for research in land economics and public utilities, in an address before the Tri-State Development Congress, called by the Governors of Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, at Duluth.

Dr. Ely called attention to the fact that while taxes are continually tending to increase, farm land values have dropped about 20 per cent from their peak in 1920, according to estimates of the Department of Agriculture.

Washington is the most stupidly and extravagantly taxed State in the Union. Yet the farmers must take a good share of the responsibility for their own troubles. Until recently they kept putting in office the reactionary Republicans who have so mis-governed this State. The remedy for unjust taxation is always available for election day.

DIVIDING UP WITH HARRY.
(From the Milwaukee Leader Socialist.)

Harry Thaw's fortune has been increasing steadily while he has been in prison and asylum. He is now reputed to be worth about $6,000,000. How does this come about? It is due to the famous individual initiative which all good devotees of capitalism rave about?

The only individual initative we ever heard of Harry exercising was that which he used in bumping off Stanford White, and later in making a spectacular escape from Matteawan. As for individual initiative in establishing or managing industries, he has displayed none at all. Yet he is worth $6,000,000. How come? Please explain, you devotees of capitalism.

Is his great fortune due to his having been frugal and saving, while his "fellow workers" were wasting their substance on silk shirts and Ford cars? Not so you could notice. He never has had any fellow workers, since he never has done anything to speak of except to be a rich man's son and serve time and seek release. In these activities he has spent lots of money, instead of saving. So, the saving argument—which the devotees of capitalism also rave about—won't work either.

The plain truth is that many useful men and women have been deliberately contributing to Harry's fortune while he was within the walls. He had his money invested in various industries. The people who work in those industries have kindly divided up with him. They have allowed a part of their earnings to go regularly to swell his fortune. He has not earned a cent of the increase. He simply gets it by means of the dividing up system—capitalism—which, while it exists, compels the industrious to divide up with the idle. It would not exist, however, if those who are compelled to divide up did not permit it to exist.

PREPARING THE NEXT BLOOD BATH.
(From the New Leader, Socialist.)

One of the "essential industries" of modern capitalism is the invention of more powerful methods of mass murder. Last week London reported a number of these inventions. One of these is a "death ray," a ray that kills from a long distance and which is capable of bringing airplanes crashing to the earth. A "mechanical soldier" is also a new wrinkle. It consists of nests of powerful mines controlled by one underground wireless station which can be exploded at a distance. Then there are the "radio-controlled gas mines which can be raised to the surface and their gas released by pressing a button miles away."

So the hideous dance of death proceeds. Added to liquid fire-spreading disease germs and poisoning streams, our "Christian civilization" promises a bloody shambles in "the next war" that will make the "last war" resemble a Sunday school outing.

One could only wish that when the next blood bath is fully prepared and the diplomats are ready to give the masses the order to go forth and kill each other that these masses will then be ready to overthrow the ruling classes and their agents. Having done that it might be a good thing for the revolutionary governments to conscript every military general and navy commander; every former head of an imperialist government and every diplomat; every capitalist, politician and newspaper editor who helped to prepare this ghastly thing. Then send them all to the front lined up in two opposing camps and let them play with those murderous devices until they exterminate each other.

It would be a fitting end of a "civilization" that provides an inducement for mass murder and it would be one way of "making the world safe for democracy."

ART FORGERIES SENT TO LONDON DISPLAY

Harvard Contributes to Unique Exhibition Showing Faked Oil Paintings.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 3.—Specimens of art forgeries have just been sent to England by the Fogg Art Museum of Harvard University to enter a unique exhibition of forgeries, imitations and copies, being held by the Burlington Fine Arts Club.

Sir Robert Witt, one of the trustees of the National Gallery of London, asked E. W. Forbes, director of the Fogg Art Museum, to send to this exhibition some of the examples which he has collected. One of them is a panel picture which was made as a deliberate forgery by a Venetian. This painter has made imitations which have fooled some of the eminent critics of Italy. He explained to Forbes how he had ingeniously produced the deceptive effects for which he strived, and then presented Forbes with the picture.

Fresco by Harvard Student.

Another picture is a fresco which was done on the garden wall of a villa near Florence by Henry Scott, one of the assistants in the Harvard Division of Fine Arts, and which was transferred to canvas by Daniel V. Thompson Jr., a student at Harvard, and brought back to America by him.

In addition, two original pictures were sent, one of them because it had been repainted at one time. Although the repaint has been cleaned off, the picture is accompanied by a photograph of it as it was while it was virtually a forgery. This picture was loaned to the Fogg Museum many years ago.

The other is the picture of Carol Crivelli, recently given to the Fogg Art Museum by Arthur Sachs of New York, which is immensely valuable to the students at Harvard because part of it is the genuine work of one of the great masters of the Italian renaissance, and the other part is from the hand of one of the most skillful of Italian restorers, who has made his additions so cleverly that it is hard to tell what is old and what is new.

Pictures Used in "Laboratory."

These pictures are part of the teaching equipment of the Department of Fine Arts at Harvard, in which "laboratory" methods of instruction have been developed to a high degree of efficiency.

The Burlington Fine Arts Club, which is sponsoring the exhibit, is a well-known institution in London to which most of the museum officials and art critics of distinction belong. The club is in the habit of having special exhibitions, and a number of very beautiful and important collections have been gathered there. Some of the best-known exhibitions of the past have been those of pictures of the Umbrian School, of the School of Siena, of ancient Greek art, of early German art and of Dutch masters of the seventeenth century.

Good Will Tour to Cairo, Ill.

Cairo, Ill., will be visited by members of the North St. Louis Business Men's Association Wednesday, May 21, on their twelfth annual Good Will Tour. The delegation will arrive in Cairo by rail at 11 a. m. and the day's schedule will include dinner at the Halliday Hotel, an automobile tour of the city, inspection of industrial plants, a trip on the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers, and a barbecue at the Egyptian Country Club.

Alkali in Soap Bad for the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali.* This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is sufficient to cleanse your hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store; it is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

WEAK?

WHAT a joy it is to once more feel the tingle of vigorous health and strength after going on for months in a weak, nervous, ailing, run-down state. It just goes to show how vital it is to keep the blood stream flowing rich and red. When the iron in the blood runs low both body and mind fail to work right, but once you put back into the blood the vital elements which are wasted every day a most remarkable change quickly takes place.

Since the discovery of a newer form of iron, like the natural iron in your blood, it has become an easy matter to renew the red corpuscles in your blood and quickly increase vitality. This is put up in simple tablets known as Nuxated Iron and is entirely different from the old forms of metallic iron which often upset the stomach or injure and blacken the teeth. It is now being used by over 4,000,000 people annually for red blood, strength and endurance.

If you feel tired in the morning, restless at night, if you suffer from weakness or lack of vitality, simply try taking two Nuxated Iron Tablets with each meal for two weeks and note the amazing change in your health, vigor, energy and endurance. You should be astonished at the results in even a few days' time. Satisfaction is guaranteed or the druggist will refund your money.

WHAT a joy it is to once more feel the tingle of vigorous health and strength after going on for months in a weak, nervous, ailing, run-down state. It just goes to show how vital it is to keep the blood stream flowing rich and red. When the iron in the blood runs low both body and mind fail to work right, but once you put back into the blood the vital elements which are wasted every day a most remarkable change quickly takes place.

Since the discovery of a newer form of iron, like the natural iron in your blood, it has become an easy matter to renew the red corpuscles in your blood and quickly increase vitality. This is put up in simple tablets known as Nuxated Iron and is entirely different from the old forms of metallic iron which often upset the stomach or injure and blacken the teeth. It is now being used by over 4,000,000 people annually for red blood, strength and endurance.

If you feel tired in the morning, restless at night, if you suffer from weakness or lack of vitality, simply try taking two Nuxated Iron Tablets with each meal for two weeks and note the amazing change in your health, vigor, energy and endurance. You should be astonished at the results in even a few days' time. Satisfaction is guaranteed or the druggist will refund your money.

AMATEUR FLOWER SHOW OPENS MAY 17

Annual Event to Promote Artistic Interest to Be Held in Shaw's Garden.

|||R||| |||R|||
FLOWER—SUNDAY INTER
FRIDAY NITE RUN

The fifth annual amateur flower show will be held at Shaw's Garden for two days, beginning Saturday, May 17, under auspices of the Garden Club of St. Louis, to promote interest in gardening and show possibilities of flower culture in back yards and small plots.

There will be prizes for familiar plants and flowers, and these include choice bulgs and seeds given by wholesale florists in many parts of the country. There are also garden tools, vases, bird baths, silver plates and medals. Members of the Garden Club will not compete for prizes. A catalogue may be obtained from Shaw's Garden.

There are special prizes offered for children's entries, either individually or in school groups. A medal and cash prize of $50 is offered for the best and most artistic bird bath submitted by a St. Louis sculptor.

A section of the flower show is to be devoted to the miniature gardens, for which many prizes are offered. These are to be built on trays, with house, grounds, flower plots, etc., laid out in perfect proportions. Mrs. A. Shapleigh Boyd, 4623 Pershing avenue, is chairman of the miniature gardens entries, and will send a set of directions to anyone wishing to enter the competition.

Purchased flowers may be used in competing for the prizes offered for the best arrangements of floral decorations for luncheon tables, living rooms and dinners. The flower show is free to the public, no charge being made for entries or for admission to the show. Mrs. O. K. Bovard and Mrs. E. H. Simmons are in charge of the arrangements for the flower show and Mrs. Charles M. Rice and Mrs. W. N. Matthews are chairmen of the general committees.

POINCARE "FIRED" JULES

Butler's Speculating in Francs Cost Him Job With Premier.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 3.—The extensive ramification of the speculation in francs during the recent decline of the French currency has just been illustrated by a story affecting Premier Poincare's own household.

One morning when the dollar was quoted at about 25 francs, Mme. Poincare's maid came to her and said:

"I've saved a little money and would like to invest it advantageously. Jules (the head butler of the Premier's home) advised me to speculate with it. Jules say 'I sell francs. Do as I do.'

"Madame, I don't know what he means by sellings francs, so I decided to ask you to advise me whether I should accept Jules' proposition."

As soon as M. Poincare came home, Mme. Poincare told him about Jules' unpatriotic speculation, whereupon the butler, despite a long and satisfactory explanation, was given a week's pay and told to speculate as much as he liked, but that he had finished his work for the Premier's establishment.

M. BARTHOU A WALKING TAB

Keeps Appointments, Addresses and Phone Numbers in Head.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 3.—Louis Barthou, president of the reparation commission, who is reputed to be the highest salaried French public official—his honorarium amounts to about $25,000 a year—has become known among his friends as a veritable walking calendar. Despite the numerous appointments that a man in his position must make and keep he never keeps a memorandum of his engagements, but just remembers them.

One of his intimate friends the other day remarked that if one invited M. Barthou to dine, setting the day three or four weeks in advance, he would think a minute and say no, he had an appointment with so-and-so but hadn't any appointment for the next day. Sometimes his friends will ask for an interview at "Four o'clock a week from Wednesday." M. Barthou refers to his mental notebook and says he is scheduled to meet somebody else at that hour but will be free at five o'clock. He never puts down telephone numbers or addresses but is never mistaken about either.

LAWYERS INVITED TO PARIS

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., May 3.—Members of the American Bar Association who attend the special meeting of the association to be held in London during the week of July 21 have been invited to be the guests of the Order of Advocates of Paris, during their trip to Europe. The invitation was cabled to R. E. L. Saner of Dallas, president of the association, by M. Tourcave, president of the Paris order.

Saner also has received invitations from the Scottish Bar Association at Edinburgles and the Irish Bar Association at Dublin. The invitations were referred to John W. Davis of New York, chairman of the London Committee. A special joint meeting of the American Bar with the English Bar is being arranged by and at the invitation of the English Bar. Mr. Saner estimated that at least 1500 American lawyers would attend.

Kills Catarrh Germs In Three Minutes

Chronic catarrah, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex kills the germ in three minutes, yet is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it and to introduce Lavex to a million sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid, to anyone who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it cures you, you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

RHEUMATISM LEAVES YOU FOREVER

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-four Hours.

Every druggist in this county is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if a full pint bottle of Allenrhu, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not show the way to stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrhu has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, of Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of Allenrhu, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu definitely conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed druggists to guarantee it as above in every instance. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. can supply you.

Money of No Value

"Life had no pleasures for me. Although I had plenty of money it was of no value, as my stomach almost constantly distressed me. I lost faith in all doctors and medicine. Talking with my druggist about my case he advised me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I am now enjoying life again." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph (3 stores), Ederle Drug Co. (5 drug stores), Brown-Cloughly, Johnson Bros. Drug Co, and druggists everywhere.

Teeth Stains Bleached Out New Safe Way

Say Goodbye to dull, yellow, stained teeth! For a new harmless treatment—Bleachodent Combination—bleaches away the stains and makes teeth flashing white—often in just three minutes. Treatment consists of a mild, safe liquid, which curdles and softens the stains—and a new kind of paste, which gently removes the softened stains. Bleachodent Combination keeps teeth white by preventing the formation of new stains. Does not affect enamel, as its mild ingredients are especially combined to act only on surface stains—not on the enamel itself. Only a safe, mild preparation like Bleachodent Combination should be used on children's teeth, which are naturally soft and sensitive, and which are especially subject to stains and decay. Fine for the gums. Get Bleachodent Combination today. Your few cents at all good druggists.

Luxurious, beautiful and strong—
this spirally woven carriage

What comfort awaits your baby in the roomy, soft-cushioned depths of this luxurious, easy-riding carriage! And what beauty it offers you and every particular mother! Spirally woven, of a single, continuous strand of finest wicker on the remarkable Lloyd Loom, it has a graceful bowl shape and smooth, unbroken lines which no other carriage can duplicate.

No seams, corners or concealed ends of wicker mar the loveliness of this carriage. Every refinement of finish and upholstery contributes to its beauty. Yet, because the patented Lloyd Loom weaving is thirty times as fast as hand weaving, the Lloyd Loom Carriage costs less than any other fine carriage. See the Lloyd at your dealer's. Look for the Lloyd name plate on the seat. Lloyd Loom Furniture and Doll Carriages are made by the same spiral weaving process. Mail coupon for dealer's name.

"SAVE YOUR SIGHT DAY" TO BE MAY 14

Public May Have Eyes Tested Free by Blind Association on That Date.

Everyone in St. Louis will be given opportunity to have their eyes tested free on May 14, which has been designated first annual "Save Your Sight Day," it was decided at a recent meeting in the offices of the Missouri Association for the Blind, which is sponsoring the affair. Seven clinics will be established and services of members of the Opthalmic Section of the St. Louis Medical Society will be given free.

Most of the clinics will be open to the public during the afternoon. Volunteer workers from organizations co-operating in the movement will be stationed at five of the clinics to assist in making out the records which will be preserved for use next year.

The clinics where the tests will be given and the hours during which those desiring tests are asked to present themselves follow:

Mullanphy Hospital, 3225 Montgomery street, 9 to 10 a. m.; Washington University Dispensary, 602b South Euclid avenue, 2 to 3 p. m.; St. John's Dispensary, Twenty-third and Locust streets, 2 to 3 p. m.; City Hospital, 1601 South Fourteenth street, 2:30 p. m.; St. Mary's Dispensary, 1507 Chouteau avenue, 2:30 to 3:30 p. m.; Alexian Brothers' Hospital, 3933 South Broadway, 3 to 4 p. m.; St. Louis University, 3 to 4 p. m.

Following each test the applicant will be given a certificate of vision; which will show the defect, if any, and how it can be corrected. Persons also will be told how to proceed in correcting any defect.

The Missouri Commission for the Blind, one of the co-operating agencies is particularly anxious to reach automobile drivers and have them apply for eye tests. The commission expressed the belief yesterday that many automobile accidents are due to faulty vision.

In order that the public may know what the Missouri Commission and the Missouri Association for the Blind are doing for sightless persons, open house will be held at the Missouri School for the Blind, Spring and Magnolia avenues, and the blind workshop at 1625 North Jefferson avenue, from 9 a. m. until noon.

A night meeting with speakers on subjects concerning the blind will be rranged. The Medical Society has tendered the use of its auditorium. Organizations co-operating with the Missouri Commission are the Junior League, Board of Religious Organizations, Catholic Alumnae Association, Council of Jewish Women, Safety Council, Medical Society and Community Fund and Community Council.

ENGLISH ACTORS TO STOP OVERCROWDING OF STAGE

Plan Examination for Applicants for the Footlights—Would Issue Certificate of Merit.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 3.—Climbing the uncertain road to stardom on the English stage is to be even harder, if the Actors' Association has a say in the matter. Members of the association recently held a meeting in one of the large London theaters to protest the present conditions which govern their profession. They were almost unanimous in the opinion that the first step should be to prevent overcrowding by placing stricter qualifications on newcomers.

The meeting recommended that steps should be taken to have applicants for the footlights take an examination. The newcomers, it was declared, should not be allowed to put foot on the stage until granted certificates, after which they should be made to undergo several years' apprenticeship before being allowed to move higher in the ranks. This would keep all undesirables from the profession, eliminate foreigners from obtaining places while domestic artis's are out of work, and benefit the stage to the extent of insuring steady workers for all positions from the chorus to the leading parts.

The actors see in this project a way to eliminate a real bone of contention among them, which is the so-called favorite, who is able to get on the stage through influence or money. The commission to grant certificates woul dbe composed of actors and producers, who would have power to control matters relating to applicants' qualifications, and the introduction of foreign actors to the British stage.

THIRD MUSICAL COMEDY

The third musical comedy to be presented under the auspices of Perfection Chapter, Order of De Molay, is "Hello, Dearie," by Lucien Denni, which will be given at the American Theater during the week of May 12.

A cast of 125 is promised, including Ruby Beatty, Woody Lee Wilson and Lucille Campbell, professionals, besides many St. Louisans.

New York Plans Muny Opera Season.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 3.—A season of municipal opera, modeled after that of St. Louis, has been projected for Starlight Park, in the Bronx, by Capt. E. Whitwell, director of the park, beginning this summer. The enterprise is said to have the support of prominent New Yorkers. Edward W. Bok is sponsoring a similar season at the Academy, in Philadelphia.

Here it is! The ONLY Bed Spring that you can ADJUST to suit your own comfort

The Key to Perfect Slumber

NEW ADJUSTABLE "NEVER-SAG" Knitted Wire Bed Spring

Heretofore, when you bought a bed spring, you had to buy a spring of standard tension—a spring that was not made for YOU but for every one, regardless of whether the user was heavy or light, young or old, sick or well. You had to accommodate yourself to the bed spring, instead of making the bed spring accommodate itself to you.

Now All This is Changed

For the first time, you are offered the Adjustable NEVER-SAG Knitted Wire Bed Spring—a bed spring that can easily be adjusted to suit your own comfort and sleeping habits. It is the most desirable improvement that has been made in bed spring construction and one that means greater comfort, sounder sleep, better health and longer life.

The Importance of a Bed Spring

Whether you spend your nights rolling and tossing—or whether you sleep well and arise rested—depends in a large measure on the bed spring—for it is the foundation of bed comfort. Stout people require a harder spring than thin people—children need a softer spring than adults. Nearly all people sleep better on a firm spring in warm weather as they do not sink so deeply into the bedding—and they want a softer spring in winter so they can snuggle down and enjoy the bedding and covers.

The Key to Perfect Slumber

The Adjustable NEVER-SAG Bed Spring can be adjusted to any degree of tension desired, by a simple turn of a key. This, in one minute, changes the spring—making it soft and firm or soft and yielding—to suit the season of the year and to afford the greatest comfort to the users, whether they be young or old, heavy or light, fat or thin, sick or well. Furthermore—either side of the spring can be adjusted separately to suit the individual sleeping habits and comfort of two persons.

Exclusive NEVER-SAG Features

From the standpoint of comfort and long life, the NEVER-SAG has always been considered the best bed spring on the market. It is different from all others—the entire spring fabric is actually knitted from one continuous strand of tempered spring wire with no loose ends to catch and tear the bedding. The knitting is an exclusive NEVER-SAG feature. It is comfortable, noiseless, rust resisting, sanitary and has a firm border band. Added to these well known qualities, the new NEVER-SAG is now equipped with this exclusive adjustable feature which puts it in a class by itself. No other spring can give you the comfort of the NEVER-SAG. Even if you think your present spring is satisfactory, you do not know what real sleeping comfort is until you have tried the NEVER-SAG.

See the Adjustable NEVER-SAG

Go to your dealer—ask to see the Adjustable NEVER-SAG Bed Spring—note its many exclusive points of superiority—and let the salesman show you how easily and simply it can be adjusted to any tension—a double assurance that it can never sag but will always present a surface particularly suited to your individual comfort. Guaranteed for 25 years.

Don't Neglect Catarrh

While catarrh in itself may not be dangerous, when neglected it often leads to all sorts of complications. Authorities claim that nearly 90% of all deafness is caused primarily by Catarrh of the head and throat. Others state that it leads to indigestion, catarrh of the stomach and many other distressing conditions.

Just Try It Free

I don't ask you to send one penny for the treatment. Not even postage. I send it to you paid without cost or obligation. I am doing this to quickly advertise my original home treatment for sufferers from catarrh, catarrhal deafness and head noises. Writing me places you under no obligation whatever. I believe I treat more cases of catarrhal deafness and head noises than any physician in the United States and I honestly believe my treatment is the best I have ever used. I positively offer you a free trial treatment. Send me your name and address whether you suffer from catarrh, only, or are troubled with deafness and head noises. You may not appear again so write me at once.

St. Louis Negroes Are Rapidly Developing Many and Varied Lines of Business Enterprise

Insurance, Real Estate, Manufacturing, House Furnishing, Taxi Service and Advertising Among Increasing Activities.

By GORDON H. SIMPSON

Executive Secretary of the Urban League of St. Louis, Organized to Do Welfare Work Among the Negroes of the City.

ONE of the most significant characteristics of the steadily increasing negro urban population is the development and growth of negro business. As a race, negroes are realizing the value of organization as opposed to individual effort, and as a consequence, when one travels through a negro business area, he sees less and less of the old familiar signs of "John Smith" or "Jim Jones" as individual operators of business, and more and more of "John Smith & Sons" or "Jim Jones & Co." or of some corporation. In the last two decades numerous stock companies have been organized in practically every line of business. Insurance takes the lead by a wide margin, and closely following are newspaper companies, manufacturers of toilet articles, banking, trust and loan companies. Real estate companies are appearing extensively; but it has been only in more recent years that men interested in this line have really got together in an organized way.

It is interesting to note that parallel with the growing race consciousness of negroes there has come about a greater desire to organize in all lines. Civil rights organizations such as the National Association for the advancement of Colored People, the Equal Rights League, the Garvey Movement, and similar organizations have aided in the development of this consciousness, and the lessons learned have led to the realization of the value of co-operation and organized effort in business.

Negro Gets Into Trade.

While the country is watching the course of the new Immigration bill now being considered by Congress, as well as studying the effect of urban life upon groups isolated because of race or language, it is well to consider the effect of this same type of isolation upon the negro population. Discrimination against the employment of negroes in certain types of work, together with unequal wages paid to negroes for the same type of work as done by whites, as well as the growing need for places of employment for the increasing number of boys and girls graduating from high schools and commercial colleges every year, has taught the negro that he must prepare a place within his own business houses in order to find employment for these trained boys and girls. One result of this movement is reflected in the steadily increasing number of negro students enrolling in business courses in the colleges and universities throughout the country. The demand is steadily increasing for men and women trained along business and commercial lines.

This same isolation, developed from barriers which restrict a part of the population to a definite area, has resulted in increasing the needs of the people concerned. Within such areas there inevitably grow up businesses of all kinds to meet these growing needs. In many instances in the negro sections of the city, whites and foreigners have set up businesses and in a few years have moved to other sections and retired on their earnings. Negroes are fast awakening to this state of affairs and are grasping these opportunities by organizing businesses which keep more of their capital within their own group. There is also a growing realization on the part of negroes that if they patronize negro businesses and make them successful, they will be paving the way for the more extensive employment of their boys and girls whom they are now educating in the schools.

Negro Business Association.

Typical of the increasing organizations among negro business men throughout the country is the St. Louis Negro Business Association. This organization, which has been in existence for several years, has been most active in the last six months. Recently under its auspices there was conducted a "negro trade week," with the object of developing bigger business for, by and with negroes. Prizes were awarded to stimulate trade and at the close of the week practically all of the merchants reported an increase in their business, as well as the securing of many new customers. One feature of the trade week was a motor parade held on

Tries Ice For Gas on Stomach

Mr. Sanderson Tries Ice. Also Hot Application

"I had been bothered with pain in the right side (due to pressure of gas in intestines and stomach). Although I used ice bags and hot applications the pain did not leave. After taking three doses Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) the pain is gone and I feel good."—(Signed) J. A. Sanderson.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never though was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports from Physicians

"I found Adlerika the best in my entire 37 years experience."—(Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose."—(Signed) Dr. F. M. P. (Name given on request.)

"I have found nothing in my 40 years' practice to excel Adlerika."—(Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system."—(Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington, and Enderle Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

We have a method for the control of Asthma, and we want you to try it at our expense. No matter whether your case is of long standing or recent development, whether it is present as Chronic Asthma or Hay Fever, you should send for a free Trial of our method. No matter in what climate you live, no matter what your age or occupation, if you are troubled with Asthma or Hay Fever, our method should relieve you promptly.

We especially want to send it to those apparently hopeless cases, where all forms of inhalers, douches, opium preparations, fumes, "patent smokes," etc., have failed. We want to show everyone at our expense, that our method is designed to end all difficult breathing, all wheezing, and all those terrible paroxysms.

This free offer is too important to neglect a single day. Write now and begin the method at once. Send no money. Simply mail coupon below. Do it today—you even do not pay postage.

ST. LOUIS NEGROES RAPIDLY DEVELOPING BUSINESS ENTERPRISES

Monday, April 7. The line of march extended through the principal streets of the section of the city largely populated by negroes. One hundred and seventy-five motor vehicles were in line and displayed signs indicating the businesses which they represented, and advertised the fact that their purpose was to serve.

An idea of the extent of negro business organizations in the city will be gained from a list of the types of businesses represented in the parade, as follows: Garages and auto repairs, hotel operators, ice, insurance, manufacturers, disinfectants, groceries and meats, house and window cleaners, mattress makers and renovators, hatters, dressmakers, restaurants dry goods and furnishings, barbers, moving and hauling, jewelers and opticians, plumbers, hardware, house furnishings, advertising, motion pictures makers, amusements, auto oils, millinery, beauty culturists, cigar makers, coal and coke, confectioners, druggists, publishers and printers, oil filling station, express and hauling, real estate, shoe makers, photographers, tailors, cleaners, candy makers, upholstering, cabinet work, teas, coffee, spices, painters and decorators, delivery service, music stores, shoe shining parlors, undertakers and several other miscellaneous lines.

The St. Louis Negro Business Association has as its motto: "Negro Business to the Front." Its slogan is "Work, Thrift, Co-operation."

An idea of the spirit behind the organization may be gained from a study of its seal, the design for which was drawn by a colored young man, Wayman Bradshaw. This seal depicts a lion standing upon the past background of unorganized negro business with its forepaws resting on a shield, which shows the pyramids, denoting the strength and durability which come from "co-operation." The rising sun behind shows the rise of the negro race. In the background back of the lion are perpendicular lines indicating the straight progress of negro business.

The officers and directors of the Negro Business Association are as follows: John W. Haps, president; Pearl Abernathy, vice president; Allie N. Jones, secretary; Washington Rochester, assistant secretary; J. Velar, treasurer. The members of the board of directors are: Bismarck Lavine, R. Manuel, Elbert H. Hill, Gordon H. Simpson, Sam Shepard, P. Abernathy, T. J. Nevins, J. Velar, Allie N. Jones and John W. Hays.

Largest Negro Business.

The largest business in St. Louis operated by negroes is Poro College, of which Mrs. Annie M. Malone is president. This institution has grown in a few years' time from a modest business conducted in a house to a corporation with over a half million dollars in buildings and equipment. Its business of hair culture is nationally known to the race. There

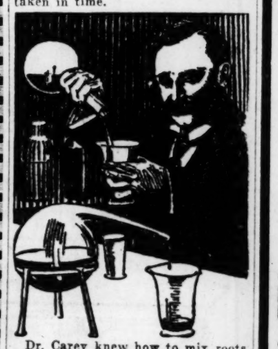
Roots and Herbs Best for Kidneys

Daniel G. Carey, M. D.

BACKACHE

said Dr. Carey, is a pretty sure sign that all is not well with your kidneys.

Delay may be dangerous—thousands of people die every year from kidney troubles and many could be saved if the right medicine was taken in time.



Dr. Carey knew how to mix roots and herbs, and for over 40 years his famous Marshroot Prescription 777 helped thousands of despairing people. It's the one remedy for backache troubles. Don't take chances—ask Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Keiffer Drug Co. for it by name—liquid or tablet form—equally good. 75c.

ST. LOUIS NEGROES RAPIDLY DEVELOPING BUSINESS ENTERPRISES

are other companies in the same line operating on a smaller scale in St. Louis such as Majors Oxford College and branches of several other nationally known toilet manufacturers.

In the newspaper business the St. Louis Argus, of which J. E. Mitchell is editor, has a weekly circulation of over 25,000. This company has also one of the best equipped printing establishments among negroes in the country. Other firms making big strides in the printing business are C. K. Robinson Printing Co., Cathrell Printing Co. and the Great Western Printing Co.

The financial field was entered by negroes in St. Louis about two years ago, with the organization of the People's Loan and Finance Co. This organization, which has recently changed its name to the People's Finance Corporation, is now in a campaign to increase its capital from $115,000 to $250,000. After this new issue of stock is sold, the directors intend to establish a trust company. The officers of the company are as follows: Charles E. Herriet, president; J. E. Mitchell, vice president; W. H. A. Barrett, vice president; George H. Anderson, secretary; E. L. Harris, treasurer; D. W. Bowles, chairman Finance Committee and counsel; George W. Buckner, manager. Its directors, in addition to the officers, are: B. F. Abbott, N. C. Cleanes, F. C. Cox, G. J. Dixon, Edward L. Grant, C. H. Greenup, William L. Perry, Charles H. Phillips Jr., C. H. Turpin and L. S. Williams.

Since its organization in October, 1922, this company has made over $200,000 in loans. At present its monthly applications for loans average over $30,000. Its increase in stock at this time is required to meet the steady demands being made for loans, and the company plans to enlarge its finances so that it can more adequately take care of the financial needs of negroes in St. Louis and the State of Missouri.

In the Insurance Field.

Another line of business in which remarkable development has taken place in the last few years is insurance. Due to the fact that many white companies discriminate in their policies and premiums against negroes, and the further fact that up to very recently few companies employed negroes as salesmen or agents, there are now operated throughout the country over 40 negro insurance companies, all of which are steadily increasing the number of their policy holders and the amount of negro business. St. Louis is the home of one of the younger insurance companies, the Douglass Life Insurance Co. Its officers are: W. H. Mosby, president; J. K. Parker, vice president; A. C. Maclin, secretary and manager; G. J. Dixon, medical director; T. A. Curtis, treasurer.

In St. Louis there is also a district office of the Standard Life Insurance Co. of Atlanta, Ga. This company, together with its subsidiaries, has assets of over $9,000,000. Herman E. Perry of Atlanta, Ga., is president.

An idea of the way in which negro business is attracting men from other lines of endeavor may be gained by the knowledge of the fact that this last named company has taken from St. Louis in the past three years three high school teachers and a Y. M. C. A. secretary, as well as several other young men and women.

The Mid-West Life Insurance Co. of Kansas City, Mo., the Atlanta Life Insurance Co. of Atlanta, Ga., the Pyramid Mutual of Chicago, and most recently the Liberty Life of Chicago, also have offices in St. Louis. The Domestic Life Insurance Company of Louisville, Ky., has its representatives, George Mays and R. E. Winlock, in St. Louis at present selling stock in that company and arranging to open up a district office here.

In the Real Estate Line.

Concomitant with the growing negro urban population has been the development of real esate companies. Several large companies are operating in St. Louis, the principal of which are Abernathy R. E. Co., Hays-Orme R. E. Co., C. M. Moore, J. T. Bush R. E. Co., Hutchinson Inge R. E. Co., N. Hairston, Woody Jacobs R. E. Co., Langston Harrison, Ideal Investment Co., Holman R. E. Co., Geo. T. Kyle R. ST. LOUIS NEGROES RAPIDLY DEVELOPING BUSINESS ENTERPRISES cialty of handling property for sale and rental to colored people. Their business is rapidly increasing because of the growing demand for the purchase of houses by negroes.

One significant factor connected with J. T. Bush R. E. Co. is that through it the American Woodmen, a national negro fraternal organization, offers its funds for investment. Through Mr. Bush hundreds of negro families in St. Louis have been saved from foreclosures of mortgages, while many have been enabled to finance their purchases of property.

The negro real estate dealers are today playing a very important part in the housing adjustment of the steadily increasing negro population. During the past year the most active among them have joined an organization called the St. Louis Housing Exchange. Through this medium there has been an interchange of information as well as methods of handling and acquiring real estate which has been quite valuable to its members.

One other important line in which negroes have developed strong business organization has been undertaking. Practically all of the companies operating have their own motor vehicle equipment, hearses and cars. Outstanding among these are the W. C. Gordon Undertaking Co., Russell Undertaking Co., L. S. Williams, Charles Gates, R. Manuel, Harrison & McKoin, Ike Neal, W. S. Wade, A. L. Beal, Peoples Burial League, and others.

Giving Taxicab Service.

An instance where discrimination against negroes has resulted in the establishment of negro business has been the taxicab. Taking advantage of the situation, Richard H. Kent, one of the owners of the St. Louis Stars baseball team, organized the Star Cab Co. a little less than a year ago. At the present time this company has 20 "Star" cabs and six "Calumet" cabs operating in St. Louis. They are constantly in demand for service. Within the last three months three other cab companies have organized in St. Louis. The Arrow Cab Co., with 12 new cars, Your Cab Co. of Chicago with two cars, soon to be increased to 10, while the Blue Jay Taxicab Co., which operates private cars, has four Buick sedans in operation. The Red Ball Cab Co., as well as the several other private individuals, also operate taxicabs. All of these companies are rendering an increasing service to the large negro population of St. Louis.

In the drug business E. L. Harris & Son, located at Chestnut and Jefferson; Cox Pharmacy at Compton and Lucas, West End Pharmacy at Sarah and Finney, Shaw's Pharmacy at Pendleton and Finney, W. H. Mosby Drug Co. at Jefferson and Wash, J. Easter Pharmacy, 2246 Market street, and Morgan Pharmacy at Pendleton and North Market, are all doing very extensive business. A new drug company will be opened within the next few weeks at the corner of Laclede and Ewing by Lucien Simms, who for a number of years has been associated with E. L. Harris. It is significant to note that these stores are located in the thickly population negro sections of the city and all are doing a good business.

Movies and Vaudeville.

Filling a large place in the recreational needs of the negro in St. Louis are the moving picture and vaudeville houses promoted by negroes. Among these are the Booker Washington Theater, Twenty-third and Market streets, of which Charles Turpin is owner, and the Jest-A-Mere Theater, Finney and Whittier, owned and operated by Charles Pittman. The Booker Washington conducts vaudeville and drama as well as moving pictures. The Jest-A-Mere is exclusively a moving picture house. Both of these houses receive the highest class of moving pictures in St. Louis and are very popular.

In the dry goods business, H. A. Smith and Velar Dry Goods Co. lead. Other lines in which progress has been made are the Westminster garage, promoted by Sam Shepard, and the H. & B. Auto Repair Co., headed by Mrs. Gertrude Robustanie. Dunbar and Grand Central hotels; the Stars baseball team, which has a team in the National Negro League and owners of the Stars Park at Compton and Laclede. There are also numerous barber shops, restaurants, cigar stores, pool and billiard parlors, ice cream parlors, tailors, dyers, cleaners, overall and shirt manufacturers, photographers, coal and coke merchants, etc., which may be included in the long list of negro businesses in St. Louis.

Space will not permit detailed reference to all lines of business in which negroes are fast forging to the front in St. Louis. Suffice it to say, however, that the present development is only indicative of what the future will bring. With a growing race consciousness has come a realization that opportunities in business will be assured many more boys and girls who are now being educated only through negroes' organizing their resources and their capital in the development of negro business enterprises of all kinds. Such is one of the effects of the peculiar sytem of isolation of a race group within a large city.

Bakers and Laundries.

Looking to the future in St. Louis, it is quite evident that within the next 15 months there will be at least one bank or trust company established, financed by negro capital. Bakeries, laundries, contracting firms, drug stores, another newspaper, additional insurance companies, together with an office building are some of the expansions which are being talked about and worked upon by interested local negro citizens. The success of the St. Louis Negro Business Association, as well as the individual success of its members, is stimulating others to action.

When it is considered that in practically all of the large northern and southern cities, there has been a steadily growing negro population, it is not surprising that negro business has kept pace with the growth in numbers. The above summary of the extent of negro business in St. Louis is characteristic of the same development in practically every city throughout the country where negroes are located in any numbers. In New York, Chicago, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Baltimore, Columbus, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Atlanta, Birmingham, Durham, Louisville, Indianapolis, Richmond, Memphis and many other cities praletically every line of business is being entered by negroes.

Undoubtedly the development of negro business is perfectly natural within the group; but its extent and the significance of this trend is not fully realized by many. Enterprising negroes are forging ahead in many lines of business. Along with this enterprising spirit, however, is the influence of discrimination against negroes, which force has helped greatly in bringing out many developments in negro business in recent years. With the steadily increasing negro population in St. Louis and elsewhere one may look forward to even greater expansions of negro business in the future.

DO YOU KNOW HIM?

With head erect, with conscience clear, the man of candor elicits volumes of praise.

He is a giant of inspiration to all who know him. Fearless in his opinions, but never volunteering them.

His advice is sought in matters of importance to his community just as is that of an attorney in matters legal.

His loyalty has been proved by his uprightness. He is optimistic to an extent which his associates unwittingly absorb.

Impartial, unselfish, broad-minded characteristics are among his potent assets. Such are the traits which constitute a real man.

The world has room for more like him!

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

TRUE LIFE STORIES

PART SIX. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 4, 1924. PAGES 13—22.

Romance of a Rustic Beauty, a Millionaire's Son, and a Sedalia Hotel Keeper

Frederick Van Blarcom, Spurred On to Recover Control of His Fortune by Love Affair, Now Ends It With a Bigamy Charge

The Tenant Farmer's Daughter From the Backwoods of Moniteau County Had Hopes of Living in Splendor on the Van Blarcom Wealth When She Married the St. Louis Banker's Son, but That Dream, as Well as Her Ambition to Enter the Movies, Was Shattered When the Ghost of Her Past Returned in the Form of a Warrant Accusing Her of Being Married Also to the Man for Whom She Had Worked as a Cashier in Sedalia.

MRS. MAXINE VAN BLARCOM, facing in St. Louis County a charge of bigamy brought against her by Frederick Van Blarcom, banker's son, is only a tenant farmer's daughter, but her beauty has won attention in the great cities as well as in the backwoods of Moniteau County, Mo., where she was born and grew, a green country girl, and in Sedalia, where she began her career with her face as her only fortune.

At 21, now, she is in the full bloom of her beauty, as she was two and a half years ago, when she crossed the lobby of the Laclede Annex Hotel in St. Louis and Frederick Van Blarcom, sitting there, saw her and was fascinated and resolved, then or soon afterward, that when he had won his fight for control of his estate and income, then pending in the courts, he would make her his wife.

He won, after two years of litigation, his fight to be declared sane and soon after that he married the girl who was known to him as Maxine Browning, and as her husband he took her touring to the cities of the East, where, everywhere that she appeared, her beauty caused comment.

But it was not for long that the marriage was happy. Van Blarcom, fully appreciative of his wife's beauty, was jealous of the admiration she could not help attracting, and restricted her liberty, she says, and was cruel to her, and finally, last December, left her when she was ill in New York and she has not seen him since, although he has made unsuccessful overtures for a reconciliation.

Left without money in New York she became a model and had an opportunity to become a motion picture actress when Van Blarcom spoiled it all by obtaining an information at Clayton charging her with bigamy.

Her other marriage, Van Blarcom alleges, was to John Brown, proprietor of a hotel at Sedalia where she made her start when she came from the farm, a green country girl, and was given a position as cashier and became one of the attractions of the place.

But Mrs. Van Blarcom says it is not true that she was married to Brown. For one thing, he had a wife living at the time and could not have married her if he had wanted to.

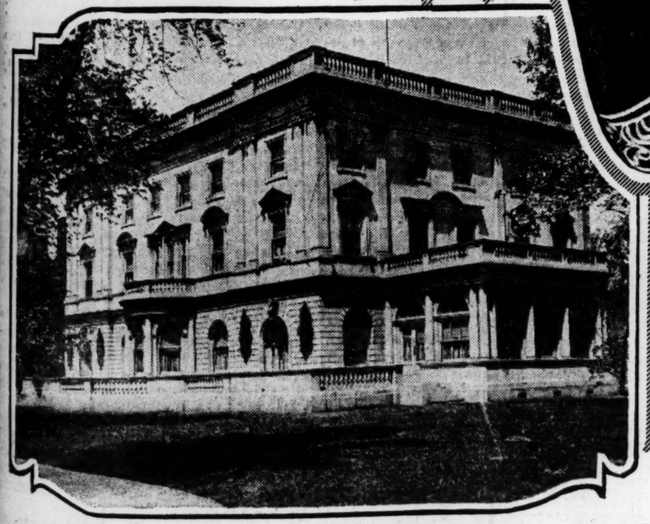
As for the certified copy of a marriage certificate, offered in evidence last week at Clayton, showing the marriage of John Brown and Bertha Loraine Copis on June 27, 1917, that must have been some other girl, for her name is Maxine Copas and not Bertha Loraine Copis, as given on the certificate.

Her Name Copas, Not Browning

Yes, her name is Copas and not Browning, as she called herself in St. Louis, but that little deception was all explained to Van Blarcom before he married her and he knew that she was the daughter of J. F. Copas, extenant farmer, now carpenter, of Sedalia, and not the duaghter of J. F. Browning of Kansas City, as she told reporters right after the marriage, and later her husband visited her people at Sedalia and everything was all right.

Maxine Copas was next to the youngest of the large family of G. F. Copas. There were six daughters and a son. Four of the daughters are married. The youngest, Velma, 17 years old and beautiful like Maxine, was with her when she appeared at Clayton last week for a preliminary hearing.

MRS. MAXINE VAN BLARCOM,
Missouri tenant farmer's daughter and attractive New York model, who is now facing a charge of bigamy brought by her wealthy husband, Frederick Van Blarcom.



The palatial Van Blarcom home at 1 We stmoreland place, which, since the death of the elder Van Blarcom, has passed out of the hands of the family.

Even as a child Maxine was noted for her beauty in the rural community, not far from Sedalia, where she spent her childhood. And when, about seven years ago, she made her start in the world by going to Sedalia and getting a job as cashier at the hotel, she was well developed for her age and so prepossessing that, although only a child, she was placed in the responsible position.

At first she lived at the hotel but after a while the family moved from the farm to Sedalia and she lived at home part of the time.

The four sisters older than she were married and one, Mrs. Ray Warehan, was living at 518½ North Vandeventer avenue, St. Louis and here at the end of five years came Maxine for a visit. She liked the city and stayed on and after a while went to live at the Laclede Annex.

Van Blarcom, making his fight to be freed from a guardianship placed over him when his sanity was in question, was living there too and very soon after the girl had gone there he saw her as she crossed the lobby and was immediately attracted by the beauty of her features, the clearness of her complexion, the sky-blueness of her eyes and the style and distinction of her raiment.

Van Blarcom an Ardent Suitor

He lost no time in getting acquainted with her and began "rushing" her and kept it up until, although he was twice her age, she consented to marry him. They might have been married sooner than they were if it had not been for the disability under which he had been placed by a Probate Court jury in April, 1920, in declaring him of unsound mind.

Another close-up view of Mrs. Van Blarcom, who declares she will seek a divorce from the St. Louis banker's son as soon as she disposes of his allegation that she is also the wife of a Sedalia hotel proprietor.

Not unlikely it was the new incentive spurring him on after he met the girl that resulted eventually in the successful outcome of Van Blarcom's fight to have his status restored. Certainly his efforts were redoubled after he met her, and when he won it was a greater winning than was generally known, in that it enabled him to give her his name untarnished by the stigma of impaired mentality.

Van Blarcom was the son of Jacob Van Blarcom, president of the National Bank of Commerce, who died in 1908. The elder Van Blarcom was supposed to be very wealthy but his estate dwindled, under administration, to disappointing proportions. Mrs. Van Blarcom, the widow, however, had an independent estate valued at $300,000 and her will upon her death left this in trust for her son, with the proviso that if he should die without issue the property should go to Washington University.

Before Mrs. Van Blarcom's death her son had been placed in different private sanitariums. He escaped from several and brought suit against one on the ground that he was unlawfully held. While confined at the Alexian Brothers' Hospital he sought release under a writ of habeas corpus but failed. To establish his status a sanity inquiry was instituted and it was then that he was definitely declared of unsound mind and was ordered held at the hospital, and the St. Louis Union Trust Co. was named as his guardian. Later he was placed in another institution and in the summer of 1921, at his own request, he became a patient at the City Sanitarium. He paid $50 a month there for his board and lodging and was under only nominal restraint, being required to report only at certain intervals.

It was while he was there that he began his fight for complete discharge from his insanity status. He applied to the Probate Court for a new inquiry into his mental condition. Probate Judge Holtcamp, after a hearing, held that Van Blarcom was still insane. Van Blarcom then asked for a jury hearing and a jury also decided that he was of unsound mind. He then appealed to the Circuit Court and a jury there found him sane and restored to him control of his personal estate of $7000 and his income of $12,000 to $15,000 a year from his mother's estate.

Didn't Know What Sanitarium Was

He was living at the Laclede Annex and reporting at intervals to the City Sanitarium during the later stages of this litigation. He told the girl something about it but she says she didn't understand. He told her, too, that he had been in a sanitarium but there were no sanitariums in the country where she was brought up and she didn't know what a sanitarium was.

All that she clearly understood, when the jury decided for him in the Circuit Court, was that now he was free to marry her and free also to handle his income.

He became more insistent that she marry him. Among other gifts he brought her two rings, which he denominated an engagement ring and a wedding ring. It was finally arranged that they would be married April 5. Early that day Van Blarcom, in his eagerness, drove out to Clayton to get the license, only to find that the presence of the girl was required. In the afternoon he took her out there and the license was issued, she giving her name as Maxine Browning, and they were married that evening at the home of Justice Knoche at Creve Coeur Lake.

They had a wedding dinner at the Statler and stayed a week at the Central Apartments and then toured to Chicago and New York.

It was about a week after the wedding, Mrs. Van Blarcom says, when she discovered that there was something wrong with him. Without any provocation, she says, he flew into a rage and cursed a doctor who had done something to displease him. After that the spells were frequent and his erratic conduct increased. He was restless and wanted always to be driving somewhere. Often, before reaching an intended destination, he would change his mind and turn back, only to again reverse himself and resume the journey.

He drove recklessly and frequently collided with other machines and was in several other accidents. They lived at hotels or in furnished apartments. Between spells he treated her well and spent all of his allowance on her. But frequently he would keep her awake nearly all night with manifestations of his eccentricity and violence. And sometimes, she says, he struck her.

He was so jealous of her, she says, that

NEW YORK, May 2.

EQUITY and Fidelity are at issue in the quarrel between actors and managers which threatens to end in a strike June 1, on the eve of the Democratic national convention. Equity with a big E, and Fidelity with a big F. And caught in the squeeze is Art with a big A.

Equity is short for Actors' Equity Association. The association is the actors' union. It is strong in its own local membership of 4000 and in the sympathy of the union stage hands, electricians and musicians and in its affiliation, along with these, with the American Federation of Labor.

Equity's demand is for Equity shop, which, being interpreted in the language of labor, is closed shop, with the union label in electric lights above the showhouse doors.

The managers' stand is for the open shop, with no discrimination against members of the Actors' Fidelity League, a feeble organization encouraged by the managers as a rival to Equity, which is not identified with the American Federation of Labor.

As a result of the contention, both actors and managers are reaping the consequences of the war before it actually breaks. Neither, as a matter of fact, wants it to break at all. Both are afraid it will. The players see visions of unemployment, or if employment at all, then employment in department stores and telephone exchanges. The managers spy the phantom of the bankruptcy court lurking in the offing. So each faction is redoubling efforts to bluff the other out of a "showdown" that seems likely to be disastrous for all concerned, regardless of who eventually emerges as the victor. And the bluffing, with its threats and counter threats, is already doing what all hands have been afraid the actual strike would do. Already 50,000 actors and actresses, 3500 of them chorus girls, are out of work. Managers have withdrawn road shows and the players have hastened back to New York to make the most of the few remaining weeks only to find no new shows waiting for them. The producers are afraid to launch them with the strike menace hovering so near at hand. Fright and cold feet are thus piling up the casualties before hostilities are formally declared.

But in spite of the casualties resulting from these preliminary sorties, the outlook is not entirely displeasing to the actors. There is even jubilation in the Equity camp as the strike deadline draws nearer, because with open hostilities only a month off the ranks of the producers have split. Sixteen of the larger producers, including the Shuberts and their allies, who control some 40 per cent of the shows of the country and who have been none too keen from the start about carrying the dispute to open conflict, have definitely withdrawn from the Producing Managers' Association and have formed a new organization known as the Managers' Protective Association, which is presumably willing to deal with Equity on its own terms. This leaves only about 27 major producers for Equity to fight.

Power, if Not Pride, in Unionism

The chief concern of the managers in this war against Equity, they would have it understood, is the protection of art from the profaning taint of trade-unionism. It is intolerable, they say, that actors should be barred from giving the public the benefit of their art unless they join the union.

Carrying union cards is not a point of pride with the members of Equity, but in union they have found the strength which has enabled them to cope with managers who, in days gone, were not embarrassed by artistic scruples in taking advantage of the temperamental, happy-go-lucky, improvident actors. So they are for the union and for the closed shop, the ultimate in unionism.

Back of 1913 the managers had things all their own way. They did not even need an association, but were able to deal single-handed with the unorganized actors. Naturally, under those conditions, there were things that the actors did not like, contract terms especially, which the actors deemed highly advantageous to the managers.

May 26, 1913, the Actors' Equity Association was formed. The managers were not alarmed. They merely indulged a barely perceptible lifting of the eyebrows. They would walk up to this Actors' Equity Association and say "boo" and it would dissolve. But the best way to say "boo" is to say it together, so they organized and then they walked up to it and said "boo," but it didn't dissolve.

Instead, it unaccountably grew and became more insistent in its demands. The actors wanted a uniform contract and more effective protection in the conditions of their employment.

George M. Cohan's Backfire

The argument drifted along until 1916, when the actors did an unheard-of thing. They obtained a charter from the American Federation of Labor and acquired the right to call the stage hands and electricians "brothers." That bucked them up. They went to the managers and told them what was what. There was talk of a strike. The managers did not believe a word of it, but they agreed to a uniform contract conferring upon the actors improved conditions of employment.

But on Aug. 7, 1919, the thing that could not possibly happen happened with a bang. The actors' union struck. The stage hands, electricians and musicians went out with them. Most of the theaters went dark. The strike spread to Boston and Chicago.

The actors organized an open air show of their own, touring the streets and hurrahing for their side and getting the good will of the fickle populace.

The managers put crepe on their sleeves for the demise of art and filed suits for a lot of injunctions and damages. George M. Cohan started a backfire by organizing the Actors' Fidelity League, the big idea being fidelity to art.

The battle lasted a month with the managers and Fidelity and art on one side and the actors and Equity on the other. Then on Sept. 6 there was an armistice and a treaty was drawn up, to last five years. It provided for arbitration, a uniform contract, no strikes except for violation of the agreement and the open shop, with members of Equity and members of Fidelity working on the same jobs.

Equity and Fidelity did not pull well together. It suited the Fidelities all right. They had everything that the Equities had fought and bled for, the same privileges, immunities, freedoms and guaranties. Oh, yes, the Fidelities were well satisfied. But there were stirrings of dissatisfaction among the Equityites, grown strong and mighty, with 12,000 members. And every last one of them knew that the Fidelity crowd, small though it was, had everything that Equity had. What was the use of being strong and mighty if you had no more rights than the weak? Besides, there was always the fear that some morning Equity would wake up and find that, somehow, Fidelity had grown to a giant which, fondled by the managers, would put Equity to rout.

But Equity was bound by the contract for five years and there was nothing that it could do but chafe under its contractural disabilities and plan to do battle with the managers on the expiration of the contract.

Vote 30 to 1 for Equity Shop

As far back as 1920 the issue took shape. To find out just how the rank and file felt about the mixture of Equity and Fidelity, a referendum was taken. Equity members were asked to vote on the Equity shop proposition. They voted 30 to 1 for the Equity shop. It couldn't be enforced against the organized managers, because there was the contract, but it was put into effect as against the independent managers.

During the past year there has been increasing tension, looking to enforcement of Equity shop by agreement or, lacking that, by a fight at the expiration of the contract. Last November, Equity offered what it called a concession to art. Artists getting $500 a week and up need not belong to Equity. The membership roll of Fidelity should be closed. All Fidelity members in good standing as of Sept. 1, 1923, would be eligible to play in casts with Equity members. Equity would open its doors to all players. The idea was to swallow Fidelity by constricting its increase and facilitating its flow to Equity.

If any player desired to put on a play with a complete non-Equity cast, oh, very well. He would not be interfered with or discriminated against. But the expectation was that, before long, there would not be enough non-Equity players to put on a play.

The managers rejected the proposal with fine scorn. Concession, was it? They called it a grab. The effect of it would be to force all artists into the union and then where would art be? No. But the managers would do this. They would refuse to hire any Equity actor who had not paid his dues to Equity, and would put into effect a check-off, like the coal miners have, against the Fidelity actors, assessing them the same amount as the dues paid by Equity members and turning the money over to the Actors' Fund.

Actors Have to Stand Kidding

It was the Equity actors' turn to be scornful. They said it looked to them like the managers were determined to have trouble, and so they would stand on their demand for the Equity shop, excepting only stars at $500 a week and up and Fidelity members antedating Sept. 1, 1923.

The managers, speaking for the first time as an organization, declared themselves unalterably opposed to the closed shop, which in their opinion would work enduring harm to art.

The Equity actors are strong for art and it makes them wince when the managers slur them as laborers, as they are all the time doing, in the hope of starting a stampede back to art, but they also are interested in such sordid things as bread and butter and conditions of employment. So, seeing that they are strong and mighty and the managers are relatively weak and helpless, and Fidelity is more so, and seeing, moreover, that they even have some big friends in the managerial group, who already are breaking with the managers' association and indicating a disposition to sign up independently with Equity, the actors feel that they can afford to stand a little kidding about their affiliation with the dinner-bucket brigade.

And just to show that the members of the union are with the walking delegates, or whatever they call their leaders, a mass meeting was held and the actors voted, 1198 to 2, that after June 1 they will not act with non-Equity actors. They were heartened to this action partly by the announcement that the Shuberts, who control 70 per cent of the New York theaters, will break with the other managers if necessary and sign up on the actors' conditions.

As for the menace to art, in the struggle with labor, Ethel Barrymore wired from Rochester, N. Y.: "We must stand together as we did in 1919 and as we always will." And the managerial anxiety for art suffered a severe slap from Jane Cowl, who stood up at the meeting and said: "I am married to a manager and I am part manager of my own production, but in a competition of this kind Jane Cowl the manager would go down before Jane Cowl the actress."

The speech went big with the house.

The Merits of Each Side

Well, now, what are the merits of this war between the actors and Equity on one side, and the managers and Fidelity on the other, with art caught in the jam? The answer is here. Two answers, in fact, one by the managers and one by the actors:

"Unless some agreement can be reached before the first of June," say the managers, "when the present contract between the Producing Managers' Association and Actors' Equity Association expires, the theaters will be closed by a strike. This will hinge upon one point of difference, and only one—Equity's demand for a closed, or 'Equity,' shop.

"Equity's demand provides that no actor belonging to Equity shall be allowed to play in a cast which includes any non-Equity men, except for a few personally named players who now belong to the Actors' Fidelity League; and that no future members of that league are to be accepted.

"And although (to avoid violating the antitrust law) casts entirely consisting of non-Equity actors are not to be interfered with, the membership of the Equity is so large and includes so great a majority of accomplished players that in practice it would be impossible to organize a competent cast of any ordinary size without including Equity members. Consequently no 'independent' actor could be employed.

"This is the sole point at issue. A future contract, regarded by both sides as fair, has been agreed upon. All other details have been or can be adjusted. In the hope of reaching an agreement, the producing managers have not heretofore made public statements of their side of the case. All such statements have been made by individuals and have not been authorized by the associations. The Equity's chief arguments for a closed or Equity shop are:

"1. That without compulsion actors will not pay their dues so that the revenues of the Equity and its consequent usefulness would diminish; and

"2. That independent actors now get, without cost, the benefits for which Equity members work and pay.

What the Managers Offer

"The managers recognize these arguments as valid. They have accordingly offered:

"1. To employ no Equity actor who has not paid his dues.

"2. To charge any independent actor a fee equal to the Equity dues for signing the standard contract, and to give all money so derived to the Actors' Fund—the recognized charity of the profession.

"Both these proposals were rejected by the Equity council.

"The council will consider no plan whatsoever that does not include complete Equity shop.

"It is idle to pretend that in actual practice there is any distinction between Equity shop and closed shop. It is true Equity guarantees for a term of years to allow any actor to join its membership and to make no restrictions regarding salaries. But the result—and the intentional result—of the operation of the Equity shop would be that no actor could get employment in any first-class company on the American stage, unless he belonged to the Equity association, paid his dues and submitted himself to the discipline of the Equity council. And to join the Equity every actor must thereby become a member of the American Federation of Labor.

"No matter what his artistic standing, or the number of years he had spent in learning his art, no actor who had conscientious scruples against joining a labor union, or who would not submit his private judgment to the rules of the Equity council, might now or hereafter lay down to govern his personal relations with his fellow artists or with his manager, could earn a livelihood. It is to this and to this alone that the producing managers cannot agree. They believe it would work enduring harm to art of the theater, that it would be humiliating, unjust and un-American."

Answer of the Equity

Now listen to Frank Gillmore, executive secretary of the Equity:

"The Equity shop has worked untold good wherever it has been tried. It has increased the responsibility of actors as well as of managers. It has practically obliterated the vicious custom of contract jumping, whereby an actor left his employment, his managers and fellow players in the lurch, as well as breaking faith with the public who had come to see him. It has also decreased to a gratifying extent the bogus managers, those who take their companies to remote regions and abandon them without money or transportation.

"It does not seem to the council of this association to be fair to discriminate in this Equity shop policy in favor of any one group.

"It is true that the Producing Managers' Association has offered to do many of the things contained in their statement, but unfortunately, experience has shown that without guarantees such agreements would be undependable. It is solely to secure observance of our contracts that we demand Equity shop to apply to the Producing Managers' Association.

"To sum up, I am forced to believe that the 40 per cent of the Producing Managers' Association represented in the signatories are anxious for a return to the old conditions, when they could do what they pleased with their actors. You see, we have worked with them for several decades and experience is a sound teacher."

So each side continues with its statements and counter-statements, calling terrified attention to the consequences that await the other in open warfare. And the consequences are terrifying enough for both. It has been conservatively estimated that a strike would entail a loss of $400,000 a week to the managers in theater rents alone. When on top of that consideration is taken of the taxes on idle buildings and loss of profits that might accrue from running productions, the figures become appalling.

No doubt it was the vision of this financial catastrophe that had something to do with

MATERNAL INSTINCT OF TIGRESS FORAGING FOR CUB SPURRED BOBBED-HAIRED BANDIT TO CRIME

Bereaved and Penniless, Brooklyn Girl Now Faces Prison Term as the Result of Her Futile Venture Into Outlawry

With Motherhood Approaching and Her Purse Empty, Celia Cooney Took Up an Automatic and Launched Into an Orgy of Robbery to Provide for Her Unborn Child, Her Husband Serving as a Weak-Willed Accomplice—Then After She Had Placed Her Life and Liberty in Jeopardy by a Dozen Daring Holdups, Her Baby Lived Only a Week and She Scarcely Had Money Enough to Bury It.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 3.

MOTHERHOOD was coming to Celia Cooney and scant was the provision for the expected visitor. So Celia Cooney turned gun-girl and robber and for three months, as "the bobbed-hair girl bandit of Brooklyn," she flaunted the police with her boldness and mystified by her elusiveness.

When her time was near at hand she brought to a climax her career of crime by shooting a cashier who resisted and then she and her husband, her partner in banditry, slipped away to Florida, where the baby was born.

But the infant whose needs the young mother had been at such pains to assure did not live long, and now that she has been captured she is content to take her punishment, for with the baby dead nothing else matters.

When Celia Cooney was Celia Roth, she worked in a laundry on the East Side, where she had lived all her life. Eddie Cooney worked in the same laundry. He was attracted to the pretty German girl, with her quick wit and snappy black eyes, and after a while he asked her to be his wife, which was precisely the thing she had been waiting for him to ask, for Eddie was not a bad sort and Celia had made up her mind that if she could be his wife and leave the laundry they would be happy ever after.

But after they were married, March 18, 1923, at the Church of the Nativity, Brooklyn, and took up housekeeping in a furnished room, she was not so sure about it. Life was drab for her. She missed the chaff and chatter of the laundry where she had had the social life that her nature required. She lacked the pretty things that she craved.

Husband Earned $30 a Week

Eddie left the laundry and got a job as a welder for Paul Horgan on Franklin avenue, but he earned only $30 a week, and $30 a week doesn't go very far in Brooklyn or anywhere else.

If it hadn't been that the baby was coming Celia might have gone back to work at the laundry and had again the chaff and chatter and the social life and with the increased income she might have had the pretty things that she craved and the Cooneys might have been as contented and happy and successful as other young couples in their walk of life, struggling under the same difficulties.

But the baby was coming and that complicated matters in more ways than one. It prevented Celia going back to work and it increased her unrest and added to that an anxiety that grew as the days passed. For there is a maternal instinct as primitive as nature and as old as the species, the impulse which impels the female, with maternity approaching, to make provision for the health and comfort and well-being of her offspring and which calls into action a fierceness and aggressiveness foreign to normal feminine nature.

So Celia Cooney went foraging for her unborn child. She foraged in forbidden fields, contrary to the commandment of Holy Writ and the law of the land. And she persuaded her husband to go along.

Idea Born of Desperation

She decided in her own mind what she would do before she mentioned it to her husband. Christmas, with its gifts, was just past when she turned in desperation to face the problem of the great gift which was soon to be hers. Eddie came home from the welding shop and she said to him:

"The baby's coming, Eddie."

"Yeh."

"And we need things for it."

"Yeh."

"How are we going to get them?"

That one was too hard for Eddie. He said something about doing his best, but his best, at $30 a week, was not getting anything for the baby. Was there anything that Celia could suggest?

Yes, there was something that Celia could suggest. When she suggested it Eddie lost his breath for a minute. He came back with objections, cogent ones. There was danger, and they might be caught, and, oh, lots of things might happen. And she in that condition——

But it was because she was in that condition that she suggested it, and whatever was to be done would have to be done before, for she wouldn't have any time for it afterward.

She beat down his opposition, with the fierce determination of the female of the species who fights for her young.

The stronger personality of the two, she took charge of the arrangements for the lawless program that was to provide things for the baby. With misgivings, but obedient to her instructions, he picked out a place to rob, and the next morning, which was Jan. 6, New York and Brooklyn, sensation-sated, had a new thrill. There was a woman bandit abroad in Brooklyn and she was pretty and had bobbed hair. So for three months the bobbed-haired bandit of Brooklyn had first page space in the local newspapers and her exploits were flashed over the country.

The story that burdened the front pages that day was that as the manager and five clerks of the Rolston Grocery on Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, were preparing to close up the night before a young woman with blond bobbed hair, wearing a sealskin coat and a brightly colored turban, entered and stood up the six while her male companion took $688 from the cash register.

It might have been supposed that with $688 in hand the needs of the Cooney baby were amply provided for, but Mrs. Cooney was not satisfied. She had had a taste of excitement and she liked the way the newspapers carried on about it and found no end of amusement in watching the detectives running in circles trying to find the bobbed-haired girl and she wore bobbed hair. So, on Jan. 12, there were two more grocery stickups, netting $368.

EDWARD COONEY,
The weak-willed husband, who played a role subordinate to his bobbed-haired wife in the series of daring hold-ups that terrorized Brooklyn. His practice in a robbery was to take care of the cash register while his wife took care of the talking and the gun play.

It was hard on the bobbed-haired girls. They were all under suspicion. Several of them were arrested and had to alibi out of it.

In Helen Quigley, chorus girl, the police were certain that they had the culprit, but while they were felicitating themselves and Helen was getting miles of useful publicity, along came the girl in the sealskin coat and the fluffy turban and dropped in at Louis Weinstein's drug store on Ryerson street. She smiled sweetly at Louis Hecht, the pill-pounder on duty, and would he be so kind as to change a quarter for her. He said "sure" and extracted two dimes and a nickel from the cash register and turned to find himself facing a spunky-looking automatic.

"Police a Bunch of Hokum"

"Maybe I'll blow your damn brains out," purred the young woman, under which cheerful admonition Hecht held very still while a tall young man who had followed in took $60 from the register.

Before leaving, the girl pressed a note into Hecht's hand and when she had gone away he read this: "The police are a bunch of hokum. The girl they have just arrested is the wrong one. Leave the poor, innocent girl alone. She had nothing to do with the other robberies."

That was the end of Helen Quigley's publicity.

Another promising suspect brought in was Mrs. Mary Cady, bobbed-haired mother of five. She had a fine chance to justify herself on the ground of what the psychiatrists call maternal urge, with five little urges at home, but, in spite of the fact that she was the acknowledged owner of a sealskin coat and a gaudy turban, she also had an alibi, which let her out.

It looked for a little while on March 1 like the bobbed haired girl was twins. Detectives saw two bobbed-haired persons acting suspiciously and took after them. The way the suspects ran gave the detectives an idea, and when they were caught it was confirmed. They were the other gender.

It went on that way. Every time Mrs. Cooney thought of something else the baby would need there was a stickup and the papers had another bobbed-hair story. The thing was hurting business. It got so bad that grocers and druggists and their clerks were ready to hold up their hands every time a bobbed-haired female came in.

Nobody knows exactly how many places the Cooneys held up. They say there were 10, but they may have forgotten a few. Anyway, the police have reports of 20 or so. It may be that other bobbed-haired girls saw their chance and did a little holding up on their own. And it may be, again, that some of the persons who were robbed thought they saw bobbed hair when they didn't. But the police are reasonably sure that the Cooneys did 14 jobs, and the indictments so charge.

Then She Shot a Man

It may be that Mrs. Cooney overestimated the needs of the little Cooney that was on the way, but she says that they needed the money and that was why she and her husband, on April 1, held up the 22 employes of the National Biscuit Co. The cashier became troublesome and Mrs. Cooney shot him. Not fatally, but bad enough.

It occurred to Cooney then that, with the stork only about 10 days in the offing, according to family calculations, it was time for Mrs. Cooney to quiet down. Anyway, the "bulls" were after him, as he informed his mother, and he didn't want the baby to be born in jail, so he took his wife away to Jacksonville, Fla.

There, on April 12, the baby came. For seven days it had all that a baby wants, which isn't much, and then it died, which perhaps was not surprising, remembering all that the 20-year-old mother had gone through in the past three months to provide for it. The doctor said something to that effect when he heard about the Brooklyn business.

They were strangers in a strange land, and they had reasons for not wishing to be known, so it was a pathetic little funeral that Baby Cooney had, with only the father and mother following it to its grave and then turning away to face the consequences of their folly in seeking to provide for it.

MRS. CELIA COONEY,
Who admits committing at least 10 holdups and who is charged with 14. Although dejected after her arrest at Jacksonville, she recovered her nerve and cheerfulness upon her return to new York and talked readily of her exploits. "But I didn't kill nobody," she declared in extenuation of her conduct.

Another view of the bobbed-haired bandit who struck terror to the souls of storekeepers and cashiers.

They had been under assumed names in Jacksonville, but when it came to burying the baby they felt that somehow it wouldn't seem like theirs if they put it away under a wrong name, and so they told the undertaker that it was Baby Cooney. That was one of the things that led to their identification.

They had not taken good care of the money they obtained in the Brooklyn holdups and after the funeral they found themselves almost penniless. It had been easy come and easy go and they had not really saved up for the baby, though that was the cause of their turning to robbery. A letter went to Brooklyn asking for help. It was intercepted and the police found them in their furnished room and arrested them.

If Celia Cooney, broken-hearted and suffering, had not still been game the detectives might have found two corpses in the room when they broke in. For Cooney had suggested that way out. His plan was to shoot his wife and then himself and end it all. But his wife, always the stronger despite her weakness, shamed his cowardice and when the men of the law came knocking at their door and demanding entrance she made him promise that he would not shoot unless they began it. And when they entered it was Celia Cooney who stood facing them with her automatic, ready to fire if they fired, but surrendering her weapon at their demand.

Then back to New York and a great crowd at the station when they arrived, for New York dearly loves to swarm where its front-page heroines may be seen.

And into court, where they pleaded guilty. There was nothing else for them to do. And now they are awaiting sentence, which may be 10 to 20 years. That is, unless justice is tempered with mercy to the girl-mother, who wanted to give her baby a chance, and her weak-willed husband.

As for the baby that stayed such a little while, says Celia Cooney: "Nobody'll ever know how I loved that kid of mine, but I guess it's better that it died."

ROMANCE OF A RUSTIC BEAUTY, A MILLIONAIRE'S SON AND A HOTEL KEEPER

he was unwilling for her to go out anywhere alone and she had to spend most of her time in their hotel room or apartment.

They were living in a New York apartment last December when, after quarreling with her, he left her without money. As soon as she was able she sought employment and although without experience her striking appearance won an opportunity for her as a sport dress model with one of the leading New York houses.

Van Blarcom disappeared. She understood that he had driven West. After a while she received letters from him seeking a reconciliation but paid no attention to them. Then he besought mutual friends to intervene but nothing came of that.

Mrs. Van Blarcom says now she only wanted to be rid of him and hoped never to see him again.

She applied to a motion picture company and had a successful film test and was to have gone to work at Miami, Fla., when, early in April, Van Blarcom appeared at Clayton and swore to an information charging her with bigamy, in that she was the wife of John Brown of Sedalia when she married him. She retained a lawyer and fought requisition and carried the issue to the Supreme Court but was unsuccessful and Deputy Sheriff Goldschmidt, on a second trip to New York, took her into custody and brought her April 3 to Clayton, where she gave bond. The preliminary hearing was set for the ensuing Thursday but the State asked and obtained a continuance.

She returned to New York but came back last week for the preliminary hearing and was in Justice Werremeyer's court on the appointed day and at the appointed hour, but Van Blarcom was not there and nobody seemed to know where he was.

Prosecuting Attorney Jones, bustling back and forth between his office and the justice shop, brought word presently that a telegram had been received from a detective agency to the effect that two missing witnesses had been found, and asked a continuance so that they could be produced. Demand was made by Mrs. Van Blarcom's lawyers, Claude E. Wilkerson of Sedalia and John Mooney of St. Louis, for production of the telegram. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Russell explained that the message had been received over the telephone.

"He Should Be Playing With Dolls"

After an hour's wait Mrs. Van Blarcom's lawyers demanded that the case be dismissed and took occasion to characterize Van Blarcom as a "nut who was playing with the court when he should be playing with dolls."

Justice Werremeyer hated to be precipitate. He leaned back and said the court was lenient, and would wait a while longer. Jones, meantime, was busying himself to prevent the pretty defendant's escape. He obtained an information in the Circuit Court and then directed Russell to proceed with the case and ordered Goldschmidt, if it was dismissed, to rearrest Mrs. Blarcom to answer to the Circuit Court information.

All of the State's witnesses answered present. Two Sedalia men, J. G. Jolley and D. O. Templeton, were put on the stand. Neither of them knew anything about the woman's supposed former marriage. The marriage certificate was offered but objection was made that it did not identify the defendant and its introduction was not pressed. The Sedalia Chief of Police was present but was not put on the stand.

"That's our case," said Russell, and "Case dismissed," said Werremeyer.

Mrs. Van Blarcom's lawyers knew what Jones was up to. They announced that Goldschmidt would be sued on his bond if he molested her and rushed Mrs. Van Blarcom and her sister and father to an automobile and were getting up speed when Goldschmidt jumped upon the running board and placed the woman again under arrest. There was a parley as the machine moved east on Forsythe boulevard. Goldschmidt was taken inside and the party, after going as far as Skinker road, looped back to Clayton and bond was given for Mrs. Van Blarcom's appearance in Circuit Court May 5, with Justice Werremeyer as bondsman.

In the meantime Adam Henry Jones, Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, with unaccustomed energy, was straining to save the case which Van Blarcom had abandoned. He and Russell and a stenographer and a Deputy Sheriff made a dash for Union Station, under the presumption that Mrs. Van Blarcom would try to leave the city. They watched the midway until the afternoon trains had gone and then returned to Clayton to find that the accused woman had been released on $1200 bond, which was $2500 less than Jones had stipulated.

The legality of Jones' procedure remains to be tested. It seems that under the law arrest without a warrant may be made where there is reason to believe that a crime has been committed but it is pointed out that the information was issued when Mrs. Van Blarcom was in court and under bond on the original charge, and that the second arrest was made after the presumption of a crime having been committed had been destroyed by the action of Justice Werremeyer in dismissing the case.

Interest centers now in whether the missing Van Blarcom and his two missing witnesses will appear at the Circuit Court hearing. It is conjectured that other litigation will grow out of the romance of this green but beautiful country girl who became the wife of the St. Louis banker's son.

ART AND UNION CARDS FOR ACTORS ARE ISSUES IN THREATENED STRIKE

the Shuberts' departure from the managerial fold this week. The Shuberts control some 40 theaters in New York alone and faced a prospect of losing through the strike more than $150,000 a week in taxes and rents.

It might be, too, that others among the stand-pat producers are getting shaky and are looking for a way to yield, for only a few days ago Sam H. Harris replaced all committees that have been representing the managers in their negotiations for renewal of the contract with Equity. If this was a surrender of ground it was masked by his suggestion, made at the same time, that the factions arbitrate through some prominent individual or disinterested group of persons. But his suggestion won no ground from the actors.

"We would just as soon arbitrate the Monroe Doctrine as the principle of recognition of the equity shop," declared Frank Gillmore in reply to the overture.

With the Shuberts now presumably removed from the danger of clashing with Equity, one of the greatest individual disasters that might be expected as a strike result probably confronts Morris Gest, who staged Max Reinhardt's "The Miracle" at a cost said to have been near half a million. When the strike gossip started, it is remembered, Gest declared that he would follow the lead of his father-in-law, David Belasco, and close all his shows rather than yield to the actors' demands. It is clear that if he adopts such a course with "The Miracle" he will be committing financial suicide, because profits in the production, which has been running a comparatively short time, have not netted a third of his initial outlay. To close it now would mean a loss of a great part of the original investment, with no immediate prospect of making it back.

Belasco has already begun his "closing" program. Several of his shows have been discontinued and no new ones have been put into rehearsal since strike danger became imminent. Numerous other managers who usually launch new productions for the early summer have likewise refrained venturing any uncertain investments for this spring. Ziegfeld, however, is one exception. Gambling on his conviction that a settlement would be reached, he has continued daily rehearsals of the "Democratic Follies," which he expects to stage while the convention is in session in June.

Probably no managerial program, however, has caused so much speculation on Broadway as that of George M. Cohan, who announces that in event of a strike he will take his shows to London and stage them there. In view of the announcement of the English Actors' Association that it would send no strikebreakers to America, this proposed maneuver obviously puts the Equity issue squarely up to the English players on their own ground. American theatrical interests are waiting with a good deal of interest to see what their final stand will be.

Some of Equity's Prominent Members.

Equity claims 90 per cent of the nation's actors. Prominent members are Howard Kyle, Francis Wilson, Thomas A. Wise, Wilton Lackaye, Elsie Ferguson, Olive May, Olive Wyndham, Janet Beecher, Jane Cowl, Alice Fisher, Nellie McHenry, Edwin Arden, Edward Connelly, John Cope, George Nash, John Drew, Blanche Ring, Charles Backus, Ethel Barrymore, Frank Craven, George Arliss, Percy Haswell, Arthur Byron, Maude Granger, Beverly Sitgreaves, Digby Bell, Maggie Holloway Fisher, Lotta Linthicum, Walter Hampden, Cecil Yapp, Carrie Lee Stoyle, Ida Vernon, Edward Ellis, David Warfield, Holbrook Blinn, Grant Stewart, Charles D. Coburn, Albert Bruning, William Courtleigh, Jefferson D'Angelis, Robert Edeson, Fred Niblo, Pedro de Cordoba, George Stuart Christie, Brandon Hynan, Grant Mitchell, Blanche Bates, Elita Proctor Otis, Florence Roberts, Annie Russell, Mabel Taliaferro, Marie Doro, Charlotte Walker, Julia Dean, Mme. Nazimova, Edith Wynne Mattison, Mollie McIntyre, Alma Kruger, May Irwin, Amelia Bingham, Rolla Peters, Katherine Emmett, Gilbert Emery, Paul N. Turier, Ernest Glendenning, Frank McGlynn, Robert Elliot, Richie Ling, James K. Hackett, Helen MacKellar, Basil Rathbone, Augustine Duncan, Berton Churchill, Laurette Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Devereaux, Harry Stubbs, Roy Grange and Charles Winninger.

On the first submission of the contract Equity was supported by Lee Shubert, L. Lawrence Weber, William Harris Jr., Edgar Selwyn, Charles Dillingham and William A. Brady, and was opposed by Charles Frohman, Inc., Henry Miller, David Belasco, Brock Pemberton, John Golden, Henry W. Savage, George Tyler, Arthur Hopkins, Winthrop Ames, George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris.

League Discusses Calendar Reform.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

GENEVA, April 16.—Two special committees to study the questions of radio-telegraphy and the reform of the calendar have been appointed by the League of Nations Commission on Communications.

Public interest in calendar reform seems to center largely on the fixation of the date of Easter. Representatives of the Church of England, the Roman Catholic Church and the Greek Orthodox Church are on the commission, and it is announced here that the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America has asked to have a member.

WHY YOU NEED IRON---

To make you strong and "brainy" and put the power into your blood to overcome disease germs.

The food you eat contains carbon. When your food is digested it is absorbed from the intestines into the blood. When the carbon in your food comes in contact with the oxygen carried by the iron in your blood, the carbon and oxygen unite and by so doing they give off tremendous energy, thereby giving you great force, strength and endurance. Without iron your blood carries no oxygen and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food, so that what you eat does you no good—you do not get any strength from it—it is like putting coal into a stove without a fire. You cannot get any heat unless the coal unites with the fire.

The strongest weapon with which to prevent and overcome colds, pneumonia, kidney trouble, rheumatism, nervous prostration, in fact almost any disease or disease germs, is plenty of good rich, pure blood, strength, energy and endurance, and the greatest energy carrier in the body is organic iron, not metallic iron which people usually take, but organic iron like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, and like the iron contained in what is known as organic Nuxated Iron, which may be had from almost any druggist. Nuxated iron often increased the strength, energy and endurance of weak, nervous, rundown folks in two weeks' time.

It has been used and highly recommended by former United States Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts, many physicians and prominent men.

Over 4,000,000 people are now using it annually. Satisfactory results are guaranteed or the manufacturers will refund your money.

The First Anniversary of Our New Policy Inauguration

The seven cardinal points included in the inauguration of Welch & Company's new policy put into effect just a year ago:

Guaranteeing to the Public

1. Lowest-in-the-city prices.
2. Advertising always truthful and accurate.
3. Highest merchandising standard.
4. Satisfaction to all guaranteed.
5. Most liberal credit terms.
6. New service department for customers.
7. Special facilities for Home Outfit buyers.

In line with our determination to always offer to the public lowest-in-the-city prices, it is essential that stocks of merchandise be kept to the minimum, that rapid turn-over be assured, and that a tremendous volume of business be done on a moderate profit.

This is the reason for the staging of this gigantic One Million Dollar Annual Outlet Sale, which, in the very heart of the season, is expected to clear all stocks of Furniture from our store and warehouses and to yield the huge volume of sales that is necessary in carrying out our policy.

To those of our customers who have assisted in helping this institution reach its present prominent position among St. Louis retailers, we extend our deepest appreciation and sincere thanks. Words do not count for much, and we believe that this One Million Dollar Annual Outlet Sale with the opportunity that it brings to you of saving 33⅓ to 50% on every dollar's worth of merchandise you buy, is a far more substantial expression of our gratitude to the public. A personal inspection of these values will serve to convince you that they are unmatchable from every standpoint.

WHAT CONAN DOYLE SAW IN ST. LOUIS

Creator of Sherlock Holmes Gives Impressions of His Recent Visit in His New Book.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, author of the Sherlock Holmes stories, gives his impressions of St. Louis in "Our Second American Adventure," which describes his American speaking tour of last year. The book is published by Little, Brown & Co.

Sir Arthur, whose tour was in the interest of the spiritualistic doctrines which he has espoused in recent years, was in St. Louis in May, 1923, and spoke in the American Theater, which, as he relates in the book, was "sold out."

"St. Louis struck me very much by its size and its amenities," he writes. "There is a feeling of energy in the air, and one is conscious that one is in a city with a great future. It has also a not inconsiderable past, for it is one of the chain of settlements which the French built so as to hem in the English-speaking colonies. Then, with a line of forts on the Canadian border and another line down to New Orleans, they could at their leisure build up a western empire, holding the Americans to the east of the great river. It was a well considered plan, and it was broken mainly by the power of the British army and navy, which again and again in history cleared the ground for the future United States, for which, I may add, they have had mighty little thanks. But to forget or ignore a fact does not alter it.

Julian Story's Painting Impressed Him.

"The Hotel Chase is a really fine one, and treated us with consideration. It stands on the edge of the lovely park which was used for the 1903-1904 exhibition, and some kind friends took me for a drive over it. I inspected an admirable art museum, with fac-similes of many European masterpieces, and a number of American paintings, one of which, a scene of the French Revolution, by Story, was of very great power.

"I also saw the huge open-air theater with 14,000 seats, where opera is performed. An irascible prima donna in a head wind must be a funny sight. They say, however, that you can hear very well as a rule. It is just like the old Greek theater under the Acropolis in general design, but it has two large trees growing through the stage, which must greatly aid the sylvan scenes. I should have liked to see a natural play, but alas, I had my own story to fill."

Sir Arthur then repeats some stories which were told him in St. Louis, none of them with any particular relation to this city, and writes of meeting the Parker family of three, which had then just come up the Mississippi to this city in a two-masted, 40-ton schooner. He inspected their craft. Of the river, he says:

Mississippi an Imposing River.

"They tell me the Mississippi is a nice, clear, innocent stream until it is corrupted by the Missouri. St. Louis lies 20 miles under the point of junction, and so you see it broader and deeper, but very much uglier than before, with a vile, oily, coffee-colored current. Yet it is imposing for its size, and it is spanned by four great bridges which are themselves very wonderful to see."

The points which Sir Arthur found of chief interest in his latest American tour were Rochester, N. Y., because of the proximity of the Fox home, where the first manifestations of modern spiritualism are recorded as having occurred, and Salt Lake City, where Sir Arthur spoke in the Mormon Tabernacle.

Sir Arthur analyzes the Mormon account of a divine revelation to Joseph Smith in such a way as to draw the conclusion that Smith had genuine psychic manifestations. However, he concludes that Smith's accounts became confused and, to a certain extent, corrupted, by the working in of Smith's memories and previous religious conceptions. He expressed the hope that some Mormon will take up the spiritualistic phase of the Mormon religion, with a view to laying more practical emphasis on it.

SALVATION ARMY PLANNING OUTING FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Thousands of boys and girls, whose only playground is the city streets, will get a sip of country life and a coat of tan this summer as the result of preparations being made now by the Salvation Army to open nine fresh air camps near various Middle-Western cities. Two thousand mothers and other "grownups" also are expected on the Army's guest list during the hot weather.

Camps will be maintained at Indianapolis, Des Moines, Army Lake, Wis., near Milwaukee; Lakeville, Mich., near Detroit; Ferguson, Mo., near St. Louis, and Silver Lake, Minn., near Minneapolis. The Army in Chicago has purchased a 60-acre tract at Upper Camp Lake, near Antioch, Ill., for a camp site, while the Kansas City organization bought 15 acres, heavily wooded, near Independence, to replace that rented last year at Dodson.

Construction of the camp buildings at Upper Camp Lake has just started. The site will have 30 cottages, an assembly hall, dining hall and other buildings.

Prof. Irving Fisher to Lecture.

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University will give a League of Nations lecture tomorrow evening, May 5, in Roemer Auditorium of Lindenwood College, speaking to the student body under the auspices of the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association.

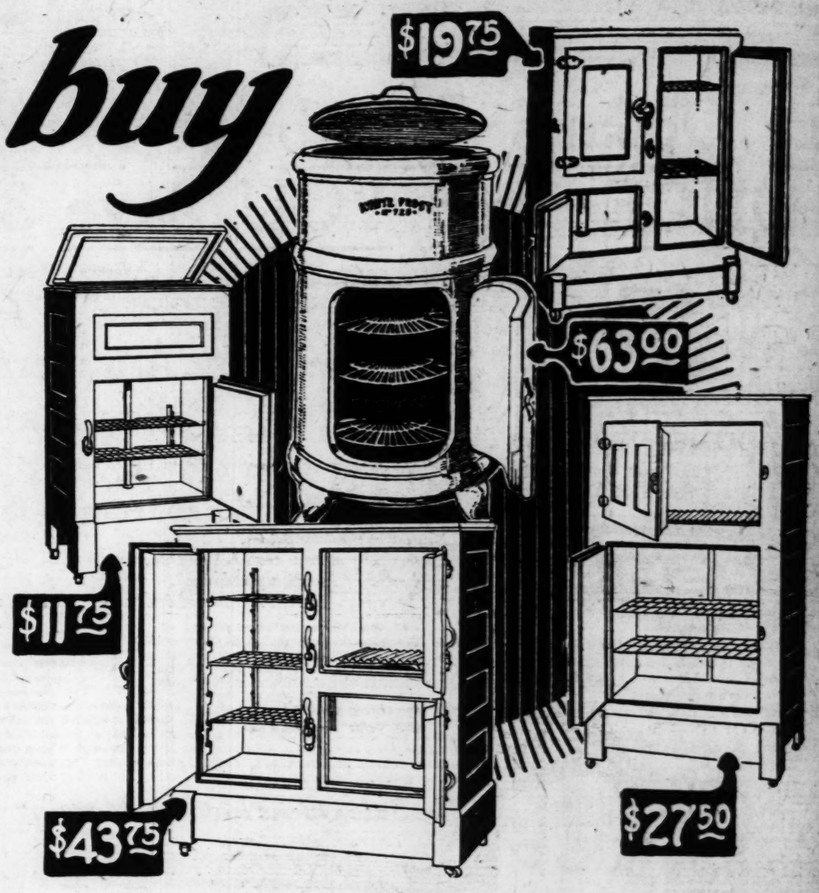
Refrigerator Week

The time to buy

THIS week is Refrigerator Week at Hellrung & Grimm's. Recent shipments have made our stock complete. Nowhere will you find a wider selection of models and sizes in well-known standard makes. Nowhere, prices more moderate. Buy this week and take advantage of the money-saving special prices for this week only.



Top-Icer, $11.75
A very efficient small Refrigerator. Substantially built; solid oak exterior; a good Refrigerator for Summer cottages, and a bargain at $11.75.

Apartment Model, $27.50
Two-door side-icer style, tall and narrow. It takes little floor space yet gives plenty of space for storing food. Ideal for apartments and small homes.

Side-Icer, $19.75
The standard Hoosier makes that we have handled for many years and that has always given satisfaction. Three-door type, solidly built of oak, with golden oak exterior. An extra good "buy" at $19.75.

Side-Icer, $43.75
A large Refrigerator for big families. Its ice capacity is 150 pounds, and the food chamber is correspondingly large. Three doors. White enamel lining in food chamber. Specially priced at $43.75.

All-Round Refrigerator, $63
An all-round, all-metal, all-white Refrigerator; practically indestructible; saving of ice because air-tight; easy to clean because it has no corners and is porcelain enameled inside and out. Surprisingly roomy, too. See this unusual Refrigerator.

Bohn Syphon Refrigerators

We are exclusive St. Louis agents for the famous Bohn Syphon Refrigerators and carry a complete line of them. Made with eleven thicknesses of material in their walls, Bohn Syphon Refrigerators are perfectly insulated. They maintain an unusually low, even temperature and are very economical of ice. White porcelain models (white porcelain inside and out) are priced from $127.50 to $350.

Says She Looks Twenty Years Younger

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Any lady or gentlemen can darken their gray or faded hair and look twenty years younger with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp; is not greasy and does not run off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger.

WORK OF BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

Investment Bankers Are Told of Activities of Organization in St. Louis.

Twelve persons are under indictment at present in Missouri in connection with fraudulent financial schemes, due to activities in which the St. Louis Better Business Bureau was interested, primarily or collaterally, Julius W. Reinholdt Jr., said in a report to the board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, meeting yesterday at White Sulphur Sphings, Va. Reinholdt is chairman of the Fraudulent Advertising Committee of the Mississippi Valley Group of the American Bankers' Association.

The Better Business Bureau, working with the State Finance Department, between Oct. 31, 1923, and April 22, 1924, caused revocation of three permits to sell stock in Missouri and revolutions of five permits for financial promotion. Seven concerns were restrained by court orders from sale of stock until the law had been complied with, the report asserts.

The Bankers' Investigating Committee finds it more economical and efficient to work with the Better Business Bureau than to undertake separate inquiries. Reinholdt cites the specific instances of the bureau's investigation of a brokerage house lost November which resulted in closing of the house within 40 days after it located in the State. The report declares the brokers planned to "unload more than a million dollars' worth of worthless railroad stock on the people of St. Louis." Details of the unsuccessful efforts of this concern, the J. L. Jerome Co., to obtain permission of the State Finance Department to do business, were published in the Post-Dispatch at the time.

WILD BEASTS KILL NATIVES AND CATTLE IN RHODESIA

Settlers Travel in Large Groups as Lions and Leopards Roam at Will.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 18. — Farm houses in the bush bordering on the northern Rhodesian frontier have recently been in a state of siege owing to the activities of lions. The animals have come out of the jungle in daylight and attacked the farm animals, carrying off many of them.

In some cases the natives working on the farms have been attacked, and several have been killed. The lions are often joined by leopards, and have appeared in such numbers that the settlers are forced to go about only in large groups, and keep a constant guard over their families and stock.

The wife of a railroad employee reports a thrilling adventure in this connection. Mrs. Mclean left her home at Garuso on a bicycle to visit neighbors. Reaching a river she found two large lions on the bank. She was so near that she could not retreat, and prepared to fight for her life, but at the first shot the animals ran. She then proceeded and shortly came across a big leopard eating an ox. The leopard also made a hasty getaway, but followed Mrs. Mclean for some time.

Arriving at the farm she found it had been attacked for several weeks by the animals, and many cattle had been lost. Next day she was escorted back to her home by a neighbor and 10 natives who, on leaving Mrs. Mclean, found they had been tracked all the way by lions. Mrs. Mclean's escape was probably due to the fact that the animals had eaten their fill of oxen.

CAUSE OF RHEUMATISM AT LAST DISCOVERED

New Oil From Germany Stops Pain Instantly in Many Cases.

For years the cause of rheumatism has been laid to a dozen different reasons. Learned doctors even disagreed among themselves. Only lately has it been definitely demonstrated that the real cause of many cases of rheumatism is the absorption by the body of poisons from some internal infection.

These poisons are absorbed by the blood and deposited in the joints and muscles, where they quickly set up inflammation and cause agonizing pain.

And now the same German chemistry that created those well-known painkillers Aspirin for headaches and Novocain for painless dentistry, has come forward with a newly discovered oil for rheumatic pain—stops the pain at once in many cases. This oil is so penetrating that it disappears a few seconds after it is rubbed on the skin.

So astonishing have been the results from its use in Europe that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to give this oil to rheumatic sufferers in this city with a positive written guarantee, signed by themselves, to return the full purchase price of the first bottle if you do not get immediate relief from pain. If you are a sufferer from rheumatic pain, no matter how long standing, you owe it to yourself to try this wonderful new discovery on this no-risk offer and see how quickly the pains disappear. It is called Buhler Oil, and it is sold by all good druggists, such as Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores (3 stores), Keiffer Drug Co. (2 stores), Enderle Drug Co. (6 stores) and Johnson Bros. Drug Co.

Icy-Hot Food Jar

Sale Price $2.98

One-gallon size; is in a class by itself and is far superior in construction to any other gallon jug on the market. To compare it with other jugs; first-ly, this jug has an extra wide mouth, being four inches wide; secondly, the cup is made of nickel-plated brass. The tapered top prevents spilling and makes it impossible for the contents to spill over the sides when pouring. This Icy-Hot Jug keeps foods iunal for motoring picnics and excursions.

USED CAR WEEK IS PUT ON BY DEALERS

All Over City Automobile Salesrooms Are Decorated—Big Parade Tuesday of 400 Cars.

Throughout St. Louis this morning, automobile dealers' salesrooms were decorated with posters, window cards and other display material, and used cars in the showrooms bore red tags, announcing the second annual Red Tag Sale and Used Car Week sponsored by the Post-Dispatch.

Dealers have made big preparations for the week. Cars have been put in prime condition and reductions in price are offered by the dealers on used cars for sale. As this is the best time of the year for driving it is expected that sales will make new records.

The public is interested in Used Car Week. Last year the dealers sold several hundred cars during the week and made hundreds of new automobile owners. This year the interest is expected to be even greater.

The dealers are greatly interested likewise, first because they have Used Cars to sell and second because of the cup offered by the Post-Dispatch to the dealer making the best showing.

Many events are planned for the week. On Tuesday, a monster Used Car parade will be held under the auspices of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, which includes in its membership the distributors for practically all machines handled in this territory.

Each of the dealer members of the association will have from five to 15 used cars, every one of which will be in the "pink" of condition, in the parade and it is expected that the total number of cars in line will reach 400.

The parade will form Tuesday at 11:45 a. m. at Sarah street and Lindell boulevard and will move down Locust street to Twelfth. Then it will go out west and will

Then it will go out west and will finally finish, after covering most of the St. Louis business section, at Laclede and Spring avenue, where it will be reviewed by Capt. Robert E. Lee, secretary of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and grand marshal of the parade and by the oficers o the Dealers' Association.

Promotion of Used Car Week is being done by the Post-Dispatch.

One of the most beautiful roadsters introduced this season is the new Series "A" special Moon roadster, selling at $1350 f. o. b. factory, and equipped with four-wheel hydraulic brakes and full size balloon tires. The car is finished in dustproof gray and has a very neat black molding extending the full length of the body.

ROADS IN MICHIGAN IN EXCELLENT SHAPE

CHICAGO, Ill., May 3.—The trout fishing season in Western Michigan opened Thursday, May 1. The streams in this section of Michigan are in excellent condition and the indications are that fishing this year should be extremely good.

The State highways in this section are in first-class driving condition. The West Michigan Pike, known as Route 11, connecting with the Dunes Highway from Chicago through Indiana is cement road from Chicago.

Information will be forwarded on request by the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, Grand Rapids, Mich.

APRIL ST. LOUIS FORD SALES DOUBLE 1923

Business was excellent in this territory in April, according to officials of the Ford branch, who, yesterday, announced a tremendous increase in retail sales over April, 1923. In April, 1923, 5035 Ford cars and trucks were delivered at retail in the St. Louis territory. During the first 20 days of April, 1924, 6845 Ford cars and trucks were delivered at retail. Estimated sales for the last 10 days bring the month's total to 10,845, an increase of 115 per cent. Sales of Lincolns compared for April, 1923, and 1924 show 12 Lincolns sold at retail last year and 49 this year. Ford branch officials declare that indications point to just as big a May or an even better month for deliveries than was April.

AVERAGE WEALTH OF AMERICANS IS $2918

Hupmobile President Points to Amount to Show Why This Country Has so Many Cars.

The average wealth of every person in the United States on Dec. 31, 1922, was $2918, according to the Department of Commerce, which has just announced results of its latest decennial survey.

To Charles D. Hastings, president and general manager of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation, this information concretely illustrates why there are so many automobiles, and why the economic saturation point for motor cars on the North American continent may never be reached.

"Assuming that the average family contains four persons, its average wealth is more than $11,000, showing that it can well afford to own a mtor car," says Hastings. "Per capita wealth increased 49.6 per cent in the 10 years since the Dec. 31, 1912, survey was made, when it was $1950. The difference—nearly $4000 for a family of four—is more than sufficient to enable the head of a household to purchase and maintain a motor car at all times.

"While the department pointed out that huge increase in per capita wealth is due principally to the rise in prices in recent years, and not entirely to a corresponding increase in the quantity of wealth, as economists figure it, there is no question that the average American family can afford to maintain a higher living standard than 10 years ago.

"This is shown in the heavy buying of motor cars, in the greater proportion of more pretentious and comfortable homes being erected the country over, in the greater travel in Pullman cars, in tremendously increased road building, in the generally better standard of living, and in every line of business.

CHANDLER SHATTERS NEW ZEALAND MARK

Another New Zealand record was shattered when a stock Chandler car made the run between Auckland and Wellington in 14 hours and 32 minutes, which is 26 minutes less time than was consumed by the car that previously held the record, according to word just received by J. D. Perry Lewis of the Lewis Automobile Co.

After establishing the new record, the Chandler continued on a six-day reliability run of 3000 miles, during which the engine never stopped.

Regarding the Auckland-Wellington run, the Auckland Weekly News of Feb. 28, says:

"A new motor car speed record for the Wellington-Auckland journey was made on Feb. 20, by Messrs. W. S. Miller and G. Smith, who completed the distance in 14 hours 32 minutes, which is 26 minutes better than the previous record.

"The car, a Chandler six-cylinder, stock model, was timed by Mr. G. M. White, president of the Auckland Motor-Traders' Association."

The record was made against great odds that included poorly-surfaced roads, made more difficult by heavy rains, hard hills and thousands of cattle and sheep that had to be passed on the roads.

Old employes of the Franklin Automobile Co. who enjoy pensions look forward to the annual outing, when they are guests of the company for the day at some nearby lake in Central New York.

5 Balloon Tires, $50 Extra

Growing Steadily Greater in Public Favor

Within the last few months Dort has been winning a tremendous following. Everywhere you see new Dorts. The reason for this growing popularity is found in the sound values which Dort is now giving. Take the Sport Touring, for example. Here is a big, stalwart-looking car of beautiful lines. Doors and seats are extra large. Wheelbase is 115 inches. Springs are long and uncommonly resilient. There is nothing additional to buy—it comes complete even to trunk and spare tire and wheel. And the unflagging dependability of its famous "bathed-in-oil" engine is always a source of genuine motoring pleasure.

Think of it! 33% more people
Have bought 33% more Paige and Jewett cars
In the first 33% of 1924 than in the same period of 1923

Why?

1. Price and Value — Jewett prices have NOT been advanced, although many cars in its price class have gone up. And Paige is this year $650 lower in price, with even greater quality. Paige and Jewett cars represent good, old-fashioned value!

2. Performance — Paige cars have even better performance than ever. Jewett is the despair of others, on hills, in pick-up, over rough going. People today are buying cars for what they will do!

3. Dependability — Paige and Jewett are known for their trouble-free service. In either you can go anywhere a car can travel—and back again—in serene security and comfort. Fine engineering; sturdy construction. (537-S)

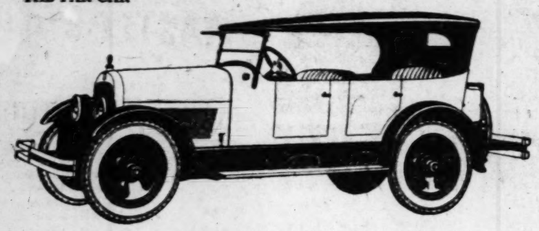
Auburn Production Increases.

The Auburn Automobile Co. is in a very comfortable position from a production standpoint according to P. A. Watson, assistant general manager. Auburn production has been steadily increasing. While January production was good for that season of the year, February shows an increase of 25 per cent over January and March 95 per cent over February—and April shows a very satisfactory percentage of increase over March.

"THE PAR CAR"



All Outdoors is calling you!

MAY, with its glorious days and balmy nights, holds promise of rare delight for the motorist who travels in the Haynes Touring Car. Open to the world reawakened—this car gives you the fullest opportunity to enjoy summer driving.

Drive a Haynes

You can know the joy of driving the Haynes. You can appeciate in part the infinite care and precision of manufacture which makes this car so fine. But only the years can show you all that the pride of its makers have put into this car, out of the oldest automobile-building experience in America. Owners call it "the par car." Call us, let us bring a Haynes and show you how fine it is.

PACKARD SIX

St. Louis, Mo., April 15, 1924.

Berry Motor Car Company,
Saint Louis.

Gentlemen:

I have been using a Packard Six for some time. If other Six owners have had the same satisfaction and efficient service when required, it is no wonder to me that the number of Packards on our streets has increased so rapidly during the past few months.

The Six is such a delightful car to drive and so economical to use that it seems to me that numberless owners of lower-priced cars are bound to want to enjoy what I believe is the greater pleasure from the ownership of a Packard.

Yours very truly,
(Name Furnished Upon Request.)

Packard has always been famed, all over the world, for progressive engineering. The fact that the very name "Packard" is a synonym for fineness in motor design and manufacture, indicates that the public realizes and values all that Packard stands for in better performance, freedom from mechanical annoyance, distinguished beauty, and high value.

KANSAS CITY, KAN., HAS NEW RESERVOIR

Ford Trucks and Fordson Tractors Play Important Part in Building It.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., May 3.—The "Christening" of the new 25,000,000-gallon reservoir at Kansas City, Kan., will take place in about 20 days. Probably no city industrial project has attracted such wide attention among contractors, builders and engineers.

Work on the new reservoir commenced last fall. Cold weather, however, delayed the pouring of concrete and it was not until some 20 days ago that this could be resumed on a full-time basis. At this stage minutes were precious for the construction company handling the work was faced with difficult task of mixing, hauling and pouring 15,500 yards of concrete in 60 days.

With the use of a fleet of Ford trucks and Fordson tractors, this gigantic pouring program has been maintained and according to the men on the job the work will be completed as per schedule.

Fordson tractors are used to elevate concrete to the tower from which point it is poured. The tower rears 60 feet above the bottom of the reservoir and is handled entirely by a Fordson tractor with windlass attachment.

Ford trucks having a capacity for one yard of concrete back right up to the foot of the tower, dump the concrete, and return for another load. A quick haul, a quick elevation and the concrete is poured.

While one tower is pouring concrete in the forms within its reach, another tower is being constructed a little farther along the forms. But the Fordson is doing more than building the concrete square. In the same length of time given for completion of the concrete square, Fordson tractors must also move thousands of yards of dirt. Lumber must be sawed. Ditches must be dug—there are jobs of every description to be handled.

WARD MOTOR ENTERS MAXWELL CONTEST

Ward Motor Co., Inc., local Maxwell-Chrysler dealer, has entered its organization in the national sales contest, which began April 21 and will continue until June 30. A thousand or more prizes are offered by the Maxwell Motor Sales Corporation to salesmen, dealers and sales managers making the best records.

The leading Maxwell salesman during the contest will be presented with a Chrysler brougham. The next highest three will be given a Maxwell club sedan, club coupe and touring car, respectively. Six other prizes, the smallest a high-priced Victrola, will be given the six other salesmen making the next best records. The 42 dealers making the highest percentages of their quotas will get valuable prizes. The six sales managers whose organizations register the greatest number of salesmen with 100 per cent or better of their quotas will also receive worth-while mementos.

This makes every Maxwell dealer, sales manager and salesman, as well as every other person employed by a Maxwell dealer in the United States, eligible to compete.

"The country has been divided into six classes, giving every dealer and every salesman equal opportunity to win one of the highest prizes," says Walter L. Prack, secretary of the Ward company.

"The other prizes are for salesmen and dealers who make various records.

"Quotas for each dealer will be established as quickly as possible by J. E. Fields, general sales manager of the Maxwell Motor Corporation, assisted by J. J. Plath and S. D. Briggs, Maxwell sales directors.

KNUDSEN AN OFFICER OF GENERAL MOTORS

At the last annual meeting of stockholders of General Motors Corporation, held at Wilmington, Del., William S. Knudsen, president and general manager of Chevrolet Motor Co., was elected a director. At a meeting of the board of directors held in New York on Tuesday, he was elected a vice president. All the present officers of General Motors Corporation were re-elected.

Knudsen, formerly vice president in charge of operations of Chevrolet Motor Co., was appointed general manager in January of this year and later elected president. He is well known in the automotive world, having been engaged in the manufacturing branch of the industry since 1905. He has been associated with Chevrolet since early in 1922.

TEVIS MOTOR CO. ADDS TO QUARTERS

The Tevis Motor Co., Ford and Lincoln dealer, have expanded by leasing the building at 3005-7 Locust boulevard, formerly occupied by the Spalding Motor Co. This increases the Tevis floor space to 35,000 square feet and is the second time it has been forced to add to its quarters.

The original Tevis building was that at 3003 Locust boulevard, just east of the building newly leased. Then the Tevis company took over the entire second floor of the building at the northwest corner of Locust and Garrison avenue. Now comes the leasing of the additional building.

The new building is being redecorated. The front is being washed and other improvements made and the Tevis company have already placed cars on display.

HALF OF HUPMOBILES ARE CLOSED MODELS

Hupmobile closed car production for the first 110 days of 1924 was 50 per cent of the factories' entire output, including production for Canada and foreign countries. This compares with 28 per cent for all of 1923.

Thirty-two per cent of the entire output has been centered on the recently announced five-passenger club sedan, with the standard sedan, four-passenger coupe and two-passenger coupe following in that order in point of closed car sales. Since April 1, 58 per cent of the entire production has been centered on the enclosed models.

The Best Buy On the Market Today

We say emphatically that the good Maxwell is by long odds the best buy on the market today.

It is the best simply because it delivers more useful, carefree service per penny invested than any other car of its class.

Such an unqualified statement must always rest on genuine in-built goodness.

Throw the searchlight on the good Maxwell and see for yourself how it emerges triumphantly superior in sturdiness and genuine goodness.

See the bridge-type construction of the Club Sedan body. Body and door framing is all hardwood, unusually substantial. Metal bracing is stiff, strong, heavily-ribbed steel.

Doors are hung on four sturdy hinges and supplied with double steel supporting wedges. They stay square and true.

There is little chance for rattle and rumble and squeak in such a body; and the world knows how splendidly dependable the good Maxwell chassis is, and how little the car costs to run.

These are just a few reasons why the good Maxwell is so superlatively good—why it is so dependable, enduring, economical—

Why every model earns a legitimate title to its popularity—

Why the good Maxwell is the logical—the inevitable—choice of every man who insists on investing every penny he spends to the very best advantage.

BUSINESS IN FLINT BEST IN HISTORY

Secretary of Michigan City's Chamber of Commerce Points to Automotive Activities as Proof.

FLINT, Mich., May 3.—"Business in Flint is better than in any previous time in its history, and there are no ominous clouds in our horizon."

The above remarks climaxed an optimistic review by C. W. Otto, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, the same man who, about a year ago, startled the world by relegating the city of Detroit to a lower place than Flint among automotive centers. Automotive industries quotes Otto in a story from Flint, published in the current issue.

Otto states that he just completed a survey of conditions in his own town and is prepared to assert that Flint is well ahead of Detroit in its production of motor cars. Otto based his estimate upon figures obtained from the Buick and Chevrolet plants of his city. He cited principally about Buick.

"I have just finished an exhaustive tour of the Buick plant and interviewed all its leading officials," said Otto, "and you can tell the whole world that this great enterprise is in splendid shape to hang up a record production of sales during the present year. At the close of business, on March 31, they had sold approximately 12,000 more of the 1924 models than during the previous fiscal year, which up to that time was by far the record. Buick has on its payroll at the present time more than 8,000 men, and while all are not on full time, greatly increased schedules have been approved for May. This condition, mind you, is present in spite of the fact that the plant was prepared for the spring business by an unusual—a very unusual for a winter production. The consequence was that more cars were ready for delivery when the spring season opened than usual, but the product as been rapidly absorbed and record deliveries hung up in many parts of the country."

It took but a trip through the Buick plant for the correspondent to verify all that Otto had said. Every of the various departments indicate that the production is at a high point and this is verified by the word from such officials as President H. H. Bassett, Cady B. Durham, vice president and production manager, and E. T. Strong, general sales manager.

FULL REO FORCE IS WORKING FULL TIME

Reports from the Reo Motor Car Company, at Lansing, Mich., show that in the Reo shops a full force of workmen are working full time and that shipments from the Reo factory in April are 23 per cent in excess of shipments last month. There is no indication that the working schedule or that production plans will be changed in the slightest, according to this information which was received by the Kardell Motor Car Co.

With the exception of March, each month in 1924 has found the Reo doing a greater volume of business than was done in the corresponding month of 1923. In February this increase in business amounted to 40 per cent. During the first three weeks of April it was 12½ per cent over that of the same period a year ago.

OUTLOOK CONTINUES GOOD, SAYS AUTO MAN

"Latest reports from the factory at Marysville, Mich., indicate widespread activity in sales," says I. G. McNiece of the McNiece Motor Co., Inc., local Wills Sainte Claire distributor.

"I have noticed that about this time every year rumors of a pessimistic nature become circulated concerning the automotive industry. Every year we see these rumors knocked into a cocked hat. An intelligent survey of the situation proves there is no sound basis for such rumors at this time.

"As far as Wills Sainte Claire is concerned, the factory is working at top notch schedule trying to keep up with the orders that come pouring in. These orders are coming from every section of the country.

"General conditions are good. We have only to compare present sales with sales in the same period of former years to substantiate that statement."

Comedian Makes Show "Jumps" In His Lincoln Limousine

Driving his Lincoln car in preference to traveling in a Pullman, Joe Cook, star comedian and entertainer, has set a precedent for stage folk.

From the time the musical comedy company of which he is a star, left New York, Cook made all the weekly "jumps" from city to city in his car, accompanied by Mrs. Cook and their youngest child, a girl of four.

"We've had some great trips," Cook said recently. "I found that winter touring is every bit as delightful as summer touring and we've enjoyed some wonderful sights.

"I've never been late in any city and always arrived refreshed from my drive."

Cook drives a Fleetwood seven-passenger inside-drive limousine, one of the most distinctive of the Lincoln custom built body types.

EUROPE WILL USE MORE AMERICAN CARS

Swiss Business Man Predicts Increase in U. S. Exports of High-Grade Machines.

Substantial increase in the use of American motor cars—particularly those of the higher grade—by European business men is predicted by Falconer E. Crowe, sole governing director of Crowe & Co., European shipping and forwarding agents, the first man to introduce the use of motor lorries into Switzerland and one of the first to use a motor car for general business purposes there, who is in America on a flying business trip.

Crowe stopped in Detroit to see the Cadillac factory, for he is using that car for travel in every part of Europe. He has his head office in Basle, Switzerland; maintains 11 offices in various cities on the continent and three in England. A large part of his time is spent on the road and he travels wholly by motor car.

European business men are just beginning to realize that motor cars are a commercial necessity rather than a luxury, Mr. Crowe states. After his own experience he believes that the dependability, performance and riding comfort of American cars will make them European favorites with those who come to use them for extensive travel and for business purposes.

In the Alpine Mountains so little provision has been made for the convenience of motor car travel that it is still necessary to carry a whip to drive cattle from the roads. Other parts of Europe, according to his picture, would be an American motorist's paradise, as he states that he drives between towns at a speed of 90 to 100 kilometers (55 to 62 miles) per hour.

FLINT MAKES RECORD ON THREE WHEELS

What is regarded as a world's record was established in Chicago by a Flint six "55" which was driven continuously through the streets for 24 hours on three wheels.

The right front wheel was removed and in this situation the car traveled 350.7 miles, averaging 14 miles to the gallon despite heavy city traffic. Some of the roughest streets were traversed but the car showed no signs of damage.

PASTOR USES CAR IN HIS DAILY WORK

Dr. Charles Herbert Rust, pastor of the Wilkinsburg Baptist Church, has found an automobile to be an invaluable aid to the daily work of a minister. "It is of tremendous help," said Dr. Rust, "when one considers the many demands which come to a preacher today in a widely scattered parish. On one day he may need to answer calls from all over a large territory."

Dr. Rust owned a car in Scranton and Rochester, Pa., and used it in his work. At Rochester the church thought an automobile so necessary to its pastor that it paid part of the cost of maintenance and operation.

When Dr. Rust was called to Wilkinsburg from Scranton, members of the Immanuel Baptist Church presented him with a Packard six touring car.

"Elijah may have had a wonderful chariot, but it was not a Packard," said Dr. Rust. "We expect to use this Packard for at least 10 years. Who is it that declares the church does not take care of its ministers?"

Here's "Get-Away" by the Gallon

On the open road when the god of Up-and-at-'Em says "Step On It," does your car respond reluctantly by saying "In a minute I'll be with you"...?

Or at a busy crossing, does it sometimes seem that your car is anchored to the street...? You know—that sluggish feeling which makes you want to get out and push.

You've never used Lubrite Gasoline, that's all.

Get-away is half the joy of driving. And Lubrite gives it to you—liquid get-away, pick-up by the gallon.

And no wonder... Lubrite Gasoline is a high-test, straight-run motor fuel with a combustion range free from marked irregularities.

The result is bound to be steady, even power—and lots of it—and prompt, unhesitating acceleration either in the waits of heavy traffic or out where broad highways and far hills beckon.

Lubrite costs no more than ordinary gasoline. Try a filling—today.

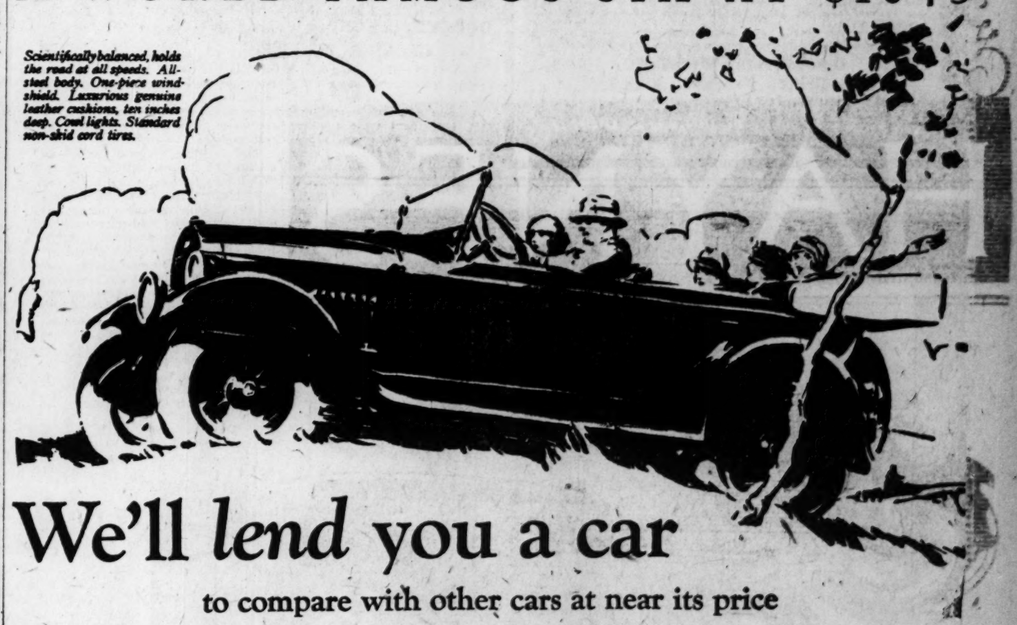
A WORLD-FAMOUS SIX AT $1045



Scientifically balanced, holds the road at all speeds. All-steel body. One-piece windshield. Luxurious genuine leather cushions, ten inches deep. Cowl lights. Standard non-skid cord tires.

We'll lend you a car to compare with other cars at near its price

THIS is an offer to anyone who is considering the purchase of a car in the $1000 field.

We invite you to take out a Studebaker Light-Six model for the sake of comparing it with other cars at near its price. This without obligation to buy.

Every maker advances claims for his car. Some are fair, some superlative; some are borne out by facts, others not.

You've been told this car, that car or another is "just as good" as this famous Studebaker model. Now find out for yourself. That's the only way to buy lasting satisfaction.

When you try this Studebaker Light-Six, you will find an engine of remarkable power and flexibility—an L-head engine designed and built by Studebaker; noted for its quiet and smooth operation; free from vibration because its crankshaft and connecting rods are machined on all surfaces, an exclusive Studebaker feature on cars at this price.

You will find surprising ease of handling, unusual comfort, roominess, obvious refinements and all the visible signs of a quality car. You will find low price its only contrasting feature.

Remember, Studebaker is the world's largest quality car builder and thus is in position to give you the utmost for the least.

Buy no car at $500 or more without making this test. Don't buy blindfolded.

Whitacre Joins Flint.

Announcement has just been made of the appointment of C. J. Whitacre as chief engineer for the Flint Motor Co. of Flint, Mich.

Whitacre is a prominent figure in the automotive industry. Whitacre is not a newcomer in the Durant organization as he was associated with W. C. Durant for 11 years.

Staunch—

Built by men who know cars and how to do a fine job of building. Staunch because every detail of construction is planned for staunchness. A sturdier motor, a deeper, heavier frame, bigger springs that few cars, regardless of price, can match. A staunch and ever-faithful friend you can keep and enjoy many a long year. Ride a mile in an H. C. S. and you are spoiled for anything but an H. C. S.—weaned clear away from ordinary cars

Passengers Will Travel From St. Louis to Chicago in This Bus

Reo I, one of eight that will be put in service soon.

ST. LOUIS-CHICAGO BUSSES IN 30 DAYS

Eight-passenger busses are to be operated between St. Louis and Chicago by the Chicago-St. Louis Motor Coach Company, according to a recent announcement. These busses are products of the Reo Motor Car Company of Lansing, Mich., and one order was placed with the Kardell Motor Car Company, Reo distributors.

Bojin Athanasoff, who is the head of the Chicago-St. Louis Motor Coach Company, made an extended trip of eight months throughout the Pacific Coast, visiting Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles, to study the transportation problems there, where busses are in wide use. He says that the Reo bus, model "W," he finds will give the most economical service and is suited for the type of transportation required between St. Louis and Chicago.

It is expected that eight of these busses will be in operation from St. Louis to Chicago between June 1st and 15th. Many important business men in St. Louis, who have been told of the plan to operate these busses between the two cities, have approved the idea.

The Chicago-St. Louis Motor Coach Company is promoted and organized by Athanasoff's relatives and friends, and is incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri. Mr. Athanasoff has been in business in St. Louis for 17 years.

DODGE SALES SET GREATER RECORD

For the third successive week Dodge Brothers dealers broke retail delivery records.

During the week ending April 5th, 5694 cars were delivered to purchasers. This was more than 100 in excess of the greatest previous week's business in Dodge Brothers history. The very next week saw the delivery of 6106 cars at retail.

And now it is disclosed by official figures from the factory that the week ending April 19th set still another and much greater record, with 6576 deliveries to customers.

This information was just received by the Tate Motor Co., Inc., Dodge distributors.

TIRE DEALERS WILL MEET NEXT THURSDAY

The next meeting of the Associated Tire Dealers of St. Louis will be held at the Melbourne Hotel, next Thursday evening, May 8. A good program is being arranged.

At a recent meeting of committee members and officers at Johnston Bros. Tire and Service Co., it was decided to incorporate the organization.

This meeting also decided to prepare an emblem for the association which is to be displayed inside all members' salesrooms containing the words, "Members of the Associated Tire Dealers of St. Louis. A Bond for Better Relations."

Another Proof That Buicks Satisfy

Buick owners are always reluctant to part with their cars. For Buick's dependability, its ability to master every road condition, its sturdiness, its safety and comfort all firmly establish Buick in every owner's regard. Buick has made good cars for over twenty years and the latest Buick achievement is its greatest. Let us prove this to you by a demonstration in the Buick model you like the best.

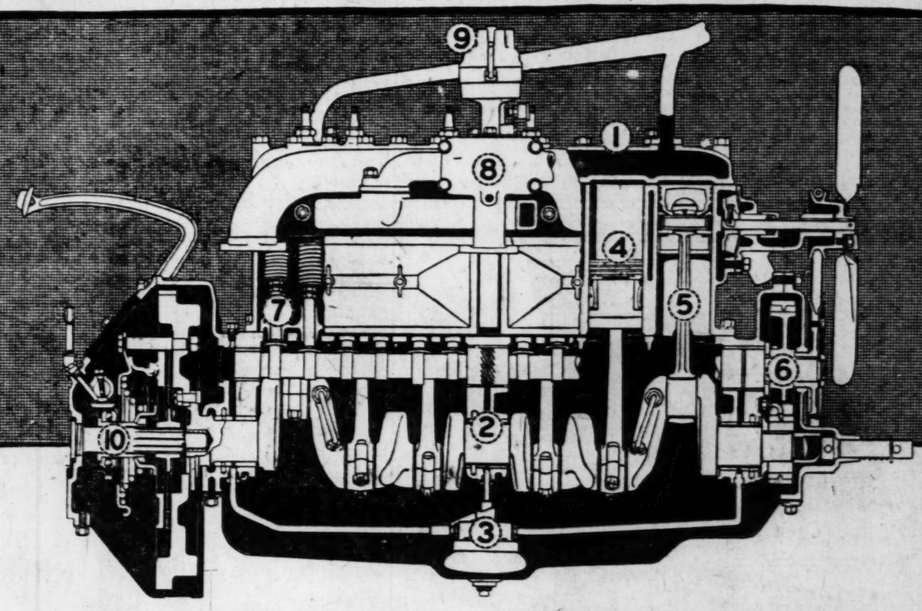
When better automobiles are built, Buick will build them.

Here are the Reasons for the Power, Smoothness and Endurance of Oakland's Six-Cylinder Engine



(1) Oakland's new six-cylinder L-head engine is of the most advanced design. Its remarkable performance is the logical result of competent engineering and high grade construction throughout.

(2) The large, perfectly-balanced crankshaft runs in big, special, bronze-backed bearings. These patented bearings, on which smooth and trouble-free engine performance depends so much, are positively the best that money can buy.

(3) Lubrication is force feed by means of a reliable gear-type oil pump. Main, camshaft, and connecting-rod bearings and timing chain are continually bathed in oil. This positive lubrication adds greatly to the quiet operation and long life of this True Blue engine. No better oiling system has been developed.

(4) Oakland cylinders are honed smooth as glass on special machines. Pistons and rings of the latest design are individually fitted into each cylinder with extreme care and precision. Vibration and wear are practically eliminated by this painstaking process.

(5) The connecting rods are light and strong. The babbitt-lined bearings are permanently bonded to each rod with pure tin—the most approved process and also the most expensive.

(6) The camshaft is driven by a silent chain running in a bath of oil. This is conceded the best type of drive and the most accurate. There is a convenient external adjustment.

(7) Oakland valves are of special, heat-resisting alloy steel. So efficient are they, that valve grinding is necessary only at very rare intervals.

(8) The intake manifold is scientifically designed to insure perfect fuel distribution to all cylinders, and therefore smooth, economical operation. There is a handy temperature adjustment for summer and winter.

(9) The electrical system maintains Remy standards of excellence. The spark control is entirely automatic, which means that the engine will deliver the maximum of power under all conditions.

(10) The single-plate disc clutch is simple and durable. It is self-adjusting for wear. Its smooth operation is, in no small way, responsible for the remarkably easy gear shifting of the True Blue Oakland.

In no other car can such high quality be had at Oakland's price

Sensational Offer to St. Louis Motorists

10 cents a day for one year's upkeep

We will keep any new Overland passenger or commercial car purchased during the next six months in proper running condition, including labor and parts (excepting only tires, batteries and speedometers which are guaranteed by their manufacturers, and also excepting damage by wrecks or collisions) for an entire year at a cost of only 10c a day.

This plan is entirely optional. Many owners report maintenance costs far below this figure!

In making this revolutionary offer, we go on record as backing this wonderful car as no other car has been backed before. We have faith in Overland because we know Overland keeps faith with its owners. We back Overland to the limit because Overland backs us.

Automobile buyers in 1924 want the facts—not a lot of fancy sales talk. Just try to get dealers for other cars to answer the questions we give on this page.

All merchandise is sold by comparison. A silk merchant compares fabrics. A furrier compares pelts. A jeweler compares jewels. Why shouldn't you buy your automobile on a basis of fair comparison?

Make any dealer in St. Louis answer these questions:

(Q)—Will you agree to furnish all labor and materials necessary to maintain my car for one year at a cost of 10c a day?

(A)—Overland does.

(Q)—Is your car's clutch enclosed of improved plate type or is it open and exposed to the elements?

(A)—Overland is enclosed and is built as a unit with the engine.

(Q)—Are your car's push rods enclosed in an oil tight case?

(A)—The Overland push rods are, eliminating dirt.

(Q)—What is the diameter of your car's axle shafts? Do they carry Timken and New Departure bearings, and are the axles removable without dissembling the rear axle housing?

(A)—Overland axle shafts are 1⅛ inches in diameter—carry both Timken and New Departure ball bearings to care for all stresses and are removable without dissembling the entire rear construction (a costly operation.)

(Q)—Has your car ordinary bearings or genuine Timkens in the front wheels?

(A)—Overland has four genuine Timken bearings in the front wheels.

(Q)—Will you agree to submit the springs of your car to a competitive tensile strength test with Overland?

(A)—Overland springs have 25 per cent greater tensile strength than those of most competitive cars.

(Q)—Why don't you use Triplex spring construction, which permit your car to have short wheel base but long spring base, thus insuring easy riding at all speeds and road conditions, yet with short turning radius for city driving?

(A)—Overland has.

(Q)—Has your car removable upholstery that quickly converts it into a car for commercial uses?

(A)—Overland has.

(Q)—Has your car a solid steel body, reinforced entirely with steel and has it a baked enamel finish?

(A)—Overland Touring has.

(Q)—Can the drive compartment of your car be entered from the left side with ease?

(A)—You can with an Overland. A wide door makes access easy.

(Q)—Has your car as powerful an engine as Overland?

(A)—The new Overland engine is bigger and better than ever.

(Q)—How many miles on a gallon of gasoline?

(A)—Thousands of St. Louis Overland owners are getting 20 to 25 miles per gallon of gasoline with Overland cars.

(Q)—How about lubricating oil consumption?

(A)—Hundreds of St. Louis Overland owners who have driven the cars an average of 5,125 miles per car last year, drove this distance on a lubricating oil consumption average of 162.5 miles per quart.

(Q)—How do you figure an owner's investment?

(A)—Here it is straight. The real price is the list price, plus the service expense, plus depreciation when the car is placed on the market for re-sale. There is no guess about Overland service costs and a comparison will prove that there is less depreciation in Overland.

When you dig into the facts you find any number of reasons why St. Louis owners call Overland the most automobile in the world for the money.

This Is Our Challenge and Answer to Competition. We Back Overland to the Limit Because Overland Backs Us. We Invite and Welcome All Comparisons of Quality, Comfort, Power and Economy at or Near Overland Price.

RED CROWN ETHYL GASOLINE

GENERAL MOTORS PRODUCT

The Greatest Invention Since the Self-Starter

One authority has stated that Ethyl Red Crown Gasoline is the greatest invention known to the automobile industry since the development of the self-starter. This is because it makes possible greater power, smoother operation, the elimination of the harmful effects of carbon and a greater fuel economy. For years the world has waited for the development of a more efficient fuel. Ethyl Red Crown Gasoline meets this expectancy. You should use it in your car.

SAYS PEDESTRIANS SHOULD OBEY SIGNALS

By WALTER P. CHRYSLER. Chairman of the Board of Directors Maxwell and Chrysler Motor Corporations.

The other day in Brooklyn the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court confirmed verdicts aggregating $30,000 awarded in suits brought against the wife of a wealthy candy manufacturer, as a result of a collision April 19, 1922, in which her automobile was involved. The plaintiffs alleged they were thrown from the automobile with which the defendant's car collided. So far the case is not particularly unusual unless it is the amount of the damages awarded. But:

The defendant was not in her machine at the time.

The law holds that the owner of a car is liable for injuries it may inflict. By the same token a railroad company is sued for damages in the event of accident. But we do not know whether the heavy damages awarded are equitable.

A study of damage suits shows that in our large Eastern cities there are few motor owners on juries, with the result that motor car owners who appear as defendants are given the limit. In the Middle West where car owners are more predominant than in the city, half the average jury is made up of those who own automobiles. And the awards are quite different.

If the pedestrian took half the care to protect himself that the motor car owner does to protect the pedestrian there would not be half as many accidents. The person who doubts this statement need do nothing more than study accident statistics. Jay-walking is the commonest cause of accidents. People have rights in the streets, but they should use crossings and they should obey traffic signals.

The time is rapidly coming when pedestrians for their own safety will be compelled to heed traffic signals and regulations just like the motorist. The motorist who disobeys is at once summoned. The pedestrian doesn't even get a 'call-down. He goes on his way unmolested. For his own good this should be changed.

NEW PAIGE BROUGHAM HAS AN UNUSUAL BODY

Custom-built bodies are the desire of all discriminative motorists. The Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., builders of the line of motor cars known for years as "the most beautiful car in America," has brought out the nearest automobile to a custom-built job ever offered, claims James E. Newell of the Newell Motor Car Co., Paige and Jewett distributers.

The new four-door brougham is finished in Lady Mary maroon, with black leather finish back. The upholstery is in all-wool mohair and the appointments the very latest, including trunk on rear, windshield wiper, dome light, gasoline gauge on dash, electric clock, assembled instruments and high-bake black enamel fenders and radiator shell.

STUDEBAKER VETERAN PLACED IN MUSEUM

Light-Six Which Holds Pacific Coast Road Records Wins Honor Place in 'Hall of Fame.'

SOUTH BEND, Ind., May 3.—The famous Studebaker Light-Six, which holds Pacific Coast records in fast mail carrying service, arrived here today, and was placed in honorable retirement.

The veteran machine, still full of pep and power despite its gruelling service, was moved into a prominent place in the Studebaker Museum—where many celebrated cars and vehicles with a romantic history are viewed each year by thousands of visitors.

This new addition to the museum of transportation in the Studebaker Administration Building, was sent by the Chester N. Weaver Co., Studebaker distributors at San Francisco.

Driven by Hart L. Weaver and James F. Gurley of the Chester N. Weaver Co., and accompanied by observers, this car made wonderful road records between Los Angeles and San Francisco more than three years ago. On February 2, 1921, it established a new round-trip record between San Francisco and Los Angeles, a distance of 864.8 miles, in the sensational time of 21 hours and 23 minutes. On the same trip it lowered the coast route record between these two cities by two hours, 35 minutes and 20 seconds, the time being 10 hours, 12 minutes and 30 seconds for the 453.7 miles.

Three weeks later this remarkable car smashed the valley route record between the main postoffice at Los Angeles and Ferry postoffice, San Francisco, running the distance of 411.1 miles in nine hours, 15 minutes and 50 seconds.

A month after these phenomenal runs, this light-six covered the 425 miles of narrow dessert trail from Los Angeles to Phoenix in 13 hours, 16 minutes, cutting off two hours and 28 minutes from the best previous automobile record. The railroad time is one hour, four minutes slower than the record established by this light-six.

JEWETT RETURNS, IS PLEASED WITH SALES

DETROIT, Mich., May 3.—Harry M. Jewett, president of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., has returned from a month's business trip to Europe. In a statement given out upon his return he said that he was well pleased with American business conditions, especially after learning of huge increases being made in retail sales.

"Sales of dealers during the last two weeks, according to reports to our distribution department, were equal to the previous six weeks," states Mr. Jewett. "Sales for the entire eight weeks showed an increase of 21 per cent over the same period last year.

The Paige company expects to continue the present volume of business. This will make the total volume for the first six months in dollars somewhat over $40,000,000 or nearly the same volume reached during the entire year 1923.

"Up to this week we have shipped 46 per cent more Paiges and Jewetts than we did during the same period last year. We have already shipped more Paige cars than we did during the entire year 1923."

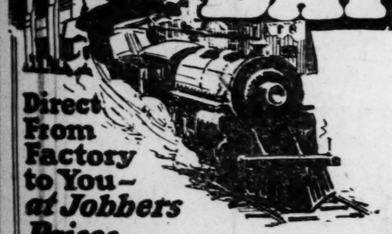
FACTORY SALE OF AUTO & RADIO BATTERIES



Direct From Factory to You—at Jobbers Prices

A carload of PACKARD batteries on the way to a big Southern distributor had just reached St. Louis when we received word that financial reverses had made it impossible for this distributor to accept the shipment. Rather than pay the freight back to Chicago, we decided to offer these batteries to you at factory prices—thus saving money for both of us.

PACKARD

The "Five Feature" Battery

1. PACKARD plates are made by the exclusive "Thermite" process—insuring maximum power and life.
2. Genuine quarter sawed Port Orford Cedar separators provide 100% efficient long-life insulation.
3. Guaranteed leak-proof construction throughout. No destructive corrosion—no loss of power.
4. Warranted full size and full capacity. Laboratory tests show a current delivery 22% in excess of rating.
5. New improved one-piece rubber container guaranteed not to leak, crack or rot. Can be used indefinitely.

Special For Fords

6 VOLT—11 PLATE

BAKER BROADCASTS TALK OVER RADIO

"If speed were reckless driving, I would not be alive today," said "Cannon Ball" Baker in a recent talk over the radio from the broadcasting station at Hotel Brunswick of Boston. "When a competent driver has a car whose brakes, chassis and other parts are in perfect condition, he can move fast without taking chances.

"My record midwinter coast-to-coast run in a stock Gardner sedan is an example of what I mean. This was my sixty-fourth trip across the country, and was made under the worst conditions of any I have ever undertaken.

CAR SHOULD BE IN SHAPE FOR TOURING

Paige-Detroit Engineer Discusses Brakes in First Article of Series on Summer Trips.

By G. CLARK MATHER.
Chief Engineer, Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co.

"In a short time the touring season will open and many car owners will take long trips over roads which are strange to them and under conditions with which they are not familiar. In order that the maximum of pleasure may be derived from a vacation trip, it is essential that the car should be in the very best condition.

"Perhaps one of the most overlooked parts of the motor car which detracts from the best performance is the braking equipment. It is a factor which, unless adjusted, carefully, undoubtedly causes poor performance.

"Car owners and garages do not take pains enough in adjusting brakes. All drag must be eliminated.

"Many owners and garage men think that as long as the brake drums do not feel warm to the hand after driving, that the bands are not dragging. This is not conclusive evidence that brakes are free. The only way to be certain that brake bands are not dragging is to jack up both rear wheels from the ground and then turn one wheel in the forward direction. When this is done, due to differential action, the wheel on the opposite side of the car should turn in the reverse direction if the bands are free. While this check is being made the gearshift lever should be in the neutral position. Any "swishing" or rubbing noise at the brakes while the wheel is being rotated is a suspicious circumstance that should be eliminated if you wish to be free from brake drag.

"It is almost unbelievable to one that has not had the experience, what a very slight amount of brake drag will do to the performance of an automobile, especially on a grade.

"If the brake linings are worn and require replacement, this should be done before leaving on a trip. It is aggravating to have to fool with worn-out brake bands during one's vacation period. There are several excellent kinds of brake bands, but really only one make which is suitable for the all-round conditions a tourist will meet with. The recommendation of the motor car's builder should be followed."

FIVE IN DORT MAKE TOUR—COST IS $23.25

It looks as if George Beasancon of Wilkes Barre, Pa., had reduced the cost of "seeing America first" to the minimum, according to H. C. Merry of the Wilson Motor Car Co.

He drove himself, his wife, son and two daughters—all except one full grown people—and 500 pounds of luggage—from Citra, Fla., to Wilkes Barre in Northern Pennsylvania, at a total cost of $23.25, says a report Merry has just received. That expense included $5 for a spring that cracked under the strain of an unseen chuckhole. The total distance was 1539 miles, for which the party used 68 gallons of gasoline, averaging a little over 22½ miles, and five quarts of oil, averaging better than 307 miles a quart.

The Beasancon family's trip was made in a Dort car which Beasancon purchased second-hand in November, 1922. It had gone 6000 miles then. When it left Citra last month the mileage was 24,500.

Beasancon's feat is pretty close to a record in low-cost traveling and will give this summer's tourists a good mark to shoot at. A total cost per person of $4.65 for a 1500 mile trip is mighty close to free traveling. Beasancon does not state what he and his family ate, if anything, en route.

GENERAL BATTERY SERVES FIVE YEARS

Every once in a while the world hears of some automobile that has traveled far enough to reach several times around the earth. Then again a motorist is likely to tell about a set of tires that served him mileage that equals two or three usual tire generations.

However, the tales of unusually long battery service are few and far between. The Square Deal Battery Co., one of the distributors of "General" storage batteries, now presents what is almost a record for battery life.

Five years ago this company sold a "General" to A. Heckemeyer, 4220 Holly avenue for his Dorris. It was one of the first batteries that the Square Deal Battery Co. sold after entering business.

Last week Heckemeyer advised the Square Deal Battery Co., that he thought his "General" battery had done its duty and deserved a rest.

During the entire five years the battery had never been recharged and had never been out of Heckemeyer's Dorris. So he ordered a new "General."

E. A. Downey, president of the "General" Storage Battery Co., says that he has had reports of "Generals" that served two, three and even four years, but this is the first five-year "General" that has ever come to light.

USED CAR WEEK

USED CAR WEEK

The Second Annual Red Tag Sale Used Car Week Begins Today

It brings real opportunity to secure a splendid car at a fraction of the original cost. Never before in the history of the automobile industry have such excellent advantages for automobile ownership been made possible.

With wise foresight and a desire to be genuinely helpful, St. Louis automobile dealers have combined to make this event of greatest importance to prospective car buyers. The sale is held early in the Season, so that every day of Spring and Summer will yield its fullest measure of health and happiness to auto owners.

Stocks of splendid, service-giving automobiles, in many instances guaranteed cars of every desired make and model, are being offered. Prices have been reduced to unprecedented levels. Those who buy now are the ones who will profit most.

Summer is a dull time or a happy time, depending on what you put into the days. If there is work, there should also be pleasure; if there is city heat and hurry, there may also be country coolness and quiet; if there is effort, there may also be rest and relaxation.

A car will give you and your family the country, the quiet, the rest, the efficiency and the happiness you need—and give it at less cost than any other means at your command.

Read the list of cars offered today in the Post-Dispatch's Classified "Automobiles" columns. The time is short. Nothing is reserved in this sale. First come, first served. Let the dealers put them through a thorough test for you. Ask about the guarantee of service and the terms of payment.

Remember that the car ownership state of mind is the success state of mind. Get it. Get your car. You can afford it NOW.

Don't Let This Big Opportunity Pass; Buy Your Car NOW—and Buy RIGHT.

DERESNADYNE JUST WHAT NAME IMPLIES

New Hook-Up De-Resonates Plate Circuit, Thereby Preventing Oscillation.

Announcement was made recently of a new principle evolved by E. A. Beane, radio supervisor of the Ninth District, for deresonating the plate circuit to prevent oscillation. The principle has been recently developed by E. F. Andrews, and is described by R. J. Casey in the Chicago Daily News as follows:

The name Deresnadyne is a descriptive term based upon the fundamental theory of the system, the deresonation of the plate circuit. The designers point out that resonance in the plate circuit is more generally a cause of free oscillation than the better advertised feedback due to plate-grid capacity.

Concerning the method of "deresonation," Mr. Andrews says:

"As to the plate circuit itself, its induction can be reduced in two ways. First, by decreasing the number of turns in the transformer primary included in the plate circuit and, second, by spacing the turns so that their mutual inductance is reduced. This latter can readily be accomplished by putting one or more secondary turns between every two turns of the primary. When the primary turns are reduced to a small number it is possible by this method still further to reduce the inductance without reducing the length of the primary in contact with the secondary.

"Coupling the antenna circuit closely to the grid circuit also reduces the tendency to oscillation, as it imposes more of the antenna resistance upon the grid circuit. If the antenna has a very low resistance it will be necessary to take more turns out of the plate circuit to stop oscillation than if the resistance of the antenna is fairly high. It has been found that six separated turns so wound that the outside diameter is 2½ inches gives very good results with the type of aerial generally used for broadcast reception.

"Now, let us see what causes oscillation and why it can be prevented by derosonating the plate circuit. To oscillate a tube must first amplify. There must be more energy in the plate circuit than in the grid circuit. Also the plate and grid circuits must be coupled so that the energy can be transferred from the former to the latter. This coupling is present in all vacuum tube circuits. It has not been and probably cannot be eliminated. Now if there is fed back through this coupling from the plate circuit to the grid circuit energy equal to or greater than the energy lost in overcoming the resistance of the grid circuit, free oscillation will result. To prevent this condition we do not need to eliminate completely the transfer of energy from the plate to the grid circuit. It is necessary only to see that the energy so transferred is substantially less than that which is lost in overcoming the grid circuit resistance."

Winding in Practice.

In practice the transformers of the deresnadyne are wound on flat spiderweb forms of bakelite five inches in diameter. The number of fan-like spokes radiating from the one-inch core is not critical so long as it is uneven.

The transformers are wound with No. 22 DSC wire. The primary is six turns. The secondary is 50.

In winding the coils one turn of primary is threaded through the spokes of the form. Then two turns of secondary are laced on top of it. The primary wire is then brought straight up and woven through for the second turn. Two more turns of secondary are then put on. A similar process is followed until the entire winding is completed. A bakelite disc covering the primary is bolted on either side of the primary to prevent the woven winding from slipping in handling. Aside from this somewhat complicated performance the construction of the set is not extremely difficult.

Neutrodyne Plans Suitable.

Any well-balanced neutrodyne plan will do for the panel layout. The three tuning condensers are at the left evenly spaced with the dials about six inches from center to center. Below each condenser is bracketed a shelf two inches wide and five inches long extending toward the rear of the cabinet. A transformer is mounted at the extreme rear of each shelf, a bracket from the center of the spiderweb form being movably attached to the rear left corner as one looks at it from the panel. Each transformer is set at an angle of 45 degrees from the plane of the panel.

The tuning condensers are .0005 variables and should be good ones. The detector and amplifier units do not differ at all from the standard and may be built as specified in any tuned radio-frequency hookup. In the Andrews deresnadyne the amplifier tubes are on a shelf beneath which are the transformers, jack and battery switch. The bypass condenser should be of a fairly high capacity and does not seem to be critical.

The radio-frequency tubes are controlled by one rheostat, the A. F. by another and the detector by a third. Best results were obtained with 201-A tubes in the amplified stages and UV-200 as detector.

The coil used as a coupler for tuning is hooked up with the primary in the aerial-ground circuit and the ground side of the primary connected with the normal negative filament connection of the secondary.

HOOVER WILL CALL RADIO CONFERENCE

Similar to Last Year's Meeting —To Be Held After Adjournment of Congress.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover will call a general radio conference in Washington soon after the adjournment of Congress in an effort to secure co-operation of all radio interests in clearing up the ether and solving the problem of distributing wave lengths, he announced today a conference will be called whether or not new legislation is enacted, in general the conference will be similar to those held here in the spring of 1922 and 1923, at which representatives of the manufacturers, broadcasters, engineers, amateurs, commercial operators and broadcast listeners aided in drawing up voluntary regulations under which radio has been supervised ever since. It was in this manner that the distribution of wave lengths for broadcasting and other interests was assigned.

Indications are that broadcasting stations, now numbering 577, almost as many as in May a year ago, when the peak was reached, will continue to increase although wave lengths available for this use are practically exhausted and stations are doubling up. Time allotments in congested sections are becoming difficult to make, especially in New York, where there are 14 broadcasting stations. Secretary Hoover said conditions and interference are getting worse. If present conditions continue he was unable to say how he could operate five years from now, and as a consequence he intends taking advantage of suggestions from the representatives of the allied radio arts and industry made at the conference planned. If the White bill is enacted Secretary Hoover pointed out, new regulations and probably real locations of waves will have to be made, and certainly, if no legislation is passed this will be the case, otherwise conditions such as prevailed when all broadcasters were operating on one or two wave lengths will again confront the radio public.

This condition has been brought about by manufacturers and dealers, not only of radio parts and sets, but of lead pencils, shoe strings, tooth picks, etc., to obtain broadcasting licenses endeavoring to use the air as a medium of advertising through the operation of radio broadcasting stations.

"RADIOCAST" MAY SUPPLANT "BROADCAST" IN THE FUTURE

New Word Carries Its Own Credentials of Common Sense and Usefulness.

To the Christian Science Monitor belongs the credit for originating a new term which is destined to take its place in radio phraseology. The word is "radiocast" and it makes a bid to supplant "broadcast."

The following is an editorial from the above mentioned newspaper and is self-explanatory.

"Now and then a new word appears above the horizon of our every-day vocabulary that carries its own credentials of common sense, usefulness and convenience. Such a one usually springs from new utilities or processes that meet with the world's favor. The ubiquitous radio is one of these, and a new word which it has occasioned first appeared in this paper. The new word—radiocast—requires no explanation or interpretation, and will, without doubt, in time, supersede the phrase "broadcast by radio," leaving the less distinctive word "broadcast" to return to the uses found for it long before the radio came. In this connection it is interesting to note that a common grammatical fault is made in the general use of the word "broadcasted." No such word exists, the past tense of the verb being simply "broadcast." "Radiocast," also, is a verb whose present, past and future tense are identical."

RADIO AIDS OX TEAM JOURNEY

Road Conditions Known Beforehand by Means of Wireless.

Twenty-two hours ahead of their schedule, thanks to radio advice on road conditions, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Berrang, who left Westchester, Conn., in an ox-team covered wagon, Dec. 1, 1920, have reached Medford.

Equipped with radio, Mr. Berrang learned while crossing the Siskiyou Mountains that he could take a short cut and avoid the pavement into Medford, which brought him to this city nearly a day ahead of the schedule of approximately 1200 days for the transcontinental trip.

design plus materials produce Duratran efficiency

THE remarkable efficiency of the Dubilier Duratran Radio-Frequency Transformer is due to its design and to the materials of which it is made.

All Duratran materials are carefully selected and tested to insure uniformity of performance.

Each Duratran is tested for amplification and for stability. It must amplify 20 times over the 225-550 meter band.

One extra Duratran often does the work of two or three extra r. f. transformers when more than one stage of amplification is required.

Ask your dealer for free blueprints of Duratran r. f. hook-ups. If he has none write to us for them and give us his name.

WIRED WIRELESS IS POSSIBLE IN MINES

Could Be Installed Much More Quickly Than Present System of Telephone.

Experiments with line radio and carried currents in mines indicate that this method is feasible for two-way conversations between miners below the surface and the mouths of mines, both for everyday use and in emergencies, according to the Bureau of Mines. It has greater advantages than the use of pure radio, being simpler to install and more reliable.

The difficult problem of communication with underground workers and surface stations of mines, especially after severe disturbances or accidents have taken place, will be solved, according to Assistant Engineer J. J. Jakosky of the Interior Department, by the development of the "wired wireless" telephone, utilizing existing "carriers," such as trolley wires, mine tracks, water and compressed air pipes and cables. In tests which he supervised at the Pittsburg experimental mine, no difficulty was experienced on the surface in receiving radio messages from a transmitting set on a mine locomotive, 400 feet below the surface, as long as the apparatus was near any metallic carriers. It was demonstrated that the transmitting radius of a radio set in the average coal mine is only a few hundred feet when no conductor is present, but becomes several thousand feet when operating in proximity to metallic carriers, even when broken such conductors do not completely stop communication, as would be the case with the ordinary mine telephone line. Disasters, such as fires, floods, explosions and falls, which might cause one or more breaks in the conductors, would not completely destroy them, and communication with the surface could probably be established, the investigator believes.

The installation of a line-radio telephone system is simple, the Bureau of Mines points out, and its general adoption by the industry as a potential means of communication in mine-rescue work hinges upon its availability for every-day operation. This would make it part of the operating system of the mine, with which all men would become familiar and remove it from emergency equipment. Mr. Jakosky says that it is only necessary in installing this method to lay a wire 25 to 50 feet long on the ground or stretch it along a wall or roof, in a direction approximately parallel with the "carrier," or to directly couple the set to such conductors with suitable capacities or inductances. It could be installed much quicker than the present system of mine telephone with its connecting wires. The apparatus itself, however, is more complicated than the telephone, and will have a higher upkeep expense, but it may eliminate the telephone and at least one wire. Practically any conductor, insulated sufficiently for the economic transmission of power or lighting current, will act efficiently as a high-frequency carrier, without interfering with the power supply if properly filtered and coupled. The telephone circuit itself has been used for superposing the high-frequency current.

Efforts to utilize radio in mines in the interest of humanity have been many, and experiments have been undertaken in Illinois, Pennsylvania, Arizona, Utah, Idaho, Colorado, Michigan, Wyoming, Kentucky, New York and Connecticut, as well as in England, Germany, Italy and France.

Messages from surface radio stations have been received successfully in mines, tunnels, and below water, which is of considerable value, but the method was not single. Usually, it is stated, procedure has been to take receiving sets of various degrees of sensitivity underground, and listen to broadcasts from powerful stations on the surface. These are valuable and interesting experiments but have been one-way tests and would be practical only in sending messages to entombed miners, as to progress of the rescuers or carrying directions to the unfortunate men.

Transmission from within the mine in event of accidents is of far greater importance. If a reliable means of voice transmission to the surface could be placed at the disposal of the imprisoned men, they could inform rescuers of their location, number, names, and local conditions. No reports of satisfactory pure radio transmission from within a mine to the surface have come to the attention of the bureau, probably because of the impracticability of establishing transmitting sets and antennae in mines at available points or carrking portable sets about.

The application of line radio in mine operation after its development, it is admitted by the bureau experts, will depend upon the operating conditions prevailing in individual mines. Details of recent tests with "wired-wireless" will shortly be published by the bureau in a technical circular.

OUTSTANDING RADIO EVENTS THIS SUMMER

Two Great Conventions Will Be "Attended" Literally by Millions Via Wireless.

Plans and programs just completed by the larger broadcasting stations in the United States, as well as by leading manufacturers of radio apparatus, will make the summer of 1924 the greatest radio summer since broadcasting was begun, in the opinion of E. B. Mallory, Chairman of the Radio Section of the Associated Manufacturers of Electrical Supplies, which includes in its membership the leading factors in the radio industry. Extraordinary circumstances have combined, he declared, to create an exceptionally interesting situation this summer.

"In the first place," said Mr. Mallory, "the Democratic National Convention in New York in June and the Republican National Convention in Cleveland in the same month will place the radio fan right in the thick of the pre-election campaign. For the first time in the history of the United States virtually millions of people will attend the national conventions.

"They will be able to follow each issue as it is debated on the convention floor; they will hear the nomination speeches of favorite sons, the thunder of applause for popular candidates—the music, the clamor and excitement of the impromptu parades which will spring up from time to time on the convention floors. Elaborate arrangements are now being made so the greatest possible radio audiences may be able to listen in on these conventions.

"Immediately after the convention will come the presidential campaigns. There again radio will play an epoch-making part, for it is clear that every candidate is preparing to broadcast through the air his appeal to the electorate.

"The fact that there are more class B high-powered broadcasting stations in operations this year than last is assurance to radio audiences that reception during the hottest summer months will be vastly better. The new allocation of wave lengths, particularly among the higher-powered stations, it is generally agreed, will eliminate much of the interference that resulted from conflicting wave lengths.

"Then, too, many of the stirring events that will be broadcast by radio this summer are daytime events. This means clarity of reception. Not only the national conventions but most of the sporting classics and other outdoor events throughout the country will be held during the daytime. So much for this point.

"Another factor that will make for good reception this summer is improvements in receiving apparatus. It is impossible, of course, to measure mathematically the advances made by the radio manufacturing industry in the course of one year. But this may be said: One of the results of the many notable improvements made in receiving sets is that daytime reception this summer will be better than nighttime reception in previous years. This insures that the splendid program of sports, music, speeches and entertainment planned for this summer from many broadcasting centers will be received with great satisfaction by the millions of radio listeners in the United States."

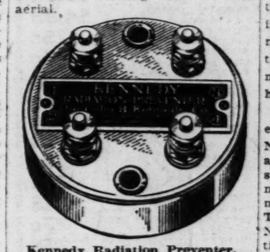
NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

Just at a timely moment, when the radiation evil was proving discouraging to manufacturers and listeners alike, C. C. Lauritsen and B. F. McNamee, research engineers of the Colin B. Kennedy Corporation, have created a simple radiation preventer which can be attached in a few seconds to any set, without changing the circuit or cutting a wire.

This device is now on the market. It is well made, manufactured to exact measurements, and so small that it may be attached inside or to the back of a cabinet inter-connected between the aerial and ground binding posts. In this position, it acts as a valve or trap, allowing the incoming electrical impulses to pass through freely, but preventing any oscillation from the tubes flowing back to the aerial.



Kennedy Radiation Preventer.

One of the features claimed for this radiation preventor is that it makes the setting of the tuning dial more or less independent of the aerial, so far as wave length is concerned. That is to say, whether the aerial is long or short, indoors or outdoors, stations will always be found at the same point on the dials. Naturally, this also proves helpful in increasing the selectivity of the set, for tuning becomes more exact and less haphazard.

The Orange Research Laboratories are manufacturing a "vacshield" designed to prevent electrostatic effects between vacuum tubes which provide interstage coupling and make it possible to more easily tune in distant stations. They are made for the UV-200, 201, 201A, C300, 301, 301A, WD-11 and WD-12 tubes. These shields not only protect the tubes from capacity effects, but also from accidental breakage.

RADIO ADMINISTRATION FUNDS APPROVED BY SENATE COMMITTE

Appropriations for the administration of radio under the Department of Commerce which were reduced by $21,500 by the House of Representatives recently, have been re-established by the Senate Appropriations Committee at $180,278, as originally approved by the Budget Bureau.

Following the reductions made by the House in the funds to be available for radio inspection, licensing and supervision for the coming fiscal year, Secretary Hoover appeared before the Senate Committee and voiced his opinion that the departmental radio section absolutely needed the full amount alowed by the budget. It is now believed that the amount O. K.'d by the Senate will finally be passed and the Senate and House conferees will agree. The increase desired by the department is only enough to provide six additional field inspectors and a few clerks to insure the handling of the increased amount of work due to additional number of broadcasting and amateur stations, and more frequent inspection resulting from the growth of radio.

New Naval Communications Chief.

Capt. Ridley McLean, U. S. N., formerly in command of the Battleship Arkansas, has been designated to relieve Capt. O. P. Jackson, as Directors of Naval Communications. Capt. Jackson goes to command the training station at Newport, R. I. Capt. McLean, who is well trained to handle naval communications, is a graduate of both the Naval and Army War Colleges, has served as Judge Advocate-General of the Navy, and is a gunnery expert. He reported to the Navy Department at Washington recently and is undergraduating Capt. Jackson, whom he relieves on June 1.

LIGHTSHIPS TO HAVE TUBE TRANSMITTERS

Cause Less Interference, and Operate With Greater Efficiency.

Eventually a system of 47 [fog] signal stations, each with [tube] transmitter, will be operated by the U. S. Lighthouse Service. There are now 10 spark stations and the one new tube set, which was installed recently on the Ambrose Channel Lightship, off New York, according to Commissioner of Lighthouses George R. Putnam.

Speaking before the National Academy of Sciences, Commissioner Putnam reviewed the development of the radio fog signals for the protection of navigation, first established by the lighthouse service three years ago with the spark stations near New York. Recent tests using 250-watt transmitting tubes, with a view to providing a signal which could be read more sharply to the proper ear, thus lessening interference and more powerful and economic sets have proven successful, he said.

A temporary sending station was established on a lightship in [the] New York Bay, where both spark and tube transmitters were installed and arranged to send signals alternately. The tests were made from the Lighthouse Tender Tulip, which is straight east of New York a distance of 115 nautical miles. On board the Tulip several observers took frequent bearings en route on both sets of signals with the ship's radio compass and found no practical difference. Out of the 93 radio bearings taken March 13, only seven readings showed an apparent error of over 2 degrees when compared with the Tulip's course plotted from visual observations and "dead reckoning." Radio signals transmitted in an earlier test were received successfully by the Nantucket Shoal Lightship, 282 miles distant from the transmitter.

Radio fog signal experiments conducted with tube sets from Cape Henry, Va., developed the fact that, although spark signals from that station had previously been complained of, the tube set was operated for four hours daily for eight days, during which time a shore radio compass station, 75 miles distant reported no interference. Operators of a local military station close by reported that they did not know the radio fog signals were being sent. Transmissions of fog signals on 1000 meter wave length by tube sets, it was pointed out, were equally effective compared with spark sets and with one-third less power.

"The radio fog signal, in conjunction with the radio compass, is likely to prove one of the greatest advances yet made in providing aids for the guidance of Marine," Mr. Putnam declared, adding that they give the navigator a means of taking accurate bearings on fixed points or other vessels regardless of fog or weather and at greater distances than are possible by sight bearings even in clear weather.

Preliminary tests made between stations at Cape Henry and Wolf Trap, thirty miles distant in Chesapeake Bay, for nine days, to study the so-called night effects on radio bearings at sunrise and sunset, showed that such disturbances do not seriously affect radio bearings. They did demonstrate, however, that it was difficult to be accurate during these hours, and shall serve as a warning for greater care in taking bearings around sunrise and sunset.

Out of 260 bearings taken on a single-coil compass at Wolf Trap only two showed a discrepancy from the mean of 3 degrees, and only three reached 2 degrees. These discrepancies were during storms when the receiving set was not operating properly, it was said.

Concluding, Mr. Putnam pointed out that the utilization of radio as an aid to navigation is in its infancy stage and that there is strong probability of further important progress.

RADIO NOTES

In the absence of the pastor, the community church in Hanover, Mass., a radio receiving set was substituted, and a congregation of 100 listened to the services broadcast by Station WBZ, Springfield.

The Hoover Cup, awarded annually by Secretary of Commerce Hoover to the owner of the best all-round amateur station of original design and construction, was awarded to Donald C. Wallace, of Minneapolis, Minn., operator of Station 9ZT.

A bill designed to prevent a monopoly of radio communication was passed recently by the Senate in Washington. It declares that radio is to be the "inalienable possession of the people," and prohibits licenses extending more than three years.

Several prisoners at the Riverview Penitentiary, at Bonne Terre, have enrolled in the radio correspondence course of the Pennsylvania State College, which is broadcast from the college station WPAB. The prisoners are permitted to use the prison receiving set for experimental work in connection with the studies.

FREQUENCY SIGNALS TO BE TRANSMITTED

Bureau of Standards Announces Schedule of Standard Frequency Signals.

The Bureau of Standards is transmitting special signals of standard frequency twice a month. The last previously announced schedule was published in the March, 1924, issue of the Radio Service Bulletin. The next schedule is announced below. The signals can be heard and utilized in general east of the Mississippi River.

These special signals of standard frequency are of use to testing laboratories, transmitting stations operators and others in standardizing wave meters and adjusting transmitting and receiving apparatus. The transmissions on May 20 and June 5 will be of special interest to ship operators, those on May 5 and July 7 to amateurs, and those on June 20 to broadcasting station operators. The accuracy of these signals is better than three-tenths of one per cent. Information on how to use them was given in the February, 1923, issue of the Radio Service Bulletin. More detailed information is given in Bureau of Standards Letter Circular No. 92, which may be obtained on application, from the Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C.

All transmissions are by unmodulated continuous-wave telegraphy. A complete frequency transmission includes a "general call," a "standard frequency signal," and "announcements." The "general call" is given at the beginning of the eight-minute period and continues for about two minutes. This includes a statement of the frequency. The "standard frequency signal" is a series of four long dashes with the call letters WWV without interval. This signal continues for about four minutes. The "announcements" are on the same frequency as the "standard frequency signal" just transmitted, and contain a statement of the measured frequency. An announcement of the next frequency to be transmitted is then given. There is then a four-minute interval while the transmitting set is adjusted for the next frequency.

The schedule of standard frequency signals from the Bureau of Standards is as follows:

IMPROVED SET FOR ARMY USE

Weighs 75 Pounds and Can be Carried by Two Men.

The most difficult problem of the Army Signal Corps has always been to keep headquarters in close contact with the troops advancing in the field of battle, and during the world war this means of radio communication was found inadequate, according to officers of the army. Recently signal experts have developed a satisfactory portable field radio set for infantry battalions, with the result that recently an improved set will be placed in operation.

The modified radio-telegraph transmitting set for infantry field use, known as S. C. R. 77, has been modified and improved in several features, giving it an increased range, and better stability. The set complete now weighs only 75 pounds, and is a "two-man" set; that is, one can carry the batteries and another the set itself.

NEUTRODYNE POPULARITY

$7,400,000 Worth of Sets Sold During First Quarter of 1924.

Complete figures covering retail sales of Neutrodyne receivers have been made public by the Hazeltine Corporation. The statement shows sales of $7,400,000 during the first quarter of 1924. A recent estimate made by the company was considerably under this figure. Following is a comparison of neutrodyne sales since these receivers were first marketed:

	Retail Sales Value.	Number of Licensed Mfrs. in Prod'n.
Prior to July 1, 1923.	$ 704,700	7
Quarter ended Sept. 30, 1923	421,922	3
Quarter ended Dec. 31, 1923	2,869,785	4
Quarter ended April 1, 1924	7,400,000	9

Of the total neutrodyne receivers sold since its advent in the spring of 1923, 1,400,000 have been sold during the first quarter of 1924.

Medical Diagnosis by Radio A Possibility, Suggests Marconi

Amplification Likely Also to Reveal Sounds Now Unsuspected, Thus Opening New Fields for Scientific Research.

Medical diagnosis by wireless telephony is the prophecy made in London recently by Senator Guglielmo Marconi in connection with the recent successful transmission of the sound of the heart-beat of a man in Pittsburg to this country.

"It is too much to suggest," Senator Marconi says, "that at no distant date a doctor will be able to diagnose by wireless? The necessity for that may arise very naturally. A man in London, let us say, may require urgently the services of a particular doctor who at that moment is hundreds or perhaps thousands of miles away. To get the doctor to the bedside would involve delay that might be fatal.

"Who can say that in the future some means will not be perfected to permit the doctor, in certain circumstances, to study his patient and diagnose his complaint by wireless? Now that it is demonstrably practicable to send the sound of heart-beats through the ether so clearly, one cannot regard such developments as mere imagination.

"I have always noticed that when doctors examine the heart they have to strain hard to hear the slight sound. I do not see why it should not be possible now to devise a method whereby the doctor could have the sound of the heart beat amplified for him, just as it is with the human voice and with music for the purpose of broadcasting. Amplification does not interfere at all with the character of sound, and the American experiment suggests impressive possibilities in the consulting room.

"In other ways, too, this amplification by wireless means of the slightest sounds may open up quite a new field of inquiry. Who knows what tiny sounds made by insects or animals may not be discovered? By careful records and amplification we may possibly ascertain that there are sounds which up to the present have not been distinguished by our ordinary hearing apparatus.

"Wireless is a science of infinite potentialities. The achievements already recorded are probably only a tithe of what will be accomplished in the future.

"For myself, I am continuing my work of limiting waves to a beam and the satisfactory results already achieved make me sanguine of complete success. Up to the present the beam has been worked over a distance of 2000 miles, but I am hopeful of extending the range."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Writer.

Q. (1) Is a licensed amateur privileged to broadcast music or entertainment? (2) Where can I get a list of parts for a 20-watt set using the Hartley circuit with Heising modulation? (3) What would be the average transmitting range of a 20-watt set using voice?
G. T. D.

A. (1) No. (2) Communicate with radio dealers whose advertisements appear elsewhere on these pages. (3) It is a common occurrence for 20-watt sets to have a range of 1500 miles under favorable conditions.

Q. Can I get the same results with a 115-foot antenna wire placed around the attic as I could with the same wire strung outdoors?
L. M.

A. No. The outdoor aerial will give much better results; but 115 feet is too long for the most efficient results, if it is desired to tune to the shortest as well as the longest wave-lengths used by broadcasters. Suggest one of about 70 feet, with a 10 to 20 foot lead-in.

Q. (1 Do reflex receivers operate well with loop aerials? (2) Does the use of paraffin on cotton-covered magnet wire, or on cardboard tubes, hinder their efficiency?
L. T. H.

A. (1) Some sets give the utmost satisfaction when used with loop aerials. (2) No. Collodion is also often used for holding wire in place.

Q. My vacuum tube is loose from the metallic base. Can you tell me what use to hold the glass tight? I have tried plaster paris and litharge, but this did not hold.
G. P.

A. Wrap string very tightly around the tube, forcing it between the tube and the base. Cover this with collodion and permit it to harden.

Q. (1) I am building an aerial with the copper ribbon taken from a Ford magneto. I am plating three of the ribbons together. How many feet of this wire will be best for an inverted "L" type aerial? (2) Would an aerial of this type give as good protection from lightning as lightning rods? (3) Which is the better circuit, the Reinartz or the Ultraudion?
J. B. J.

A. (1) Approximately 70 feet, with a lead-in 10 to 20 feet in length. (2) If properly grounded it would give equally as good lightning protection, and probably better than lightning rods. (3) This is entirely a matter of personal opinion.

Q. Can a radio transformer having a range of 300-500 meters pick up broadcasting on wave lengths above 500 meters?—J. C.

A. No doubt there are some on the market that will, but their efficiency rapidly drops off after 500 meters.

Q. I have a three-tube duo-reflex set and can receive the 400-meter stations satisfactorily, but the stations above 400 meters are very weak. Please tell me how to make the set respond to higher wave lengths?—F. H. Jr.

A. Your trouble is, in all probability due to your transformers, which probably were designed for 400 meter signals. Above and below this wave length, their efficiency is at a low degree.

Q. I have a five-tube neutrodyne set to which I would like to add a "C" battery. Kindly inform me just how this can be done.—J. A. G.

A. See the Post-Dispatch, issue of Sunday, Feb. 19, 1924. An article in this edition fully explains the connections for a "C" battery.

Q. (1) Will a Cockaday set give sufficient volume for use with a loud-speaker when using "peanut" tubes? (2) Will it give fairly good volume with detector alone, using only the headphones? (3) I would like to use this circuit if it will give results with the small tubes.—E. M. J.

A. (1) Yes, if efficiently constructed, and connected to a good outdoor aerial. (2) Yes. (3) If a one-tube set would answer your purpose, why not use one "A" tube and a six-volt dry battery for the filament current source?

Q. (1) I have a three-tube regenerative receiver. Could the vario-coupler be replaced by a variable condenser and add a four-circuit coil to make a four-circuit set? (2) Should the fixed grid-leak in my present set be substituted for one which is variable? (3) Would a potentiometer be required?—H. W.

A. (1) Yes. (2) Yes. (3) No.

DISTANCES AT SEA MEASURED BY RADIO

Device Enables Observers on Ship to Determine Distance From Any Given Object.

A new method of determining distances at sea was described by George Lewis, assistant to Powel Crosley Jr., in a talk before the Ohio Academy of Science at Columbus, recently. Mr. Lewis holds the first license issued to radio operators, and for several years he had charge of experimental work for the navy.

"A specially designed radio transmitter sends out a series of dots, one second apart, which, used in connection with the sound of a bell through the water, enables the observers on a ship automatically to determine their distance from a given object, such as a ship or shore," Mr. Lewis said. "A half mile through the water is covered in one second by the submarine bell signal.

"The radio signal, used in connection with the submarine signal, is almost instantaneous in its travel. The combination of the submarine and radio signals enables the ship officers to determine accurately the position of the vessel for example, with regard to a lighthouse. A pair of headphones is used by the radio operator on the ship, one phone connected to the radio transmitter and the other to the submarine signal receiving set, so that it is possible for the operator to listen for the signals sent from the lighthouse and thus determine the position.

"Each radio dot heard by the operator means a half mile between the ship and the lighthouse and it is only necessary to count the number of dots he hears before the arrival of the submarine signal, then the distance is known.

"Some 50 years ago the great British physicist, John Tyndall, concluded his masterly report on fog signals as follows:

"'With the instruments now at our disposal wisely established along our coast I venture to think that the saving of property, in 10 years, will be an exceedingly large multiple of the outlay necessary for the establishment of such signals. The saving of life appeals to the higher motives of humanity.'

"The practicability of this system was proven to be successful on the day before Christmas, 1916, and thus the Navy Department gave to the nation as a Christmas present a scientific discovery designed to save life and property."

Hard Rubber for Panels.

Probably one of the best insulators known, suitable for panels is hard rubber. It is easily cut and drilled, and if a good grade is used, it will not become green with age. Unless exposed to excessive temperatures and sunlight, it will not warp.

Operating a Regenerative Set.

In regenerative sets, begin tuning for the station with regeneration at zero, and when the station is heard increase regeneration until the signal is at its loudest.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR IN CHOOSING A SET

Ten Points to Be Considered In Purchasing or Constructing a Receiver.

The multiplicity of types of receiving sets available, the extravagant claims made for many of them, and the inability of a large section of the public to select good sets or parts, make the layman's choice of a set a real problem. Often the selection is just a gamble.

Yet no one ever need gamble on such an important matter. The purpose of this article is to list and xplain 10 points that should be considered before purchasing or building a set. They constitute a sort of Ten Commandments of radio.

It is owing to the large number of types of receivers on the market that the layman finds it hard to choose one which will satisfy his or her requirements to the best advantage. So many articles are written, and advertisements published extolling this and that circuit that it seems pertinent to give a formula by which the merits of each may be judged and possibly rated.

The formula consists of the sum of 10 important characteristics divided by the cost in dollars and equals satisfaction per dollar. The characteristics are:

1. Quality of reproduction. 2. Volume. 3. Range (sensitivity). 4. Easy of tuning. 5. Ease of construction. 6. Nonradiating quality. 7. Sharpness of tuning (selectivity). 8. Ruggedness. 9. Small upkeep expense. 10. Low first cost.

Some of these characteristics can be rated by one who has never seen or heard a radio set, while others need further explanation.

1. Quality of reproduction is given first, for without it a radio set is useless for entertainment. With the proper apparatus and loud speaker or head phones the quality of reproduction is assured. More attention should be given to the appartus used than the demonstration in the dealer's store, for store demonstrations are usually given under the worst of conditions. If radio had depended on store demonstrations for its growth it would have died of starvation.

The most important piece of apparatus for quality in a radio set, outside of the actual reproducer, is the detector, with the odds greatly in favor of the crystal detector.

Next in importance is the amplification both before (radio frequency) the detector and after (audio frequency) the detector. Radio frequency amplification should always be preferred to regeneration because the vacuum tubes and transformers used are performing only one function and that at their best operating points.

The audio amplifier depends for its amplification without distortion on the audio frequency transformers which should be those manufactured by transformer and radio engineers and manufacturers and should not have a ratio of transformation greater than 10 to 1 and should by all means have an air gap in the iron core. Greater ratios than this and closed iron cores produce distortion due to the phenomena of resonance, or greater amplification at some frequencies than others.

2. Volume is obtained by audio frequency amplification and depends for its magnitude on the make of transformer used and the number of stages. Never try more than three stages of audio frequency amplification, even with well made transformers.

3. The greatest range can be given to a radio receiving set by radio frequency amplification and when three stages are used produces an amplifier of such sensitivity that distant stations can be heard loud and clear even on a loop.

4. If a set has easy tuning the novice can get the most out of it; anyone can easily tune in the distant stations loud and clear. Ease of tuning depends directly on the number of controls.

5. The great majority of the sets in this country today were made at home and ease of construction is therefore a very necessary characteristic. Choose a set consisting of standard parts and wire it according to a good diagram, easily followed.

6. Build a set which won't radiate and annoy your neighbor, but if you do build a radiating type of set learn how to operate it so that the interference to others will be at a minimum.

7. The number of stations you can get on a receiver depends greatly on its selectivity and the amount of interference in your locality. A loop set can't be beat for selectivity and cutting out interference because a loop and a low loss condenser have such low resistance, and a loop has the property of receiving radio in the plane of its direction some hundreds of times easier than in directions at right angles to this plane. Interference at right angles is therefore greatly minimized.

8. Ruggedness is a characteristic usually quite apparent but for safety's sake be sure the parts are those manufactured by well known companies who are building for the future, and therefore cannot afford to put out an inferior product.

9. The upkeep expense of a radio set depends on the number of tubes used to meet all the other necessary requirements. Sets using a crystal detector and four amplifier tubes draw only half as much current as sets using a "soft" vacuum tube detector and four amplifying tubes.

10. The first cost of a radio is the easiest thing to determine as there are thousands of salesmen quite eager to tell you.

Attention to these "commandments" will pay any fan, for they will enable him—or her—not only to select a good set, but one adapted to his or her own particular needs.

Worth Knowing.

If low wave length stations cannot be received, insert a larger capacity variable condenser, shorten aerial, or insert a fixed condenser in series with the antenna lead. If high wave lengths cannot be reached, either add additional turns of wire to the stator of the vario-coupler or variometer, or insert a honeycomb coil of the required size in series with the antenna lead.

Wireless Forbidden in Occupied Area—Heavy Fines Are Inflicted.

Under the general peace terms possession of wireless apparatus of all kinds is forbidden to all inhabitants of the occupied German territories. A recent April 1 joke in one of the evening papers, which stated that a large department store had installed a complete set and that a general invitation was issued to the public to attend the stores and "listen in," was taken seriously by a large number of people, many of whom proceeded to offices of the newspaper, and if they had not found the offices closed would doubtless have visited their indignation upon the staff.

There is, however, a more serious side to the wireless question in Cologne and district just now. At the last meeting of the Solingen Summary Court two inhabitants of that town were charged with being in illegal possession of receiving sets. Both pleaded guilty; one defendant said that the firm from whom he bought the apparatus in Berlin told him that it was permissible to use the instrument in British occupied territory but not in French.

As he had not got his apparatus in a usable condition a fine of 100 gold marks was inflicted. The other defendant, who was using his set when it was discovered, was ordered to pay a fine of 500 gold marks. Both sets were confiscated.

In Cologne, with the exception of the university and one or two of the higher schools, where a special license has been granted for educational purposes, no sets have been discovered since nearly two years ago, when a son of Oppenheimer, a well-known banker, was found to be in possession of a small wireless telegraph set.

A TH

DRY GOODS FIRM SOUTHWEST C FOURTH AND

Washington University
2629-50 Washington A
Burdeau Realty

By Berry Moore.

The most notable transaction of the week involved holdings of the Missouri Botanical Garden, and the Washington University Association.

B. Nugent & Bro. Dry Goods Co. yesterday purchased from the Missouri Botanical Garden Association the southwest corner of Fourth and St. Charles streets, thus completing the site for a proposed $6,000,000 building to provide for its expansion. As indicated by the stamps on the deed, the price paid was in excess of $2000 a foot for the Fourth street frontage.

The transaction was handled by the Mercantile Trust Co., which conducted the negotiations for the other parcels embraced in the site. The Fourth and St. Charles street corner, 40x127 feet, was formerly occupied by a five-story building recently destroyed by fire.

The building was occupied by the Mitchell & Holtscher Office Supply Co., under a sublease from Nugent, which had acquired a long lease of the property from the Missouri Botanical Garden, prior to the fire, through the Mercantile Trust Co. The Botanical Garden was averse to disposing of the fee to the property before the building was destroyed.

Buildings Connected.

The development of the building plans will necessarily be prolonged, owing to the magnitude of the project, which will not only encompass the site of the present store at the southwest corner of Broadway and Washington avenue, but also a half block on the south side of St. Charles street extending from Broadway to Fourth street. The buildings will be connected by an arch over St. Charles street.

Adjoining on the south, at the northeast corner of Broadway and Locust street and extending through to Fourth street, the new Federal Reserve Bank Building is under construction. The site for this improvement was acquired through the Mercantile Trust Co.

This section of the real estate market has been on a more active basis, as a result of the Nugent project, according to real estate agents. Recent sales in this district have included the Gay Building, at Third and Pine streets, and the building formerly occupied by the Franklin Bank, at Fourth and Morgan streets.

A site in the vicinity of the Eads Bridge, preferably on Washington avenue, is sought for a hotel to provide for guests incident to interurban traffic, it is understood.

Washington Avenue Purchase.

The George T. Burdeau Realty Co. yesterday purchased 275x135 feet at 2629 to 2650 Washington avenue, from the Washington University Association, represented by Isaac Hedges. Three three-story obsolete residential structures occupy the site, which begins 100 feet west of the Coliseum, at the southwest corner of Washington and Jefferson avenues.

The Burdeau corporation has not disclosed its plans in connection with this purchase, but it is understood a building for the display of automobiles is contemplated.

Another Washington University holding acquired by the Burdeau corporation was 96 feet on the south side of Olive street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, improved with a one-story building.

Price Is Held Secret.

The amounts paid for the Washington University holdings were not made public, but they represent a substantial advance over the price formerly quoted for them, according to realty circles.

The Burdeau company also acquired 80x230 feet on the south side of Washington avenue, west of Grand boulevard, known as 3720 Washington boulevard, owned by a client of the Cornet & Zelbig Trust Co. A three-story building occupies the site, which is regarded as available for automobile purposes.

Arsenal Street Sale.

A large sale of the past week, announced by the Mercantile Trust Co., is that about 50 acres on the south side of Arsenal street, from the City Sanitarium grounds to Jamieson avenue. The Missouri Botanical Garden was the former owner and the purchaser is Wayne Smith.

DRY GOODS FIRM BUYS SOUTHWEST CORNER OF FOURTH AND ST. CHARLES

Washington University Association Sells 2629-50 Washington Avenue to George Burdeau Realty Company.

By Berry Moore.

Washington Avenue Purchase.

The George T. Burdeau Realty Co. yesterday purchased 275x135 feet at 2629 to 2650 Washington avenue, from the Washington University Association, represented by Isaac Hedges. Three three-story obsolete residential structures occupy the site, which begins 100 feet west of the Coliseum, at the southwest corner of Washington and Jefferson avenues.

The Burdeau corporation has not disclosed its plans in connection with this purchase, but it is understood a building for the display of automobiles is contemplated.

Another Washington University holding acquired by the Burdeau corporation was 96 feet on the south side of Olive street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, improved with a one-story building.

Price Is Held Secret.

The amounts paid for the Washington University holdings were not made public, but they represent a substantial advance over the price formerly quoted for them, according to realty circles.

The Burdeau company also acquired 80x230 feet on the south side of Washington avenue, west of Grand boulevard, known as 3720 Washington boulevard, owned by a client of the Cornet & Zeibig Trust Co. A three-story building occupies the site, which is regarded as available for automobile purposes.

Arsenal Street Sale.

A large sale of the past week, announced by the Mercantile Trust Co., is that about 50 acres on the south side of Arsenal street, from the City Sanitarium grounds to Lamm avenue. The Missouri Botanical Garden was the former owner and the purchaser is Wayne Adelin.

The tract, which is bisected by Watson road boulevard, 100 feet wide and with parked center space, will be developed as a home area. It will be under the direction of Stedelin, with David P. Leahy as director of sales. Edward M. Thornhill aided in consummating the sale.

The same purchaser also acquired from the Scott estate, through the Mercantile Trust Co., northeast corner of Sixth street and Franklin avenue, including a vacant lot on Sixth street, which will be improved with a store and office building. An outlay of 100,000, including purchase price, is contemplated.

Eugene Christy represented the purchaser.

DROZDA COMPANY BUILDS APARTMENT-STYLE FLAT

The William S. Drozda Realty Co. has just completed the erection of nine apartment-style single flats, which occupy an entire block on the north side of Bates street, between Tennessee and Louisiana avenues, one block east of Grand boulevard. The buildings are set back 25 feet from the building line and have attractive fronts of matt-brick and cut stone, and entrance vestibules laid with tile with marble border. The front inside steps are of oak. There are five good-sized rooms and sun-room on each floor. Double garages with light and water, have been built. Two of these flats have been sold.

The company also reports the sale of 4561 Wichita street, a brick flat, for William C. Burns, to a client; 1806 Bacon street, a brick flat, for A. Lohman to J. McLaughlin; 1948 Kraft street, a brick dwelling, for W. Hyde to F. Lorenz; 317 South Twenty-second street, a six-room brick dwelling for L. Crivelli, to a client.

PARK SAVINGS TRUST CO. SELLS 6-FAMILY APARTMENT

The Park Savings Trust Co., through R. Stockton Jannopoulo, assistant real estate officer, reports the sale of 6600 Enright, a new 6-family apartment just completed by J. C. Jannopoulo and Henry Wagner. The sale was made to George W. Stock, who purchased for investment. This is one of six buildings recently sold in Delmar Garden by Jannopoulo, who reports good demand for apartments in this section.

CATLIN TRACT LOT SOLD FOR $15,000

A lot in the Catlin tract, on the north side of Lindell drive, has been sold by the Mercantile Trust Co., trustee under the will of John Catlin, to a client of Philip Noble. The lot is 100 by 560 feet, and the revenue stamps indicate a purchase price of $15,000.

SPEAKERS ANNOUNCED FOR REAL ESTATE BANQUET

H. R. Ennis, President of National Board, Judge Charles H. Daues and Rev. Harold Reader Included in List of Talkers—Gibson to Be Installed as President.

Speakers at the annual installation banquet of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, to be held at Hotel Chase Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock will include H. R. Ennis, President of the National Association of Real Estate Boards; Judge Charles H. Daues of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, and the Rev. Harold Reader, chaplain of the 138th Regiment.

Addresses will also be made by John W. Gibson, recently elected president of the local organization, and Orman J. McCawley, the retiring president. The business of the banquet will include the installation of Gibson as president and Chester A. Daughtery and Julius F. Feydt Jr. as vice presidents; W. W. Butts, treasurer, and Charles Daly as secretary.

Annual Affairs.

These dinners which have been held annually for many years, have become an institution with the exchange, in that they promote good fellowship among members of the fraternity. Preparations are being made to accommodate 250 or more.

Isaac A. Hedges will serve as toastmaster and the invocation will be made by the Rev. H. L. Reader. H. R. Ennis will speak on behalf of the National Association. Daws' subject will be "Our City;" A. J. McCawley, retiring president, will review accomplishments in the past year, and President Gibson will outline the policy of the exchange for the ensuing year.

The Xenia Quartet of the Xenia Theological Seminary and the Colonial Terrace Orchestra will supply music and entertainment.

The program was arranged by a committee of which Edward M. Thornhill is chairman.

A local committee of which Gerald B. O'Reilly is president, gave a luncheon Wednesday at the American Hotel Annex, at which arrangements were perfected for sending a delegation to the National Convention, to be held June 3, 4, 5 and 6 at Washington, D. C.

The St. Louis delegation to the convention will travel by way of the Big Four and Chesapeake & Ohio railways on a special train which will leave Union Station Sunday, June 1 at 3 p. m.

Entertainments Planned.

The Realtors en route will be entertained at Charleston, W. Va., and at White Sulphur Springs. At Roncerverti, W. Va., the delegates will take autos for a ride through the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The realtors are urged to make their reservation with Kay, secretary of the Real Estate Exchange, as quickly as possible in order that the special train may be assured, as it is necessary to have at least 125 reservations.

The committee is composed of the following: Gerald B. O'Reilly, chairman; J. P. Blake, Robert Burns, E. W. Christy, J. M. Darst, B. F. Dickman, Ray R. Dolan, John J. Dowling, J. M. Ebeling, M. S. Fuqua, C. P. Heath, George Kempland, John C. Kraus, O. J. McCawley, C. M. McDonald, James P. Mannion, M. L. Newberry, Fred Schnell, Ben. J. Selkirk, John J. Reardon, E. M. Thornhill, J. P. Young, David I. Zucker, Robert Lane, Charles Nax, of the Globe-Democrat, A. R. Schollmeyer, Berry Moore, of the Post-Dispatch, James Rohan, Clyde C. Ketcham, Delbert Wenzlick, C. M. Turley, J. S. Feydt, W. J. Holdoway and Joseph W. Hanauer.

The widening of national home ownership, the responsibility of modern city builders, the far-seeing direction of city growth, the industrial development of American cities, the adaption of the business areas of cities to the best uses of commerce, and the ways and means by which the investment resources of the American people can be utilized to bring these ends will be a subject of the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards to be held in Washington June 3rd to 6th. The sessions will be divided into morning meetings of the full delegate body and afternoon meetings of seven subconventions comprising the seven divisions of the association, each a national association of men specializing in some distinct phase of real estate activity.

The meeting is expected to be one of the most important conventions of business men to be held in the United States this year.

Real estate dealing of 5000 years ago, as recorded in the deeds and mortgages of ancient Babylon, will be the background against which the convention will study new developments in business method and foreshadow the real estate situation of tomorrow. The convention is expected to be a national welding current for high professional standards and sound business practices in the whole field of real estate.

A practical "school" of business building will be another side of the general convention plan.

SITE BEING PREPARED FOR NEW CHRISTIAN HOSPITAL

Grading has been begun preparatory to the erection at Carter and Newstead avenues of the new building designed for the Christian Hospital.

A preparatory campaign is under way to complete the fund necessary for its construction this summer. The drive is set for the period from June 2 to 11. A perspective of the building is shown on this page.

SEVERAL SALES REPORTED BY BRINKOP REALTY COMPANY

The Christian Brinkop Real Estate Co. reports the sale of 3514 McKean avenue, a 4 and 5-room modern single flat, for Fannie Rhea to a client; 3513-15 Lemp avenue, a 4-family flat, for Samuel Baker and wife to J. D. and Rose Gross; 4374 Beethoven avenue, a 4-room brick bungalow, for Henry J. Ott and wife to Gus H. Paul; 4331 South Thirty-seventh street, a modern 5-room brick bungalow, for Milton S. Campbell to Otto H. Mueller et al.; 5327 Nottingham avenue, brick residence, for Robert J. Kuhl to George L. Schaffnit; 2929-41 McRee avenue, a 4-family double flat, for Samuel M. Phillips to August R. and Mathilda Poser; 715-17 Carroll street, consisting of two 4-family tenement buildings, for Barbara Fischer to Stefanie Peters; 5028 Louisiana avenue, a modern bungalow flat, for Tillie Hageman to Frank M. and Caroline Mueller; 2150-52 Miami street, a modern 2-room double flat, for Frank M. and Caroline Mueller to D. William D. and Agnes Aufderheide; 1907 La Salle street, 2-family building, for John and Kate Belin to Tomas Gasparovich.

SUNSET TERRACE, DIVIDED INTO LARGE TRACTS, OPENED

The Gus M. Arendes Realty Co. announces the opening of Sunset Terrace on the Denny road two miles south of Kirkwood and adjoining the grounds of the Sunset Hill Country Club. It is divided into one to seven acre tracts and is thickly wooded.

The entire tract is restricted to residences costing not less than $4000.

Sunset Terrace was subdivided by the late George E. Kessler, who was landscape architect of the World's Fair.

MERAMEC HIGHLANDS TO BE PLACED ON SALE

Tract Fronting on River Is Subject to Restrictons That Purchasers Elect.

Meramec Highlands, comprising between 475 and 500 acres, and adjoining the city of Kirkwood, is to be placed on the market by its present owners. The tract is at the terminus of the Meramec Highlands division of the United Railways, and is served by the Frisco and the Missouri Pacific Railways, which have stations on the ground.

The property was originally acquired for a summer resort, but with automobiles and good roads, it is regarded now as available for subdivision for suburban homes. The location is also considertd suitable for a large institution.

The tract has a frontage of more than 1000 feet on the Meramec River. The improvements are a 50-room hotel and 13 frame cottages adjoining, besides 15 smaller dwellings. The cottages are occupied, but the leases provide for cancellation on 60 days' notice in event of sale.

The city of Kirkwood has selected Meramec Highlands property as the location for a pumping and treating station, which is now supplying the Kirkwood and adjoining districts with water pumped from the wells of the sand adjacent to the river banks.

In the expansion of the St. Louis park system, Meramec Highlands would furnish a point of contact for city residents with the region of the Meramec River. The tract, however, being privately owned, is subject to such restrictions as purchasers may elect.

RESIDENCE BEING ERECTED FOR R. C. LONG IN AMES PLACE

The residence being erected for R. C. Long on Melville avenue will be one of the most attractive in Ames place. The building will be of matt brick and hollow tile construction and will contain a large living room, dining room and breakfast room and culinary rooms on the first floor, with the bedrooms on the second floor, with baths and showers. An unusual feature will be the trellised loggia on the front.

The building is being erected by the L. John Moresi Co. and the plans were prepared by Nolte & Nauman, architects.

VERNON LAUX REPORTS SALE OF APARTMENTS

Vernon Laux's sales for the week include two four-family apartments at 4182 and 4186 Delmar boulevard, from S. J. Boatly to a client; also a five-room bungalow at 4048 Meramec street for William F. Mulac to Mrs. A. Mueller; an eight-family flat at 2829-31 Laclede for Ben Berger to a client; a double flat, 4561-63 Kensington avenue, for Henry Cleim to a client, the seller being represented by Wenzlick, and a 25-foot lot, west side of California, for Paul Green to Leo E. Milberger.

California

SMALL farms in winterless California. You can work a small farm with less capital investment; and in California you can work outdoors all the year. The State land Board of California is offering choice 10-acre farms at Ballico, Merced County, small down payment, 36 years' time on balance. Ample water for irrigation; a small one-family farm, cutting out high labor costs, insures success. Equally good opportunity in other sections of the San Joaquin Valley, in the foothills of Southern California, for the man of moderate means who wishes to get a home of his own. California is the richest State per capita in United States of America. Most of this wealth comes from the soil. No winter handicaps. Illustrated folders descriptive of California mailed on request. C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Ry., 946 Railway Exchange, Chicago, Ill. (99)

Clare Sheridan Has Astrologer Read Nation's Fate in Heavens

Woe for the Masses, Trouble With India, Clouds for England, Germany, Russia, Harmony for U. S.

BY CLAIRE SHERIDAN.

LONDON, April 8.—On April 4 the new moon opened up new conditions and destinies for mankind. Astrologers mark the event and prognosticate. But astrologers in our day are few and it is only a handful of people who see and understand.

In the remote past of other civilizations astrology was a well studied art. The Oracle of Delphi was based entirely on information derived from the stars. Today the priests have discarded its power because the materialism of the twentieth century scoffs at spiritual revelation. The stars and the planets continue their journeys and movements, and they unfurl the fates of individuals and of nations, but no one heeds.

I know little about it myself, but I was tremendously impressed by the lecture of a serious student whose purpose was to explain the events of the coming "moon" period. She had no claim to clairvoyance or to any psychic powers. Hers was simply knowledge based on study. She makes no mistakes and she has no hesitation.

"What is written is written."

She reads the heavens as though it were a book. On the first night of every new moon, this student of the stars lectures on the prospects of the month. Had the great English University boat race known a little more, Oxford would certainly not have consented to a date that was adverse to herself. On the day of the race it is apparent Oxford had not a dog's chance; for Mars—the sign of war or misfortune—was in Capricorn, and Capricorn rules the City of Oxford.

Signs of the Heavens and Relation to Masses.

But let us look at things of more wo'd-wide significance:

The planet Uranus is in the sign of Pisces, and Pisces is the sign that rules the masses. Uranus is what the horoscope readers describe as square to the sign of Gemini and Saggitarius; these latter are the signs that rule the classes. A square means difficulties, struggles, misfortunes. It is interesting to note that this star condition is going to remain until 1928, and in that time Uranus will be winning with the masses.

On April 4 Mars became squared to the sun and moon in the sign that rules England and also Germany; also square to Mercury. This points equally to trouble with India, especially as Mars, the sign of war, is square to Saturn from April 6 to 24. Certain death and disease or war clouds will shape their way in England, Germany, Japan and South Africa in April and May.

Leo is the sign that rules France, and Neptune, the "planet of unknown quantity," is in Leo this month. Neptune is also the planet or recorder of the past, and as France played her part 300 odd years ago against England, so is the cycle recurring. Mars, the planet of war, is in Capricorn and square to the sign of Aries, which rules England and Germany; therefore, war clouds threaten, and they seem to be very threatening, indeed, but the war may be industrial or international, and the difference is not easy to define.

But what of Russia, which is ruled by the sign Aquarius? In the secret, or Twelfth House of the last new moon (April 4) the planet Venus was square to Aquarius. This shows secret diplomatic action at work to break down the present Government and to re-establish a traditional system. This secret Twelfth House is ruled by Jupiter, which dominates over religion. It is therefore a religious movement that is back of this secret plan.

Leo, which rules France, also rules the Vatican. Neptune is in Leo, and opposite Aquarius. It is obvious, therefore, that France and Italy (for Italy, read Vatican) are hand in hand against Russia.

Capricorn is the sign that rules politicians of every county and also India, and with Mars in Capricorn the fighting vibrations of India are stirred to their utmost.

One can already see by the newspapers fulfillment of the story of the stars in Europe, and suddenly in South Africa, but India is far more restless and dangerous than any of these. The outlook, however, is as gloomy as possible. Saturn, ruler of Capricorn, has just recently gone into Libra, forming a square, or fighting aspect, which means a fight to the death, if necessary, for Indian ideals.

People Under U. S. Sign Never Grow Old.

The ruling planet of the United States is Mercury, whose metal is quicksilver and its special sign Gemini. To the most modern astrologists Gemini is called the Peter Pan of the Zodiac, for people born under this sign never grow old and nations under Gemini always keep their youth. They like all new things, as children love new toys, and run through them as fast as quicksilver and yet remain the same. Gemini represents air, new inventions, mental power and quick intuitions.

The new moon being in Aries, a sign of fire, gives the United States a spirit of harmony this month with England and Germany, both these being under Arien signs.

This subject is far too deep to be made understandable in one short article to the uninitiated, and I dare not, for fear of boring the reader, go into it more thoroughly. A superficial view may, however, be of interest. This oldest of faiths appears to be better understood today in the United States than in any other country except the East.

The famous Star of Bethlehem was, of course, none other than the great planet Uranus (supposed to be recently discovered), which, being at the time in Virgo, the sign that rules Bethlehem, meant a King was being born and the shepherds read the news.

The world is undoubtedly in a greater mess today than it has been at any time since the stars proclaimed a birth in Bethlehem. Spiritually, politically, industrially, there is an ever-growing chaos, but if one studies the message of the stars, one evolves a strange sense of fatalism, a cold detachment and an almost Islamic submission to the will of God.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card-holders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

"MANUAL OF CULTIVATED PLANTS," by L. H. Bailey. The purpose of the book, says the author, is to provide "a ready means of identification of the species in the usual domestic flora of the continental United States and Canada." The information appears to be technical and well tabulated.

"SHORT HISTORY OF AMERICAN LITERATURE," by W. C. Bronson. A revised and enlarged edition of a text-book. The author says that he has tried to infuse literary interest into the necessarily factual nature of the book and that he has tried to make it of reference value by care as to definiteness and accuracy.

"ART PRINCIPLES IN LITERATURE," by F. P. Donnelly, S. J. A popular book on aesthetics. The author says that his chapters represent his reactions to literature.

"BEETHOVEN'S NINE SYMPHONIES FULLY DESCRIBED AND ANALYZED," by E. Evans. Designed for persons desiring detailed and exhaustive treatment of the symphonies. The author's work, he says, is complete, as every bar in the compositions is accounted for in appended rythmical tables.

"CATULLUS AND HIS INFLUENCE," by K. P. Harrington. One of the volumes in the "Our Debt to Greece and Rome" library. The editor says that the story of the influence of Catullus is as interesting as any novel. The author is a professor of Latin at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.

"NINE HUNDRED SUCCESSFUL RECIPES," by L. T. Silvernail. By the domestic science teacher for the Southwestern Milling Co.

AGREEMENT WITH SPAIN ON U. S. IMPORTS IS RENEWED

By OLIVER FOX.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1924.

MADRID, SPAIN, May 2.—The provisional regime governing trade between the United States and Spain, pending the negotiation of a definite commercial agreement, has been renewed for one year, dating from May 4. The renewal for such a long period instead of the usual quarterly prolongation may be interpreted as proof of the excellent disposition of the Spanish Government toward the American nation, whose representative, Ambassador Moore, has been in close touch with Gen. Primo Rivera since the advent of the directorate.

Until the treaty is negotiated, the bulk of the American goods will pay the ordinary duties, though some articles, like cotton, enjoy favored nation treatment. According to the latest statistics, the export trade of the United States with Spain is doing well, having increased 15 per cent in 1923. The sale of motor cars is increasing rapidly.

The directorate recently announced a commission to study a wide scale plan of economic development including new industries, railway construction and water power, entailing the expenditure of 2,000,000,000 pesetas, for which American capital is offered. Representatives of a number of well-known New York financial houses are in Madrid in this connection.

DAUGHTER BORN TO WOMAN ACCUSED OF MARRIAGE FRAUD

Certificate Shows Wife of 17-Year-Old Husband Has Become Mother.

By the Associated Press.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., May 3.—A certificate filed today with Town Clerk Gilbert shows that a daughter was born recently in Baldwin to Mrs. Susan Simpson Tucker, 47 years old, of Jersey City, and her 17-year-old husband, Burton S. Tucker, of South Essex, Mass., whose marriage has been the object of inquiry in the New Jersey courts.

The certificate revealed that Peggy, 7 years old, Mrs. Tucker's daughter by her first husband, had died. It was on the contention that a change of climate was necessary for Peggy that the Tuckers obtained a postponement until fall of their trial on a charge of fraud in connection with their marriage.

TURKS RAZING ARMENIAN VILLAGES IN NORTH SYRIA

Guerilla Bands Are Active Again, Say Refugees—Massacres Are Feared.

By the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, May 3.—More than a dozen villages along the northern border of Syria have been destroyed, and the Armenian population of the district is terrorized, following initiation of guerilla warfare by Turkish bands, according to Armenian refugees who are arriving daily in Palestine and Mesopotamia.

A repetition of former Armenian massacres is feared.

RESTRAINING ORDER GRANTED TO STOP CONTEMPT ACTION

Judge English Grants Petition for Attorneys in Accounting Case.

A temporary restraining order preventing County Judge Ward of Franklin County, Ill., from instituting contempt of court proceedings against John C. Hanchett of Janesville, Wis., and his attorneys of Chicago and Centralia, Ill., was issued yesterday by Federal Judge English of East St. Louis. The order is returnable May 12.

The petition for the restraining order was filed yesterday by J. Smith of the Centralia law firm of Noleman, Smith & Dallstream. It alleges that Judge Ward has threatened to start contempt proceedings against Hanchett, Smith and his associates as a result of a suit for accounting filed last month in Federal Court by attorneys for Hanchett against the City of Benton, Ill., and city and county officials, including Judge Ward.

The petition for an accounting charges the City of Benton with failure to pay Hanchett the second installment on bonds issued in connection with a Benton sewer project. It alleges that Judge Ward has refused to approve the certificate of final completion of the sewer project and charges the city with having diverted the money for other uses.

The petition for an injunction states that Judge Ward threatened to cite Hanchett and his lawyers for contempt of court in a letter received last week by the Centralia law firm. A purported copy of the letter, attached to yesterday's petition quotes Judge Ward as saying, "I believe the things set forth in the petition for an accounting are in contempt of my court, and are libelous and slanderous." Judge Ward asked in the letter, the petition avers, that a member of the law firm visit him Monday, May 5, "before I take steps as a court or individual against the firm."

DEMOCRAT CHOSEN CHAIRMAN OF ST. CLAIR COUNTY BOARD

Patrick Sullivan of East St. Louis Elected Over Peter Gaerdner, Incumbent, 37 to 21.

Party politics crowded into the theoretically nonpartisan St. Clair County Board of Supervisors at its organization meeting at Belleville yesterday. By a vote of 37 to 21, Patrick Sullivan (Dem.) of East St. Louis, defeated Peter Gaerdner (Rep.) for the office of chairman. Gaerdner was seeking re-election.

Sullivan admitted that politics entered the election, but declared he would try to keep politics out hereafter. He will work for good roads and a 25-cent road maintenance tax, he said.

The board made the following appointments: Dr. E. P. Stiehl, County Physician at Belleville; William Stacey, superintendent, St. Clair County Home; Ivan J. Grieves, county mine inspector; Fred Meyer, overseer of the poor at Belleville; Dr. L. A. Ryan, county physician at East St. Louis; Dr. N. M. Sykes and Dr. Earl Williams, assistant county physicians.

ONE KILLED, 26 HURT WHEN TROLLEYS CRASH

Interurban Cars Collide Head On and Burst Into Flames Near Lowell, Kan.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., May 3.—One person was fatally injured and 26 others hurt, some seriously, when two interurban cars on the Southwest Missouri Railroad collided head-on on a curve near Lowell, Kan., 12 miles west of here, at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Mrs. W. E. Wyatt of Baxter Springs died after being removed from the scene of the wreck. Others seriously injured were:

Charles Crump, motorman, Webb City.

Maggie Brooks, negress, Baxter Springs, Kan.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Buck, Joplin.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Casteel, Joplin.

Claude Casteel, Picher.

Sixty-eight persons were on the west-bound car and 12 on the east-bound. Frank Brooks, motorman on the east-bound car, said he had applied his brakes and the car was running slowly when the collision occurred. The west-bound car was split wide open. Fire broke out and those who escaped injury dragged the injured to safety. The Baxter Springs fire department was called and extinguished the blaze.

The cause of the wreck is believed to have been a misunderstanding of orders.

MORGENTHAU OPPOSES "RESPECTABLE MEDIOCRITY"

Nomination of Smith Might Show "School of Life" Can Produce a President, He Says.

(Copyright, 1924.)

LONDON, May 3.—Henry Morgenthau will return to New York next week and get busy in the presidential campaign, he said today. He reflected optimism regarding the Democratic outlook.

"It seems to me we ought to be through with respectable mediocrity," was the way he began a discussion of the presidential possibilities. "No great business firm would choose for its president a man who had nothing more than good character to recommend him. The time has come to return to earnest leadership and vision, not only in national but also in international affairs."

"If Smith is nominated"—and Morgenthau seemed to think the situation might favor him—"it may be a test of whether the school of life as opposed to university training may not produce a man of presidential caliber," he said, alluding to the Governor's early days as a newsboy.

As to whether or not he favored Smith or one of the other Democratic possibilities, Morgenthau declined to reveal.

Swedish-Soviet Negotiations.

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, May 3.—Parliament today adopted the Cabinet's proposal for negotiations of a commercial agreement with Soviet Russia.

COTTON BELT RAILWAY WILL MOVE ITS OFFICES

Negotiations have been completed through Isaac T. Cook & Co., Inc., whereby the St. Louis-Southwestern Railway Co. will remove its general office from the Railway Exchange Building to the Pontiac Building at Seventh and Market streets, about July 1. The railway company has taken a long lease of a large part of the building.

This building was erected in 1902 by the Pontiac Realty Co., of which G. A. Buder is president, for the general offices of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, which occupied it until 1913, when they were removed to the Railway Exchange Building. The Missouri Pacific's lease for this building has recently expired.

Representatives of the Cook company, which has the management of the property, state that the building will be operated in a high-class manner.

SAMUEL SILVERBLATT OPENS NEW REAL ESTATE OFFICE

Samuel Silverblatt, formerly with the Frank L. Dittmeier Real Estate Co., has opened a real estate office at 401 International Life Building. Silverblatt has had broad experience in the real estate field and is regarded as well qualified to conduct a general real estate and financial business.

P. F. Brune and Robert Verschleiser will be associated with him as salesmen.

FEDERER REALTY COMPANY INCREASES SALES FORCE

The Federer Realty Co. has added to its sales force James E. Zipf, well-known in South St. Louis, where he was advertising and salesmanager of the Lefler Medicine Co. Zipf will specialize in improved property in South St. Louis.

The company also reports that C. I. Albach, who has been for 40 years in the motor sales industry, has joined their force, and will specialize in subdivision property in Holly Hills. Albach, for the past two years, has been with the Mack Truck Co., of St. Louis.

M'DONALD FIRM REPORTS SALE ON JEFFERSON AVE.

The C. M. McDonald Real Estate Co. reports the sale of 1126 North Jefferson avenue for Joseph Stuble to George Blount.

Also a vacant lot on the west side of Cottage avenue, east of Taylor avenue, for Joseph Sheff to Joseph Bowman.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered, Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

S. A. J.—Repeat your question, stating your age.

DAILY P.-D. READER.—We know of nothing that will remedy the condition as stated.

EDDIE.—Syphilis can be diagnosed by clinical symptoms, blood examination and dark field examination of the fluid from an initial lesion, or chancre.

B. P.—The only safe method of reduction is diet and exercise. Send stamped, addressed envelope requesting obesity diet list. Exercise regularly and persistently. Take only necessary sleep.

A DAILY READER.—Corpus luteum is evidently referred to. It is generally used in disorders of the generative organs, in women. We would not think it of any use in difficult confinements.

INQUIRER.—The formula for aquarium cement follows: Litharge, 3 ounces; fine white sand, 3 ounces; plaster of Paris, 3 ounces; rosin, in fine powder, 1 ounce; linseed oil, enough; drier, enough. Mix the first three ingredients, add sufficient linseed oil to make a homogeneous paste, and then add a small quantity of drier. This should stand a few hours before it is used. It is said that glass fitted into iron with this cement will break before it will come loose.

L. W. M.—The first definite provision for a navy establishment in the United States was made by the Congress of Oct. 13, 1775, which authorized the building of one vessel of 10 guns and another of 14 guns to be equipped as national cruisers. At the same time a law was passed establishing a marine committee consisting of John Adams (later replaced by Christopher Gadsden), John Langdon and Silas Deane. John Barry was appointed to command the brig Lexington in 1776, and was the senior officer in the navy, the first ship ever taken by a commissioned officer of the United States Navy. He was first senior officer, with rank of Commodore, after the reorganization of the Navy in 1794. John Barry was born in Ireland. John Paul Jones was a famous naval officer in the American Revolution. He served on a commission for the purchase of vessels for the new navy, and was the first officer commissioned senior first lieutenant of the flagship Alfred. He was born in Kirkcudbrightshire, Scotland.

Truth in Advertising

The value of advertising is a direct ratio to the amount of READER-CONFIDENCE. It possesses, therefore, a value entirely founded on its quality of TRUTH.

The National Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers and the Better Business Bureau and the Advertising Club of St. Louis, in all of which The Post-Dispatch holds membership, aim to eliminate fraudulent and misleading advertising. This newspaper will appreciate any attention called to any advertisement which does not conform to the highest standards of honesty. (c8)

BUY VALUE—NOT PRICE

A Used Car Buyer should know what has been done with the car before buying. Our Used Cars are rebuilt (not merely tightened or hastily repaired), re-upholstered when necessary, repainted, battery overhauled, everything done in our own shops.

A trip through our rebuilding plant, which is on the 3d floor, WILL CONVINCE YOU that OUR cars are AS REPRESENTED. Make your inspection tour this week—special guides will explain HOW AND WHY we do it. (Bring this ad with you on inspection tour.) You will save on operating cost if you buy Weber Rebuilt Cars. Our stock is large—33 different makes—various styles—liberal terms. Buy now and get a full season service.

BANG!

Down Go Prices!

We have marked down every used car in our show room, although our prices before this cut were lower than the same grade of cars could usually be bought. We have beautiful Seven-Passenger Peerless Touring cars in keeping with the surroundings of the better homes than can be bought for one-fourth of their original price.

Following is a partial list of the cars that will be on display at the beginning of this sale:

PEERLESS—Current model; 7-passenger touring; special paint. Will serve as a new car.

PEERLESS—Model 56; 7-passenger touring. Will give long and uninterrupted service. Wonderful condition throughout.

HUDSON COUPE—4-passenger; refinished; new tires; seat covers; front and rear Biflex bumpers and many other extras. Exceptional value.

PIERCE ARROW—7-passenger sedan; model 48; splendid condition throughout; mechanically perfect; upholstery like new.

HUDSON LIMOUSINE—Will make wonderful service car; six good tires; paint like new; upholstery shows no wear. Priced extremely low.

REO—1920; 5-passenger touring; splendid condition; six cylinders.

CADILLAC ROADSTER—Model 53, 5 new tires; new battery; seat covers; exceptional value.

DURANT SEDAN—Driven 2600 miles; practically new; car can be purchased at almost one-half original price.

We also have many others that are unusual value that will be offered at a big reduction during the sale. Terms or trade.

Most sensational and sacrificing sale of the year. If you are thinking of buying a cheap new automobile, see these high-grade cars before making a purchase.

USED CAR WEEK

A SQUARE DEAL AND YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

LISTEN, FOLKS!

This is Used Car Week. The Post-Dispatch is offering a loving cup to the dealer who sells the most cars this week. Of course everybody knows Yahlem won the cup last year. We knocked 'em dead last year---52 cars sold in 5 days, prices did it. Watch us this week. We'll bet a steamboat to a can of sardines that we'll win it again. Read our prices in the classified columns and you'll say so yourself.

The Spring Rush for Bobbed Hair

Perhaps the tight-fitting, new millinery has helped, but the barber shops begin to look like beauty parlors—Do you prefer the Sir Galahad, the angel, the crescent moon, the garconette, the Broadway or the tailor-made? — Other names include the Joan of Arc and the old-fashioned girl—A bob isn't just a bob any more, there are 12 standard cuts sponsored by the American Hairdressers' Association :: ::

By ELSIE McCORMICK.

YOU have decided, let us suppose, to have your hair bobbed.

Several things contributed to your decision, the chief one being the lack of cranium space in the Easter hats. A spring bonnet set on top of an unclipped coiffure fits about as well as a fruit basket carried on the head of a peasant woman or the kind of millinery favored by Queen Mary.

She who would wear the latest tack-head styles must dispense either with her brains or her hair. There isn't room inside for both.

This type of cut is attractive only when the nose and the ends of the hair curve in the same direction.

It is thus small wonder that an average of 6000 women a day in Manhattan and Brooklyn have gone under the tonsorial guillotine since the spring chapeaux appeared.

Having made your resolution, after several days of mental thunder and lightning, you follow the direction of a still, small voice to the establishment where the mutilation is to take place. Twice you walk around the block, and then, shutting your eyes, you plunge through the door. By the time you open them again you are sitting before a mirror with a generous bib tied under your chin and a Gallic-looking gentleman is probing dexterously for hairpins.

Around you creeps the typical beauty parlor smell, composed of scented creams, escaping gas and a faint suggestion of burning hair. From booths near by come the click of the marcel iron, the whir of the gas drier, the soft voice of a lady manicure describing how he tried to get fresh and she gave him the air, and the gentle slap of fingers patting astringent cream into a duplex chin.

Everything is going on as usual, just as if the world wasn't coming to an end within the next five minutes.

For an instant of panic you almost decide to back down by ordering a mere shampoo. Then, after swallowing hard, you make the plunge.

"I want a bob," you whisper, hoarsely.

"Yes, madame," says the Gallic gentleman, fishing out a hairpin from the back of your net. "What kind of a bob—Sir Galahad, angel, crescent moon, garconette, Broadway or flapper?"

"I—I just want a bob," you murmur.

"But madame must choose," says the hairdresser, reaching in a surgical-looking case for a pair of shining scissors. "Perhaps madame would like a nice tailor-made bob. It is now very popular. Or, since madame has a delicately pointed chin, she would like the valentine bob, parted in the center and curled up on each side. It accentuates what is known as the heart-shaped or pansy face. See, here is a chart."

Under your eyes he spreads a set of 12 drawings, each one showing a charming young person with a different hair cut. You decide offhand that the angel looks best in a stained-glass window, that the crescent moon was made only for people with piquant noses, and that the straight-lined Sir Galahad is the unkindest cut of all. But between the garconette, which is shingled in the rear, and the tailor-made, which is marcelled down to the turned-in ends, or the Broadway, which is water-waved to follow the shape of the head, you find your choosing faculties temporarily paralyzed. The hair surgeon, however, is not annoyed by your indecision. He merely leans out the curtains and calls down the hall:

"Marie," he commands, "bring the tailor-made, the garconette and the Broadway."

If your face is modeled after the harvest moon, run and hide from the hairdresser who would create for you a very bouffant and fuzzy bob.

A few seconds later Marie walks in, looking like an Indian chief after a particularly successful scalping foray. She lays down the three wigs, each representing a different bob, and the Gallic gentleman lets you try them on.

Thus does the up-to-date hair amputator extract from bobbing at least half the risk and hazard. You choose the style you like, shudder once at the scissors, and close your eyes. Half an hour later you go out, feeling strangely naked around the head, but able to fit into a spring hat without having your ears clipped.

The art of feminine hair cutting has traveled far from the days when a bob was a bob and otherwise anonymous. Every little shingle has a title all its own, and some of them have as many aliases as an expert forger. Thus the Sir Galahad is known to some professional shearers as the Joan of Arc; the garconette as the Ina Claire, and the angel as the old-fashioned girl. There are 12 standard cuts sponsored by the American Hairdressers' Association, and these have been added to by various knights of the scissors with imaginations of their own.

A modified shingle, favored largely by older women, goes by the sub-rosa name of the Steinach bob.

In choosing your spring hair cut it is first necessary to take a careful census of your features. If some unkind chromosomes caused you to inherit a nose cut too long or a head planed off in the rear, avoid a close shingle as you would cotton stockings in a bathing beauty contest. If your nose is not tip-tilted like the petal of a flower, desist from ordering the crescent moon or boyish bob.

You choose the style you like, shudder once at the scissors, and close your eyes.

This type of cut is attractive only when the nose and the ends of the hair curve in the same direction; otherwise it produces a geometrical conflict most painful to students of mathematics.

If some worthy peasant ancestor willed to you his pair of high cheekbones, don't emphasize them by having your hair cut too far north of your neck. If your face is modeled after the harvest moon, run and hide from the hairdresser who would create for you a very bouffant and fuzzy bob. And unless you have features as regular as a Wednesday night prayer meeting, gather up your draperies and flee light-footedly away from the Sir Galahad, the Joan of Arc or the straight-line horizontal bob.

"It was the straight-line effect that killed the bob in Paris," says a well-informed barber.

"It was the straight-line effect that killed the bob in Paris," declared Charles of the Ritz-Carlton, pausing with a wicked curling iron in one hand. "Few ladies—or, very few—are pretty enough to wear it, and yet in Paris everybody tried. Soon editors were raging in the press that the Parisienne was growing ugly, for she looks always as if she had just come in out of the rain. So, voila! All the types of bob disappeared, although it was the straight-line only that was to blame. Unless one has a medal from a beauty contest, it is better to have the bob marcelled or permanently waved."

When grandma is missing from her rocking chair these days she is not down at the dry goods store buying more wool for little Alfred's sweater. The family is much more likely to find her in a curtained beauty parlor having her roof reshingled.

Middle-aged husbands, according to an observer behind the scissors, usually throw three or four fits in rapid succession when their wives come home without their hair.

The Real Tragedy of Eleanora Duse's Life

The great Italian tragedienne never appeared in a written play so poignantly sorrowful as that in which she and Gabrielle d'Annunzio enacted, off stage, the two chief roles—Shortly before her death she broke her silence of 25 years and admitted she still loved the poet who cast her off when she no longer was young and who was denounced by others as a cad because he turned their romance into a book for the sake of money to squander—"There is regret for the parting," said Duse, "but no regret for the love" :: :: :: :: :: ::

The late Eleanora Duse
—Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

SHORTLY before she died of influenza in Pittsburg last month, Eleanora Duse broke a silence of nearly a quarter of a century and told how she felt toward Gabrielle d'Annunzio. The great Italian actress was in excellent health when she talked to a reporter. Her statement was in no wise of the "death-bed confession" character. She had no premonition of the approaching end. The first week in May she was to close her brilliant American tour with two farewell appearances at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. Though far along in her sixty-fifth year, Duse seemed almost to have recaptured her youth.

In Italy, D'Annunzio had been made a Prince when the woman who had loved him and had been cast off by him after she turned 40 decided at last to reveal, here in America, her undying devotion to the bizarre poet who was four years younger than herself. During her long career on the stage and her retirement of 20 years, Duse had maintained an extraordinary reserve. She had been shy of newspaper interviewers. Yet, to the surprise of all who knew her, she talked rather freely to a reporter. She knew, it seemed, that she was going to be questioned about D'Annunzio, so she anticipated the query.

"I know your thought—D'Annunzio!" she said, with an expression of resignation on her white, sensitive face.

Then she told of her feeling in this late day toward the poet with whom, a quarter of a century ago, she passed through a strange, disastrous romance that caught the fancy of the world. He had inflicted wrongs upon her that had set even easy, tolerant Italy against him. She had endured suffering because of him that had brought her unenvied renown as a lady of sorrows.

"I have not spoken for these long years," she said. "I have kept my sorrow hid. But I never grew bitter toward D'Annunzio and I have no bitterness toward him now. Love is worth its price. Our love was magnificent, superb. There is regret for the parting, but no regret for the love. It is over, but the memories are left. Gabrielle D'Annunzio and I are still united in the bonds of the spirit. To me he is still the sublime master, the flame of talent, the priest of beauty."

That was how she regarded him in those dim other days when the actress and the poet walked in the light of mutual entrancement, and there was in the woman's unbreakable admiration the proud homage of the creator toward the thing created. For it was the enamored and worshipful Duse who carried D'Annunzio to the greatest height of his glory.

She was in her mature years, at the height of her reputation. For 20 years she had been famous. Only Sarah Bernhardt stood to dispute with her the crown of supreme eminence in the theater.

She met D'Annunzio, who was a few years younger than she. Since his youth he had been a poet and novelist of precocious reputation in Italy, but still had his full powers to mature and international renown to gain. Duse saw in him one of the first literary masters of contemporary years, and with an impulse of impassioned devotion she gave herself to the task of raising him to a splendid summit.

He had not written plays. She turned his mind to dramatic writing. Under her influence he produced some of his best pieces for the stage: "La Gioconda," "Citta Morta," "Francesca da Rimini." Duse had her own company of players. She staged his dramatic works with lavish beauty and with every resource that could make them successful. She acted in them, gave them the aid of her great prestige and the choicest fire of her talent, carried them across the world to glorify the name of D'Annunzio. They were difficult and abstruse works. They achieved great artistic success, but gained no favor with the public. Duse lost much money on them, but continued to present them with a tireless persistence. She backed them with the large fortune she had earned. Other pieces of her repertoire she gave only because they drew the public and brought in the money which she could devote to the works of her lover. Thus, as the outcome of her own infatuate affection, she saw her poet's genius grow to new wonders of esthetic creation and his name rise aloft all over the world.

Latest picture of Gabrielle d'Annunzio.

D'Annunzio seems to have reciprocated her love, but early in their romance he began to inflict upon her those strokes of cruelty which afterward rais the talk of the world. His conduct has been garded as a hideous crime, as a vicious diaboli Yet it is possible to see in him the working impuls and motives common to men much less flamboyan than he.

He was persistently unfaithful to Duse. Wom who have contacted with him described him extraordinarily fascinating to the fair. He is ug enough, but he is possessed of a singular boldnes arrogance and sensuality. His ideas are astonish ing and profound, and he is gifted with that flam and brilliance of speech that have made his book classical examples of the wonder of beautiful phras and flaunting imagery. Duse found him not a ma to renounce with heroic abnegation the fruits o these advantages. She accepted his straying ga lantries with unfailing meekness and devotion, and he took no care to conceal his lapses from her, bu rather paraded them before her, as one who is very vain and desires to reduce a woman to an extremity of abjection.

D'Annunzio was always prodigiously extravagant with money. Wild expendi tures on ancient villas and rare art works kept him constantly harassed with debt. He spent Duse's accumulated money with abandon and ex hausted it.

It is here that we encounter the famous episode of "Il Fu oco," and at the bottom this much-debated affair find the common human m tivation—an urgent need of cash.

"Duse always loved to sit near the floor, on a hassock or cushion. She watched d'Annunzio's every move with sad but unreproachful eyes, with a Madonna-like expression on her face."

A Thrilling Climb to Visit

An unusual narrative of adventure, rendered more interesting by the fact that California condors are nearly extinct—A youthful hunter found the place in lonely canyon where a pair of them were living—Then, after the birds had departed in the morning, he risked his neck in climbing to the mother's nest-cave—And while he still stood on the perilous ledge, the whole condor family returned!—Less than half a century ago these great birds were comparatively common on the Pacific coast, but recent official survey shows that only about 50 of them now survive ::

"I heard a sound like that of some great waterfall, and the female condor alighted on the rock ledge I had just left."

By H. H. DUNN.

THIS decade will see the extinction of the largest bird that flies. Before 1930, in the opinion of ornithologists, the strangest winged inhabitant of the New World will have gone to join the great auk, the dodo, the Labrador duck and the manatee.

This bird is the California condor, larger than the famed condor of the Andes, and a direct descendant of the giant condor of prehistoric days, who, with his 18-foot wingspread, was co-existent with the saber-toothed tiger and the giant sloth in North America. Less than 50 years ago, the California condor was comparatively common all along the Pacific coast, from the mouth of the Columbia River to the southern extremity of the Mexican territory of Lower California.

Today, the State Fish and Game Commission of California, which has just completed a survey of the avian and mammalian life of that section of the Pacific coast, finds that there are only about 50 California condors on the western rim of the United States, and that they are hidden in the almost inaccessible canyons of the mountains of Central and Southern California.

In Lower California, there are a few more than this, but nowhere is the giant bird living in numbers comparable with those which circled the blue skies of the Californian coast prior to 1880.

With a weight of 25 to 35 pounds, and a wingspread from 9 to 12 feet, the California condor exceeds in weight and size any known specimens of the South American condor, supposed to be the original of the famous and fabled roc. Living entirely by scavenging, a benefactor instead of a destroyer, the California condor fell a victim first to the white hunters who came to California from 1849 to 1879; then to poison which had been put in the carcasses of dead cattle by the stock raisers in an effort to eliminate wolves, coyotes, mountain lions and bears; and of late years to insatiable collectors from museums and private individuals.

Added to this is the fact that the female condor lays only one egg a year, and that two years are required for the young bird to develop to adult size, each parent pair usually being accompanied by a yearling bird, their nestling of the year before.

Today, the California condor is rigidly protected, but it seems that the protection has come too late, and the finding of a pair of California condors located in any one place, or the discovery of the nest of a pair of the huge birds, is sufficient to draw to that place at once all the ornithologists on the Pacific coast.

Thus, the finding of the nest of one of these faithful pairs—for they remain mated for life—is of interest to scientists and to laymen as well all over the world. One was found this spring by a young hunter, E. A. Brown of Orange County, Cal., and his story of the discovery, with his description of this rarest of all American birds and its nesting habits, as told to the writer, is as follows:

"While deer hunting in the higher mountains of Orange County in the autumn and winter of 1923-24," said Brown, "I saw a pair of very large black birds, nearly twice the size of the common turkey buzzard, feeding on a dead cow. I watched them for some time, and when one rose in flight, noted the patch of white feathers under each wing, and knew them to be condors. Thereafter, I saw the same pair several times during the winter, either flying at great heights or perched on dead pine trees about half way up a narrow canyon.

"This spring, after the deer-hunting season had closed, I determined to try to find the nest of the big birds, and for several days followed up this canyon until the going became too steep, without seeing either one of the condors. Then, one afternoon, as I was coming down the canyon, both passed me going up the gorge, and flying comparatively low. I went home, and the following morning, equipped with a blanket, frying pan, coffee pot and coffee, and a .22-caliber rifle to shoot squirrels and rabbits for food, I started up the mountain wall, around to the head of this canyon.

"It was not until the following forenoon that I arrived at the summit of the high cliffs which mark the upper end of this gorge, and I was so tired that I lay down on my blanket under a clump of bushes and slept until mid-afternoon. When I awoke I shot a pair of squirrels, prepared lunch and, after eating, went over to the semi-circular rim of rock at the head of the canyon, and lay down on my stomach beneath some stunted pines, where I had a good view of the canyon some five or six miles.

"About 5 o'clock two black specks appeared in the air far down the gorge, traveling rapidly and in a straight line, apparently, for my place on the top of the cliff. When they reached a point about half a mile below me, however, they swerved suddenly and both alighted on a high pinnacle of rock. One remained there only a few minutes, and then glided off in a long dive down the side of the pinnacle, being almost immediately lost to sight in the shadows of the late afternoon.

"The other remained on the high natural pyramid, settled itself down, with its great beak on its breast and its long wings trailing on the stone, evidently prepared to spend the night there. Through my glasses I could see the bare head, the huge, dirty-yellow beak and the ruff of feathers around the neck. I had at least found the resting place of my condors. The next question was to get down into the canyon and become more closely acquainted with the big birds.

"The following morning I made my way down the side of the gorge opposite to the rock pinnacle, and made a more permanent camp on the side of the canyon, about even with and across the gulch from the roosting place of the condors. By the time I arrived there, it was noon, and the birds had long since left for their feeding grounds in the valley below. I found on scanning the rock pinnacle closely that there were a number of small caves, or holes, eroded in its face, but there was nothing to indicate which one of these, if any, was occupied by the female condor and her egg.

"While I lay watching the face of the natural pyramid that afternoon, however, what was my surprise to see a bird somewhat smaller than either of the other two, but undoubtedly a condor, come slowly out of one of the higher caves and launch itself into the air. This was evidently the last year's young of the pair I had seen, which possibly had fed heavily two or three days before and was just emerging from its gorged sleep.

"I paid no more attention to the lone young bird, but resumed my watch for the parent pair, and, about 5 o'clock, they returned, as they had the day before, only, this time, they were accompanied by the youngster. One of the older birds, apparently the male, and the yearling, settled down on the crest of the pinnacle, evidently to roost for the night, but the other adult, the female, remained with them only a moment or two, soon dropping in a long, graceful dive, down the side of the rock to a ledge rather less than half way up from the base. Alighting there, she surveyed the world for a few minutes, turning her head from side to side, looking up and down the canyon, and also directly up into the air.

"Then, slowly, and almost daintily, certainly with a great deal of dignity, she walked into the small cave at the back of the ledge. The entrance to this cave was only slightly larger than the body of the bird, and I imagined that I could hear her great, stiff wing feather quills rattling on the rock as she passed in. There was what seemed to be a sheer drop of at least 100 feet from this cave and ledge to the bottom of the canyon, and more than that distance of equally steep rock wall stretching above to the summit of the pinnacle of rock.

"Now that I had found the nest, I did not know how to reach it, but I was determined to see the egg, the nestling, or whatever that little cave contained.

The California condor is well protected by law, which provides for both fine and imprisonment for the killing of one of these birds, or the taking of their eggs or young. I had no intention of harming them, but I have always been a student of birds at close range, and I wanted to add the condor to my list of personal acquaintances among the California flyers.

"The following morning I was up at daybreak and had the pleasure of seeing all three birds gliding away down the canyon, shortly after the sun had cleared the mists out of the gorge. It was then, I should say, about 7 o'clock, and, though I had eaten a hearty breakfast at 6, I was again hungry, with nothing but some coffee and flour as prospects for lunch.

"There was, however, no time to hunt, if I wanted to visit that nest and get away before the parent birds returned. So, rolling my camp duffle, including the rifle, in my blankets, and hanging the bundle to a slender limb on a pine tree, so that the pack rats and the mountain jays would not get into it, I made my way down the side of the gorge, across the little stream in the bottom, and then stopped to take stock of my surroundings.

"The face of the pinnacle, a granite monolith, rose straight out of the creek bed, without a crevice for at least 60 feet. Then there was a long, diagonal crack, and then perfectly smooth surface until the ledge back of which lay the condors' nest-cave was reached. Back of the pinnacle, on the opposite side of the canyon from my camp, a narrow, rock-walled gully, some 40 to 50 feet deep, led in a winding gash back into the mountain.

"This seemed to be the only hope to reach the level of the nest, so I entered it. Aside from nearly stepping on a large yellow rattlesnake, which, when killed, proved to be 40 inches long and to have 14 rattles, I made my way without difficulty, up this side canyon for at least a quarter of a mile, where I found a crevice running in toward the pinnacle. Up this I clambered, tumbling back half a dozen times, and eventually having to take off my shoes and puttees.

"At length, at 11 o'clock, I reached a ledge, running around the mountain wall, and found myself looking down on the side of the pinnacle, almost at a level with the small ledge on which the female condor alighted to enter her nest-cave.

"A second glance showed me that at least 50 feet of air separated me from this ledge, however, and that, though the pinnacle itself was bound to the mountain side by a solid causeway of stone, there was no visible connection between that causeway and the ledge back of which lay the nest. Determined to try everything before returning to my home for ropes, I walked as best I could in my now bare feet, across to the natural dyke running out to the rock pyramid.

"Once on this, I found that what had seemed a sheer wall was broken, as a matter of fact, by a narrow lip of stone, backed by a shallow crevice, running down to and terminating in the ledge in front of the nest. The distance from the causeway by this crevice to the nest-cave was not less than 40 feet. I tried to make it standing up, with my face and body pressed against the side of the pinnacle, but soon found that I swayed so much as to be in danger of falling to the bottom of the canyon, at least 100 feet.

"At last, after three trials at this stand-up-and-walk method, I put my hands in the crevice, lowered my body down against the side of the natural pyramid, and so, working hand over hand, my body suspended below, I made my way to the ledge in front of the nest.

"Up to this time I had not given thought to how I was going to get back, but when I sat down for a breathing space on the condor's perch, and looked at my watch, I found that it was exactly 4 o'clock. I had been nearly 10 hours without anything to eat since breakfast, though I had had water from the full creeks and little springs in the rocks, and I had traveled, in a straight line, less than 500 feet from my camp across the gorge.

"Then I realized that the condor family would soon be returning, and if I wanted to see what was in the nest, I would do well to hurry. By getting on my knees, I was able to bend my head low enough to see into the condor cave, but then I found, as I should have known before, that I could not get my head, much less my body, into the opening.

"Striking a match, and cupping the flame from my eyes, however, I could see about three feet inside the little cave, and there, on the bare floor of the tiny cavern, lay an egg, somewhat larger than that of a goose, apparently white in color, and without any attempt at nest-building. By putting one bare foot into the cave I was able to pull the egg to the entrance, and to see that it was about four inches long, but two and one-half inches in its greatest diameter, and that it was greenish-white in color, with no markings of any kind.

"Evidently it was quite fresh, and when I thought that museums of this and other countries are quite willing to pay any sum up to $1000 for one of these eggs, there was some temptation not to return it to the nest. But at length I did so, first writing my name and the date on the shell, with a bit of lead-pencil, thinking that this might deter any other person who happened to find the nest-cave from robbing it of its treasure.

"As I turned away from the cave, Mr. and Mrs. Condor and their young son, or daughter, arrived. Apparently they had not seen me, for they came round the bend in the canyon with long, sweeping strokes of their wings, flying just above the rim of the gorge, and raised themselves, as they had done before, to their perches on the top of the rock pinnacle. I heard the beats of their great wings, and almost felt the wind of their passage in my face.

"Instantly I dropped full length down the side of the rock wall, clutching the crevice by which I had come in my fingers, and starting to work my way back to the causeway. I had made about 10 feet of the distance, when I heard a sound like that of some great waterfall, and the female condor alighted on the rock ledge I had just left.

"I felt that something was going to happen, with me on the receiving end, and likewise in no position to put up a fight, with both hands holding my body over a hundred-foot drop. But the condor paid not the slightest attention to me. She turned toward the nest entrance, paused an instant, and, as if lifted by tremendous steel springs, leaped into the air, beat her great wings, and literally lifted herself into the sky.

"Almost immediately, her mate and the younger bird joined her, and, swinging in great circles, they rose until they were mere specks in the clear blue of the afternoon heavens. You may well believe me when I say that I made my hands do their duty in getting me over that 40 feet of cliff to the causeway, and back on the little plateau on the mountain side.

"There I lay down, exhausted. Young and strong as I am, toughened by life in the mountains, I could not at that moment have fought off a turtle dove, let alone a 30-pound condor, had either bird attacked me.

"In a few minutes I heard the same sound of falling water I had heard before, and looked around just in time to see one of the condors, falling in a tremendous, beautiful dive past the side of the pinnacle. The mate of this huge bird followed in a similar splendid dive from probably a mile in the air, swerving just as he passed the nest-cave and rising immediately and directly into the air again. Apparently the younger bird stayed aloft, for only the two larger birds did the diving.

"This swooping and rising was repeated several times, and at last one of the birds, probably the female, alighted on the ledge, looked about for a moment or two, and then walked into the cave as if nothing had happened.

"I went back down the crevice in the side canyon, out into the main gorge and across to my camp, where I made a dinner out of coffee and flapjacks with sugar. As darkness fell, the male bird and the youngster returned to their perches on top of the pinnacle and peace once more rested on the condor colony. The following morning I made my way homeward, not a little proud of having been one of the few men who have seen the California condor at home, and inspected that condor home, even at the risk of breaking their necks.

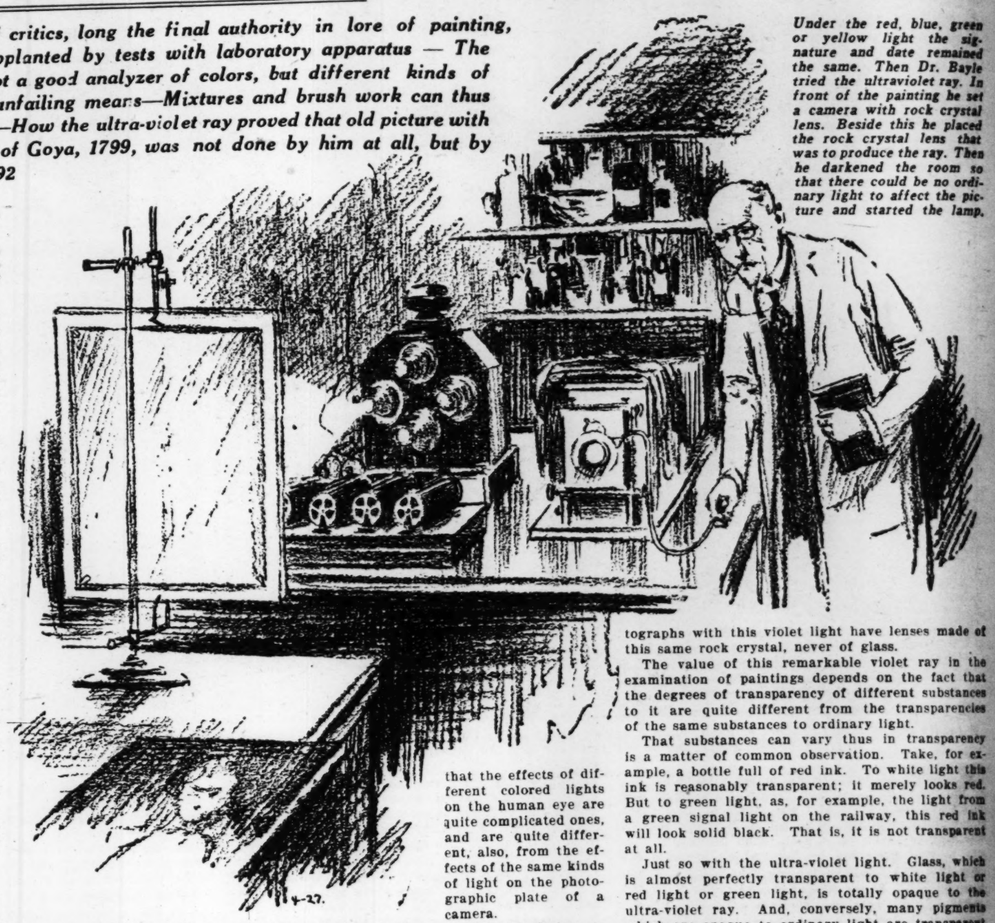
"The three condors are still in the canyon, and I have made one trip since to look at them from a distance. Apparently the cave is still home to them, and I am adding my own watchfulness to whatever protection the California law gives them, to see that they are never again disturbed in their rocky retreat."

Science Aids Art : Detects Fakes Among "Old Masters"

The opinions of critics, long the final authority in lore of painting, are being supplanted by tests with laboratory apparatus — The human eye not a good analyzer of colors, but different kinds of light are an unfailing means—Mixtures and brush work can thus be compared—How the ultra-violet ray proved that old picture with the signature of Goya, 1799, was not done by him at all, but by Tirana in 1792

By E. E. FREE, PH. D.,

Fellow of American Associatfon for the Advancement of Science.



Under the red, blue, green or yellow light the signature and date remained the same. Then Dr. Bayle tried the ultraviolet ray. In front of the painting he set a camera with rock crystal lens. Beside this he placed the rock crystal lens that was to produce the ray. Then he darkened the room so that there could be no ordinary light to affect the picture and started the lamp.

IT USED to be claimed by the artists that their vocation was a thing quite apart from science. It was, they said, a matter of imagination to paint a landscape; it took inspiration to create out of the lifeless marble a statue that would make men look at it a second time. Science was different. The scientists were dull fellows who spent their time grubbing after still duller facts. What had they to do with the free fancies of art?

Well, they have had this to do: that science is now the last resort of the experts, the final seat of judgment on works of pictorial art. If you want to be sure of the genuineness of a painting or of a piece of sculpture that you are fortunate enough to possess you must not ask the art critic—no, not at all. You must ask the scientist. Modern scientific methods for the examining of paintings are replacing rapidly the older "opinions," really no more than shrewd guesses, of the trained "experts."

Part of this contribution of science to the problems of the artists has come from the microscope, but more has come from the use of special new kinds of light. As long as 15 years ago I was able to determine, by microscopic study of canvas on which a painting had been painted, that it could not have been done, as was claimed, at about the time of the French Revolution, but must have been very much later in date.

At about the same time a scientist, then a colleague of mine, scraped off two tiny specks of paint from two paintings and showed that these paintings probably were not by the same artist. Both specks of paint were red and were of about the same color tone on the painting. My friend analyzed the pigments used and showed that they were totally different.

This was not complete proof, for it was conceivable that the same artist might have secured the same color tone in different ways in the two different paintings. Nevertheless, there was an inference that the paints were different and the sequel showed, I understand, that this was true, one of the two paintings being genuine while the other one was a forgery.

These earlier methods of examining paintings were chemical or microscopic. It is only much more recently that the methods of using different kinds of light have come into use. The man who has developed the best of these new methods is Dr. Bayle, head of the Service of Identification of the Judicial Department of the French Government.

From Dr. Bayle's laboratory in Paris have come some of the most remarkable achievements in this direction that have been accomplished anywhere.

For example, two recent cases of Dr. Bayle have just been described by M. Jacques Boyer of Paris in the famous Parisian journal, La Nature. In one of these cases Dr. Bayle was able to show that the signature "Goya" on a painting was a forgery, as was the date on the same painting. In the other case Dr. Bayle was asked to compare a disputed painting of the artist Renoir with an undoubtedly authentic example of the work of this same artist.

By photographing the two when exposed to different varieties of light, he was able to prove that the nature of the brush work in the two cases was entirely different, thus establishing a strong probability that they had been painted by different hands.

The possibility of doing this depends upon the fact that the effects of different colored lights on the human eye are quite complicated ones, and are quite different, also, from the effects of the same kinds of light on the photographic plate of a camera.

Suppose, for example, that an artist desires to paint on his canvas a certain tone of green. He can employ, if he desires, a green pigment, like Paris green or like the kinds of green glass which are sometimes ground up into powder and used in paint.

But this is not the only way he can make a green tint. He can mix a blue pigment and a yellow pigment. The result is green, and by properly adjusting the proportions of yellow and of blue, as well as by lightening the resulting color with white or darkening it with black, the artist can obtain a mixed-pigment color which is indistinguishable, by the eyes alone, from the green color that is made from a pigment which itself is green.

The eye, that is, is not a good analyzer of colors. The pure green and the mixed green can be made to look alike, even to the skilled eye of an artist or an art critic.

Here is where science comes in. These two colors are made to look alike, of course, in ordinary light. To this ordinary light they are indistinguishable. But suppose we expose them to a special kind of light. Suppose, for example, that we expose them to bright blue light. Then the result is quite different.

The two colors, quite alike in white light, seem very different in the blue light. In red light they would seem still otherwise, but both would remain unlike. Only in the pure white light for which they had been originally matched would the similarity of the colors remain.

You see how materially this helps the scientist who is investigating the authenticity of a painting. There is a reasonable assumption that an artist, having grown accustomed to producing a certain color on his canvas in a certain way, will continue to produce it in that way. If you find, therefore, that two paintings before you have their green colors made by totally different mixtures of pigments you may at least suspect that these colors were mixed by different artists.

But the most spectacular, as well as the most certain, of the new scientific methods for examining paintings depends upon the use of a special kind of light that it not visible to our eyes at all. It was by means of this invisible light that Dr. Bayle detected the fraudulent signature on the painting attributed to the famous artist Goya.

This kind of light is known as the ultra-violet ray. This ray will not pass through glass, and so, in order to use it, we have to employ special electric-arc lamps inclosed in tubes made of melted rock crystal. Similarly, the cameras used to take photographs with this violet light have lenses made of this same rock crystal, never of glass.

The value of this remarkable violet ray in the examination of paintings depends on the fact that the degrees of transparency of different substances to it are quite different from the transparencies of the same substances to ordinary light.

That substances can vary thus in transparency is a matter of common observation. Take, for example, a bottle full of red ink. To white light this ink is reasonably transparent; it merely looks red. But to green light, as, for example, the light from a green signal light on the railway, this red ink will look solid black. That is, it is not transparent at all.

Just so with the ultra-violet light. Glass, which is almost perfectly transparent to white light or red light or green light, is totally opaque to the ultra-violet ray. And, conversely, many pigments which are opaque to ordinary light are transparent to the ultra-violet ray, as transparent as are the seemingly solid tissues of our body to the still more remarkable rays that we call X-rays.

It was this fact that some pigments are transparent to the ultra-violet ray that permitted Dr. Bayle to detect the forged signature of Goya. This painting carried, apparently, the signature of Goya and the date 1799. Under the red light, blue light, green light or yellow light, this signature and date remained the same. Then Dr. Bayle tried the ultra-violet ray.

He could not try it, of course, with the eye, for the eye cannot see this ray. He tried it with a photographic plate. In front of the painting he set a camera with a rock crystal lens. Beside this he placed the rock crystal lens that was to produce the ray. Then he darkened the room so that there would be no ordinary light to affect the camera and he started the lamp.

The rays illuminated the picture; invisibly, of course, for to the human eye the room remained quite dark. But the rays did affect the plate in the camera. When Dr. Bayle developed this plate in his darkroom he found on it a photograph of the painting, a photograph made not with light but with ultra-violet ray.

And on this plate the supposed signature of Goya was missing. The pigments with which this signature had been drawn by the forger chanced to be transparent to the ultra-violet ray. They did not show at all, not any more than a signature drawn in clear water would show under ordinary light.

But underneath the fake Goya signature another signature did show, the signature of another artist named Tirana. His pigments had happened to be such as were not transparent to the ultra-violet ray. To ordinary light the later layer of paint that bore the Goya signature was sufficient to conceal the earlier Tirana one. But in the ultra-violet ray the later paint was transparent and the earlier layer showed through.

Not only was the signature shown thus to be a forgery. The true date, also, was seen to be 1792 instead of 1799. In fact, the whole incident was disclosed as a fraud, in which a painting by a relatively inferior and little known artist was masquerading as the work of a much greater man.

In many other cases Dr. Bayle and the other scientists who are working in this field have succeeded in discovering the true origin of disputed paintings; in authenticating those that are real and in exposing the others as frauds.

TEA-HOUR IS "THE" HOUR IN LUXOR

Karl K. Kitchen describes a night he spent at the hotel where visitors to Kin Tut's tomb stop—Howard Carter the hero of the place — The Temple of Karnak, close by, the world's most imposing ruin, makes the Pharaoh's burial place look insignificant

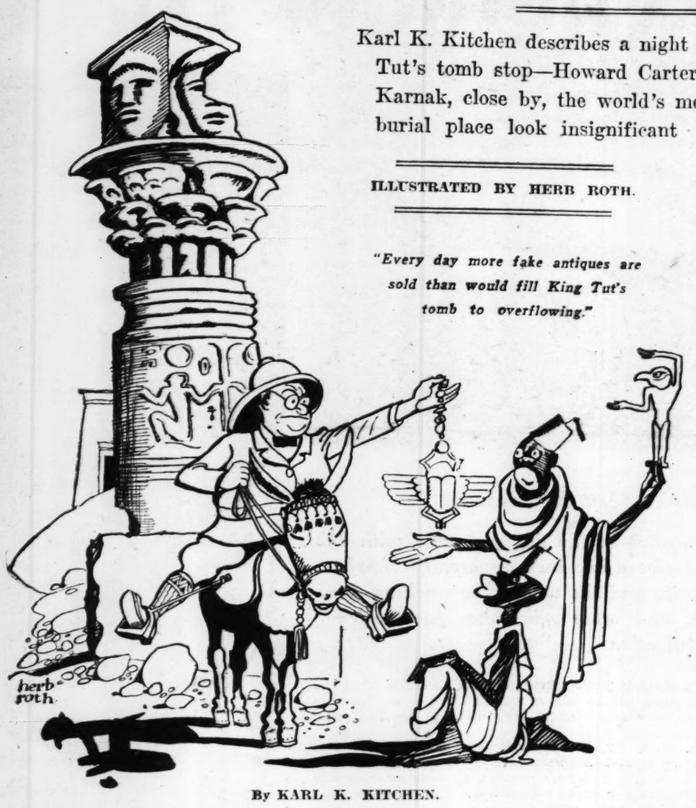
"Every day more fake antiques are sold than would fill King Tut's tomb to overflowing."



By KARL K. KITCHEN.

YOU can tell how long anyone has been in Luxor by the spot where he takes tea on the terrace of the Winter Palace Hotel. A new arrival invariably hugs the edge to get an unobstructed view of the Nile. The visitor who has been there several days is content to sit further back, while the winter resident prefers to take his tea in the garden on the other side of the hotel, or if he happens to be an American, to replace tannic acid with cocktails at the bar.

The tea hour is "the" hour in Luxor. It is then that the hotels—of which the Winter Palace is the most important—are at their liveliest. All the tourists are back from their excursions to the Valley of the Tombs of the Kings, Medinet Abu, Karnak and the other glories of the past, and tea is not only an appropriate social function but a welcome stimulant after a tiring day in the broiling sun.

The Winter Palace is the rendezvous for all the foreign colony of Luxor at this hour. On its spacious terrace, which flanks the Nile for the entire length of the hotel, or in its beautiful gardens, are to be found the most famous travelers, the greatest Egyptologists and archeologists and world celebrities who have come to Luxor to pay homage to King Tut. During the day the Winter Palace and the other hotels are practically deserted. Everyone is climbing over ruins, visiting tombs or interesting themselves with some form of sightseeing or adventure. But when the sun begins to set beyond the Libyan Hills, the terrace garden—and bar—take on an air of activity and gaiety. And the visitor to Upper Egypt sees Luxor at its best.

During the short winter season—it is now only three months—there is nearly always a Nile steamer, loaded with tourists, at the river bank. Their white clad passengers swell the animated throng in and about the hotel—completing a picture which for color and exotic high lights is not surpassed anywhere. White-robed native waiters move about the terrace with trays of tea and the most marvelous pastries. From the lobby may be heard the strains of dance music, for the dansant is part of the round of pleasure on the banks of the Sweet Nile.

But even more agreeable than the strains of music which are wafted about by the late afternoon breeze—at least to many tourists—is the metallic rattle of the cocktail shakers in the Winter Palace bar. At the Luxor Hotel the Tutankhamen cocktail is the drink of the hour. In fact, a big sign in spacious barrooms states that it is approved by the Archbishop of America! But at the Winter Palace "double dry Martinis" are de rigeur. And they are made by a black barkeeper, who handles a wicked shaker.

In such delectable surroundings—the bar and the terrace of the Winter Palace are the two finest spots in Egypt in the opinion of many travelers—the events of the day are recounted as the sun sinks behind the yellow Libyan Hills and its golden glow is replaced by a silver, shimmering dusk. And it is here that you get the "low down" on the tomb of King Tutankhamen and hear its bunk dispelled.

For 99 out of every hundred tourists who visit Luxor, the tomb of Tutankhamen is merely the excuse and not the reason for their trip. And those who are permitted to see its interior invariably find it the least impressive of all the "sights" in Upper Egypt. The Great Temple of Karnak is the stellar attraction of Luxor. It dwarfs everything else in this part of the world, in fact, everything else in Egypt. But the well-advertised treasures of the tomb of Tutankhamen are the lure despite the fact that they prove a snare and a delusion.

At tea time the air around the Winter Palace is filled with rumors about the tomb, and what its excavators have discovered. Everyone who has been to the Valley of the Tombs of the Kings returns with some story about alleged happenings there—the deadly curse of the tomb on its despoilers, its hidden store of jewels and treasure, the latest deductions of Howard Carter and his archeologist colaborators. The amount of misinformation spread around about the tomb is colossal. Prof. James Breastead, the famous American Egyptologist of Chicago; A. C. More and Prof. Percy Newberry, who is one of the greatest authorities on the Valley of the Tombs of the Kings, are surrounded by questioning friends who are intent upon hearing the significance of the latest discoveries. When Howard Carter appears upon the scene, as he often does, for he has a villa on the opposite bank of the Nile, near Gournash, he is the cynosure of all eyes. There is no question that he is the hero of the hour—as far as the tourists are concerned.

In his white sun helmet and gray flannels Howard Carter, despite his small stature, is a picturesque figure. He somehow gives the impression that he is well pleased with himself, but that does not deter autograph hunters from tracking him down.

Despite the fact that everything found in the tomb of King Tutankhamen, except the shrines protecting the sarcophagus, has been removed and is either in Cairo or boxed up for future shipment, it is amusing to find scores of natives peddling hundreds of scarabs, beads, ornaments, jewels and even statues alleged to have been found in the tomb. And it is even more amusing to find tourists buying large quantities of this junk, which is concocted by the natives. The manufacture of fake antiques is one of the most important industries in Luxor, which has a native population of some 15,000. Scarabs are turned out by the thousand. Every authentic antique is duplicated a thousandfold, with the result that every day more fraudulent antiques are sold than the tomb of Tutankhamen could hold if every one of its chambers were filled to overflowing.

"I've got one of King Tut's rings," said a stout lady tourist from Pelham Manor to me, proudly exhibiting a badly made imitation gold ring, set with a pale-blue scarab.

"How much did you pay for it?" I asked, for I wanted to be polite, especially as I was most comfortably seated on the terrace overlooking the Nile.

"Only 125 plasters. I always call the plasters plasters, it's so much easier," she explained. "Let me see, that's $6 in real money. The man who sold it to me offered to give me a written guarantee that it was genuine. Think of having a ring that was worn by King Tut (she pronounced it to rhyme with mut) 1350 years before Christ. Isn't it wonderful?"

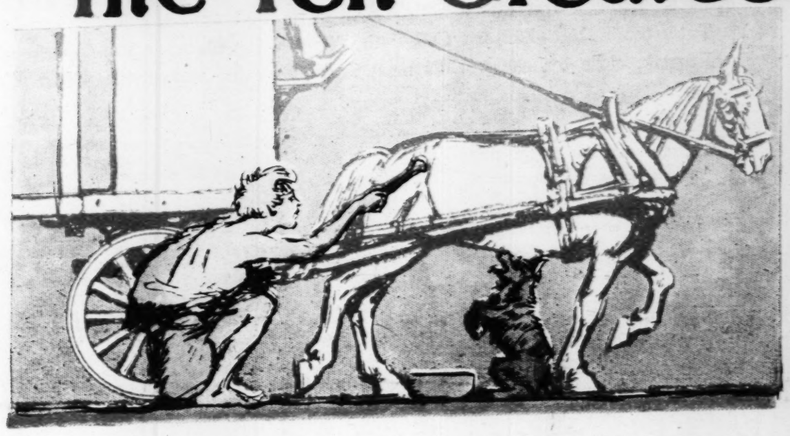
The Ten Greatest Discoveries of



THE DISCOVERY THAT ANIMALS CAN BE TRAINED.

This scientist's list begins with the domestication of the dog and ends with the conquering of the disease germ — In between are such apparently simple achievements as the invention of the knife and the wheel, the smelting of copper ore, the idea of business credit, and other milestones past which man has marched from savagery to civilization :: :: ::

RECENTLY a correspondent requested Dr. E. E. Free, fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, to supply an answer to this question:

"What are the 10 greatest scientific discoveries in the history of the world?"

The learned doctor of philosophy was of an accommodating disposition. He was well aware, however, that his answer could represent no more than his personal opinion. Any other educated person might supply a list differing considerably from his own. It was a matter of the individual viewpoint, the "angle" of observation. What might seem of supreme importance to one might appear comparatively insignificant to another. But Dr. Free, after due reflection, set down these as the 10 discoveries which in his view have done more than any others to affect human life to its betterment:

1. The discovery that animals can be trained.
2. The discovery that useful plants can be made to grow artificially by planting their seeds in the ground.
3. The discovery of the principle of the knife; the principle, that is, that a sharp, thin-edged tool will cut into things.
4. The discovery of copper.
5. The discovery of the wheel.
6. The discovery of business credit.
7. The discovery of coal.
8. The discovery of printing.
9. The discovery of the principle of the electric dynamo.
10. The discovery of the germ theory of disease.

"There is the list," says Dr. Free. "It is significant that five of these 10 great discoveries are prehistoric, and that one of the remaining five was made in Babylon in very ancient times. There are really only two out of the whole 10 that can be credited to the modern period that we are accustomed to boast about as being so 'scientific.' Possibly our remote grandparents were not really so stupid as we sometimes think.

"But, of course, this is only my list. Perhaps you would disagree with my selection for the greatest 10. Well, then, what is your list?"

For present purposes, let us accept Dr. Free's list for discussion, yielding to the reader full privilege of making out his own list of the 10 greatest discoveries. The doctor's No. 1, the discovery that animals can be trained, takes us back to a remote era in man's history, a period unrecorded. Man was emerging from the brute. He had become, at last, what we may term an upstanding proposition. Having ceased to crawl, to creep on four legs, to use his toes as prehensile members for assistance in swinging from limb to limb in the trees, he had begun to walk upright. Perhaps the perpendicular posture in itself served to instill into his mind the notion that he was, or was destined to be, the elite of the animal kingdom, the "boss" of the jungle and the plain.

If, as Dr. Free suggests, the dog was the first animal to be domesticated, it is evident that our prehistoric ancestors began with some specimens of the beast of those remote times that resembled the wolf of today. The dog, as we know, is merely a modified wolf. No doubt the beginning was with a litter of young left by parents that had been killed. Possibly the puppies looked "cute" to our savage progenitors, as such infants do to us; or it is not altogether assumption to suggest, the feeling of pity for the helpless orphans induced those who slew their parents to care for the helpless puppies. In any event, it was discovered that the wolf that grew up under human care was somewhat socially inclined. After some generations he became thoroughly domesticated, the friend instead of the enemy of man, and much of his primeval wolfishness was eliminated.

Then came under domestication the cow, to provide milk and butter, and the ox, to bear burdens in transportation, and the camel to carry both man and his personal property. "Finally," says Dr. Free, "man subjugated the most useful animal of all, the horse. It is probable that this was man's first step in the long process of subjugating the world to the human will."

Let us try to imagine a world without domestic animals of any kind. It is easy enough to imagine, but it would be difficult to endure. Even the absence of cats would detract from the joy of life, for that would mean the increase and multiplication of rats and mice. The dog—of course, we could get along without him, but what is home without the dog? If, as Dr. Free opines, he was the first animal to be domesticated, he certainly has a wonderful record for persistence in popularity. Among beasts of burden, the ox and the horse, the camel, the elephant, modern inventions are such that few person are inclined to dispute the position of this discovery thus close to the top of the list. The beginning of agriculture, as Dr. Free points out, meant the beginning of organized society. "This," he suggests, "probably was the very greatest discovery of all human history, for without this few of the later ones would have been possible."

Prior to this discovery, man was a roving creature. He had to find his food wherever it grew naturally. When he had consumed all the visible supply near at hand, he must move on to some further supply. Constant moving about was not conducive to organization of government, nor did it encourage the development of family life, which necessarily was a forerunner of civic organization. But when man discovered that he could take the seeds of edible plants, pick up a stick or a stone and loosen the soil, bury the seeds and then sit down and wait a few weeks or a few months for a more or less abundant reproduction of the vegetables planted, there arose a tendency to remain in one place and quit gadding about.

From this developed private ownership of property, laws to protect property, both real and personal; governments to create and execute the laws. In short, nations as well as wheat, corn and rye grew out of the ground, sprang up from the seeds planted shallowly in the soil. Rude huts supplanted the brush arbors or the primitive cave dwellings of the nomads. Villages developed, mankind gradually becoming gregarious. The get-together idea was growing.

In time the villages grew into cities, the huts were exchanged for handsomer and more commodious houses, but not until man made Dr. Free's discovery No. 3: that of the principle of the knife. It was the knife that built the great cities, including the ancient capitals—Thebes, Babylon, Nineveh and others—and modern Paris, London, New York, St. Louis.

"What! All these great cities built by the knife?" do you ask, a bit derisive in tone.

Verily, yes, built by the knife, all of them, and all of the rest of the cities and towns and isolated dwellings in the world and all the furniture that makes all the houses comfortable or clogged, and all the ships that sail all the seas—all built by the knife. Come to think of it, Dr. Free's No. 3 accounts for a very great deal of our present-day civilization. Let us bear in mind that the knife includes or presupposes not only the jackknife in your pocket and the bowieknife in your belf, but any implement that cuts. It includes, therefore, the saw, the plane, the lathe, the chisel, the spade, the auger, the razor, the awl—think up all the rest and add them to the list.

"The first knives," says Dr. Free, "were merely bits of sharp stone. Some prehistoric genius—possibly an ape-man genius, before man was really human at all—discovered that such sharp stones would cut. From this grew the finely finished stone knives of prehistoric times; the arrows and spears and stone axes; later on, the edged tools of copper and bronze."

Thus we run up suddenly against discovery No. 4: the discovery of copper. That meant, of course, the improvement of the knife, any hard metal being superior to stone for cutting purposes. "Copper was the first metal that man made for himself. He already had gold and silver, but they were found loose, as metals. Copper was made by melting up rocks in the fire."

Just here one might interrupt the free flow of the Free list by suggesting that the discovery of the use of fire might fairly well be put near the top of the favored 10, though we shall not halt the procession to argue for this point.

"Thus man discovered," to resume Dr. Free's elucidation, "that he could alter natural materials to make them more suitable to his needs. This discovery marked the beginning of both mining and metallurgy."

Also, it made a better knife than man had possessed before, especially after the discovery was made that by producing bronze, an alloy of copper and tin, a harder knife metal—which means raw material for making any kind of cutting instrument—was provided. Iron and steel, their use and abuse, came later, supplanting bronze not only in the knife industry but in various other useful arts.

The smelting of copper lies at the base of all our metallic industries and their products, such as railroad tracks and rolling stock, engines and machinery, and all the multifarious uses to which hard metals are put in our complex civilization.

That mention of "rolling stock" brings us immediately to Dr. Free's No. 5: the discovery of the wheel. "This discovery," he remarks, "came comparatively late in human history. The American Indians, though they were an intelligent and advanced race, never invented it at all. With this discovery began all of machinery and transportation. Modern society, quite literally, runs on wheels. Imagine what the world would be like if the idea of the wheel had never been discovered!"

Yes, just imagine! It sounds simple, that idea of the wheel, a circular contraption with a hole in the center for an axle; yet mankind muddled along for many thousands of years without it. You have seen pictures of the American Indians using the noble

Work, Wanted

NOTHING, of course, in this world is perfect; and, rosy as were the glasses through which Archie looked on his new surroundings, he had to admit that there was one flaw, one fly in the ointment, one individual caterpillar in the salad. Mr. Daniel Brewster, his father-in-law, remained consistently unfriendly. Indeed, his manner towards his new relative became daily more and more a manner which would have caused gossip on the plantation if Simon Legree had exhibited it in his relations with Uncle Tom.

Archie, a true philosopher, bore this hostility with fortitude, but it worried Lucille.

"I do wish father understood you better," was her wistful comment.

"Well, you know," said Archie, "I'm open for being understood any time he cares to take a stab at it."

"Well, we shall have to think of something. I want him to realize what an angel you are. You are an angel, you know."

"No, really?"

"Of course you are."

"It's a rummy thing," said Archie, pursuing a train of thought which was constantly with him, "the more I see of you, the more I wonder how you can have a father like—I mean to say, what I mean to say is: I wish I had known your mother; she must have been frightfully attractive."

"What would really please him, I know," said Lucille, "would be if you got some work to do right away. He loves people who work."

"Yes?" said Archie, doubtfully. "Well, you know, I heard him interviewing that chappie behind the desk this morning, who works like the dickens from early morn to dewy eve, on the subject of a mistake in his figures; and, if he loved him, he dissembled it, all right. Of course, I admit that so far I haven't been one of the toilers, but the dashed difficult thing is to know how to start. I'm nosing round, but the openings for a bright young man seem so scarce."

"Well, keep on trying. I feel sure that, if you could only find something to do, it doesn't matter what, father would be quite different."

It was possibly the dazzling prospect of making Mr. Brewster quite different that stimulated Archie. He was strongly of the opinion that any change in his father-in-law must inevitably be for the better. A chance meeting with James B. Wheeler, the artist, at the Pen-and-Ink Club seemed to open the way.

To Mr. Wheeler, over a friendly lunch, Archie had been confiding some of his ambitions to qualify as the hero of one of the get-on-or-get-out-young-men-step-lively-books.

"You want a job?" said Mr. Wheeler.

"I want a job," said Archie.

"I always looked on you as one of our leading lilies of the field," he said. "Why this anxiety to toil and spin?"

"Well, my wife, you know, seems to think it might put me one up with the jolly old dad if I did something."

"Then come and pose for a picture I'm doing," said J. B. Wheeler. "It's for a magazine cover. You're just the model I want, and I'll pay you at the usual rates. Is it a go?"

"Pose?"

"You've only got to stand still and look like a chunk of wood. You can do that, surely?"

"I can do that," said Archie.

"Then come along to my studio tomorrow."

"Right-o!" said Archie.

* * * * *

"Don't wobble, confound you!" snorted Mr. Wheeler

"Yes, but my dear old artist," said Archie, "what you don't seem to grasp—what you appear not to realize—is that I'm getting a crick in the back."

"Well, I'll be through in a few minutes. Don't weaken. Think how proud you'll be when you see yourself on all the bookstalls."

The cover on which Mr. Wheeler was engaged was was for the August number of the magazine, and it had been necessary for Archie to drape his reluctant form in a two-piece bathing suit of a vivid lemon color; for he was supposed to be representing one of those jolly dogs belonging to the best families who dive off floats at exclusive seashore resorts.

Somehow or other, she had left the room, the [illegible] had managed to get [illegible] shut.

"Put your hands up," he said. "Oh, right-o! Absolutely!" said Archie.

"All right," said J. B. Wheeler, laying [illegible] brush. "That will do for today. Though, [illegible] without prejudice and with no wish to be [illegible] if I had had a model who wasn't a weak-kneed, backboned son of Belial, I could have got the [illegible] thing done without having to have another [illegible]

"I wonder why you chappies call this sort of [illegible] 'sitting,'" said Archie, pensively, as he [illegible] tentative experiments in osteopathy on his [illegible] back. "I say, old thing, I could do with a [illegible] tive, if you have one handy. But, of course, [illegible] haven't, I suppose," he added, resignedly. "Although as a rule, there were moments when [illegible] found the eighteenth amendment somewhat [illegible]

J. B. Wheeler shook his head.

"You're a little previous," he said. "[illegible] around in another day or so, and I may be able to do something for you." He moved with a conspiratorlike caution to a corner of the room, lifting to one side a pile of canvases, revealing a stout barrel, which he regarded with a fatherly, benignant eye. "I don't mind telling you that, in the fullness of time, I believe this is going to [illegible] a good deal of sweetness and light."

"Oh, ah," said Archie, interested. "How [illegible] what?"

"Made with these hands. I added a few [illegible] raisins yesterday, to speed things up a bit. There is much virtue in your raisin. And, talking of speeding things up, for goodness' sake try to be a little more punctual tomorrow. We lost an hour of good [illegible] light today."

"I like that! I was here on the absolute [illegible] I had to hang about on the landing waiting for [illegible]

"Well, well, that doesn't matter," said J. B. Wheeler, impatiently, for the artist soul is always annoyed by petty details. "The point is that you were an hour late in getting to work. Mind you're here tomorrow at 11 sharp."

It was, therefore, with a feeling of guilt and trepidation that Archie mounted the stairs on the following morning; for, in spite of his good resolutions, he was half an hour behind time. He was relieved to find that his friend had also lagged by the wayside. The door of the studio was ajar, and he went in, to discover the place occupied by a lady of mature years, who was scrubbing the floor with a mop. He went into the bedroom and donned his bathing suit. When he emerged, 10 minutes later, the charwoman had gone, but J. B. Wheeler was still absent. Rather glad of the respite, he sat down to kill time by reading the morning paper, which, sporting page alone he had managed to master, the breakfast table.

There was not a great deal in the paper to [illegible] eat him. The usual bond robbery had taken place on the previous day, and the police were [illegible] hot on the trail of the master mind who was [illegible]

Somehow or other, since he had left the room, the door had managed to get itself shut.

...at the back of these financial operations. A messenger named Henry ...mock had been arrested and was expected to become confidential. Presently he looked at his watch, and found that he had been in the studio three-quarters of an hour.

Archie became restless. Long-suffering old bean though he was, he considered this a bit thick. He got up and went out onto the landing, to see if there were any signs of the blighter. There were none. Archie turned back into the studio to dress and go away.

His progress was stayed by a solid, forbidding slab of oak. Somehow or other, since he had left the room, the door had managed to get itself shut.

"Oh, dash it!" said Archie.

The mildness of the expletive was proof that the full horror of the situation had not immediately come home to him. His mind in the first few moments was occupied with the problem of how the door had got that way. He could not remember shutting it. Probably he had done it unconsciously.

It was while he was musing that the sound of footsteps came to him from below. But almost in the first instant the hope that this might be J. B. Wheeler, the curse of the human race, died away. Whoever was coming up the stairs was running, and J. B. Wheeler never ran upstairs. He was not one of your lean, haggard, spiritual-looking geniuses. He made a large income with his brush and pencil, and spent most of it in creature comforts. This couldn't be J. B. Wheeler.

It was not. It was a tall, thin man whom he had never seen before. He appeared to be in a considerable hurry. He let himself into the studio on the floor below, and vanished without even waiting to shut the door.

A sudden bright light was vouchsafed to Archie, and he now saw an admirably ripe and fruity scheme for ending his troubles. What could be simpler than to toddle down one flight of stairs and in an easy and debonair manner ask the chappie's permission to use his telephone? And what could be simpler, once he was at the phone, than to get in touch with somebody at the Cosmopolis who would send down a few trousers and what not in a kit bag?

"I say, I hate to bother you—dare say you're busy and all that sort of thing—but would you mind if I popped in for half a second and used your phone?" That was the speech, the extremely gentlemanly and well-phrased speech, which Archie had prepared to deliver the moment the man appeared. The reason he did not deliver it was that the man did not appear. He knocked, but nothing stirred.

"I say!"

Archie now perceived that the door was ajar, and that on an envelope attached with a tack to one of the panels was the name "Elmer M. Moon." He pushed the door a little farther open and tried again.

"Oh, Mr. Moon! Mr. Moon!" He waited a moment. "Oh, Mr. Moon! Mr. Moon! Are you there, Mr. Moon?"

He blushed hotly. To his sensitive ear the words had sounded exactly like the opening line of the refrain of a vaudeville song hit. He decided to waste no further speech on a man with such an unfortunate surname until he could see him face to face and get a chance of lowering his voice a bit. He pushed the door open and walked in, and closed it gently behind him.

He found himself confronting the hurried gentleman who had run upstairs. This sprinter had produced an automatic pistol, and was pointing it in a truculent manner, at his head. Archie stared at his host, and his host stared at him.

"Put your hands up," he said.

"Oh, right-o! Absolutely!" said Archie. "But I mean to say"——

The other was drinking him in with considerable astonishment. Archie's costume seemed to have made a powerful impression upon him.

"Who the devil are you?" he inquired.

"Me? Oh, my name's"——

"Never mind your name. What are you doing here?"

"Well, as a matter of fact, I popped in to ask if I might use your phone. You see"——

A certain relief seemed to temper the austerity of the other's gaze. As a visitor, Archie, though surprising, seemed to be better than he had expected.

"I don't know what to do with you," he said, meditatively.

"If you'd just let me toddle to the phone"——

"Likely!" said the man. He appeared to reach a decision. "Here, go into that room."

He indicated with a jerk of his head the open door of what was apparently a bedroom at the farther end of the studio.

The bedroom was in a state of untidiness that eclipsed anything that Archie had ever witnessed. The other appeared to be moving house. Bed, furniture and floor were covered with articles of clothing.

"Sit down!" said Elmer M. Moon, abruptly.

"Right-o! Thanks," said Archie, "I suppose you wouldn't like me to explain, and what not, what?"

"No!" said Mr. Moon. "I haven't got your spare time. Put your hands behind that chair."

Archie did so, and found them immediately secured by what felt like a silk tie. His assiduous host then proceeded to fasten his ankles in a like manner. This done, he seemed to feel that he had done all that was required of him, and he returned to the packing of a large suitcase which stood by the window.

"I say!" said Archie.

Mr. Moon, with the air of a man who has remembered something which he had overlooked, shoved a sock in his guest's mouth and resumed his packing. He bundled his belongings in, closed the bag with some difficulty, and, stepping to the window, opened it. Then he climbed out on the fire escape, dragged the suitcase after him, and was gone.

In less than 10 minutes Archie, after a good deal of snakelike writhing, was pleased to discover that the thingummy attached to his wrists had loosened sufficiently to enable him to use his hands. He untied himself and got up.

He now began to tell himself that out of evil cometh good. His encounter with the elusive Mr. Moon had not been an agreeable one, but it had this solid advantage, that it had left him right in the middle of a great many clothes. And Mr. Moon, whatever his moral defects, had the one excellent quality of taking about the same size as himself. Archie, casting a covetous eye upon a tweed suit which lay on the bed, was on the point of climbing into the trousers when on the outer door of the studio there sounded a forceful knocking.

"Open up here!"

Archie bounded silently out into the other room and stood listening tensely. He was not a naturally querulous man, but he did feel at this point that fate was picking on him with a somewhat undue severity.

"In th' name av th' law!"

There are times when the best of us lose our heads. At this juncture Archie should undoubtedly have gone to the door, opened it, explained his presence in a few well-chosen words, and generally have passed the whole thing off with ready tact. But the thought of confronting a posse of police in his

"Why couldn't we hit him a lick," he suggested, brightly, "an' tell th' Cap. he resisted us in th' exercise of our jooty?"

Cleans Polishes and Protects

JOHNSON'S LIQUID WAX is the ideal furniture polish. It cleans, polishes, preserves and protects—all in one operation. It rejuvenates the varnish and gives a delightful air of immaculate cleanliness wherever used. It imparts a beautiful, hard, dry, glass-like polish which will not gather dust and lint or show finger prints. Johnson's Liquid Wax takes all the drudgery from dusting. It is easy to apply and polish.

JOHNSON'S LIQUID WAX

Your Linoleum will last longer—look better—and clean easier if polished occasionally with Johnson's Paste or Liquid Wax. It helps preserve the life and resilience of linoleum—brings out the pattern and color—and protects from wear. Johnson's Polishing Wax is recommended by all the leading manufacturers of linoleum.

present costume caused him to look earnestly about him for a hiding place.

Up against the farther wall was a settee with a high, arching back, which might have been put there for that special purpose. He inserted himself behind this, just as a splintering crash announced that the law, having gone through the formality of knocking with its knuckles, was now getting busy with an ax. A moment later the door had given way, and the room was full of trampling feet. Archie wedged himself against the wall with the quiet concentration of a clam nestling in its shell, and hoped for the best.

There followed a brief council of war, which, as it took place in the bedroom, was inaudible to Archie except as a distant growling noise. He could distinguish no words, but, as it was succeeded by a general trampling of large boots in the direction of the door and then by silence, he gathered that the pack, having drawn the studio and found it empty, had decided to return to other and more profitable duties. He gave them a reasonable interval for removing themselves, and then poked his head cautiously over the settee.

All was peace. The place was empty. No sound disturbed the stillness.

Archie emerged. He stretched himself, for it is cramping work, lying under settees, and, proceeding to the bedroom, picked up the tweed trousers again.

Clothes had a fascination for Archie. Another man, in similar circumstances, might have hurried over his toilet; but Archie, faced by a difficult choice of ties, rather strung the thing out. He selected a specimen which did great credit to the taste of Mr. Moon, evidently one of our snappiest dressers, found that it did not harmonize with the deeper meaning of the tweed suit, removed it, chose another, and was adjusting the bow and admiring the effect, when his attention was diverted by a slight sound which was half a cough and half a sniff; and, turning, found himself gazing into the clear blue eyes of a large man in uniform, who had stepped into the room from the fire escape. He was swinging a substantial club in a negligent sort of way, and he looked at Archie with a total absence of bonhomie.

"Ah!" he observed.

"Oh, there you are!" said Archie, subsiding weakly against the chest of drawers. He gulped. "Of course, I can see you're thinking all this pretty tolerably weird and all that," he proceeded, in a propitiatory voice.

The policeman attempted no analysis of his emotions. He opened a mouth which a moment before had looked incapable of being opened except with the assistance of powerful machinery, and shouted a single word.

"Cassidy!"

A distant voice gave tongue in answer. It was like alligators roaring to their mates across lonely swamps.

There was a rumble of footsteps in the region of the stairs, and presently there entered an even larger guardian of the law than the first exhibit. He, too, swung a massive club, and, like his colleague, he gazed frostily at Archie. He draped himself in the doorway like a colossus, and chewed gum.

"Where ja get him?" he inquired, after a pause.

"Found him in here attimpting to disguise himself."

"I told Cap, he was hiding somewheres, but he would have it that he'd beat it down th' escape," said the gum-chewer, with the somber triumph of the underling whose sound advice has been overruled by those above him. He shifted his wholesome (or, as some say, unwholesome) morsel to the other side of his mouth, and, for the first time, addressed Archie directly. "Ye're pinched!" he observed.

Archie started violently. The bleak directness of the speech aroused him with a jerk from the dreamlike state into which he had fallen. He had not anticipated this.

"But, I say," said Archie, "it's all a mistake, you know. Absolutely a frightful error, my dear old constables. I'm not the lad you're after at all. The chappie you want is a different sort of fellow altogether. Another blighter entirely."

"That's what they all say!" observed Officer Donahue.

Officer Cassidy heaved a deep sigh, which rumbled up from his interior like the first muttering of a cyclone.

"If I'd known," he said, regretfully, "that this guy was going to turn out a ruddy Englishman, I'd have taken a slap at him with m' stick and chanced it!"

Officer Donahue considered the point well taken.

"Ah!" he said, understandingly. He regarded Archie with an unfriendly eye. "I know th' sort well! Trampling on th' face av th' poor!"

Officer Cassidy uttered a glad cry.

"Why couldn't we hit him a lick," he suggested, brightly, "an' tell th' Cap. he resisted us in th' exercise of our jooty?"

An instant gleam of approval and enthusiasm came into Officer Donahue's eyes.

"Ye're the lad with the head, Tim!" he exclaimed admiringly.

"It just sorta came to me," said Mr. Cassidy, modestly.

"It's a great idea, Timmy!"

"Just happened to think of it," said Mr. Cassidy, with a coy gesture of self-effacement.

Archie listened to the dialogue with growing uneasiness. Now for the first time since he had made their acquaintance he became vividly aware of the exceptional physical gifts of these two men.

"I say, you know," he observed, apprehensively.

And then a sharp and commanding voice spoke from the outer room.

"Donahue! Cassidy! What the devil does this mean?"

Archie had a momentary impression that an angel had fluttered down to his rescue. If this was the case, the angel had assumed an effective disguise—that of a police Captain. The new arrival was a far smaller man than his subordinates—so much smaller that it did Archie good to look at him.

The Captain looked at Archie. It seemed to Archie that he looked at him coldly and with contempt.

"Who is he?"

"The master mind, sorr."

"The what?"

"The accused, sorr. The man that's wanted."

"You may want him. I don't," said the Captain. Archie, though relieved, thought he might have put it more nicely. "This isn't Moon. It's not a bit like him."

"Absolutely not!" agreed Archie, cordially. "It's all a mistake, old companion, as I was trying to"——

"Cut it out!"

"Oh, right-o!"

"You've seen the photographs at the station. Do you mean to tell me you see any resemblance?"

"If ye plaze, sorr," said Officer Cassidy, coming to life.

"Well?"

"We thought he'd bin disguising himself, the way he wouldn't be recognized."

"You're a fool!" said the Captain.

"Yes, sorr," said Officer Cassidy meekly.

"So are you, Donahue."

"Yes, sorr."

Archie's respect for this chappie was going up all the time. He seemed to be able to take years off the lives of these massive blighters with a word.

"Who are you?" demanded the Captain, turning to Archie.

"Well, my name is"——

"What are you doing here?"

"Well, it's rather a longish story, you know. Don't want to bore you, and all that."

"I'm here to listen. You can't bore me."

"Well, it was this bathing suit, you know," he said.

"What bathing suit?"

"Mine, don't you know. A lemon-colored contrivance. Rather bright and so forth, but in its proper place not altogether a bad egg. Well, the whole thing started, you know, with my standing on a bally pedestal sort of arrangement in a diving attitude—for the cover, you know. I don't know if you have ever done anything of that kind yourself, but it gives you a most fearful crick in the spine. However, that's rather beside the point, I suppose—don't know why I mentioned it. Well, this morning he was dashed late, so I went out"——

"I don't know what you're talking about," said the Captain. He looked at Archie with an expression of distrust and hostility. "And I'll tell you straight out I don't like the looks of you. I believe you're a pal of his."

"No longer," said Archie, firmly. "I mean to say, a chappie who makes you stand on a bally pedestal sort of arrangement and get a crick in the spine, and then doesn't turn up and leaves you biffing all over the countryside in a bathing suit"——

The reintroduction of the bathing suit motive seemed to have the worst effect on the Captain. He flushed darkly.

"Are you trying to josh me? I've a mind to soak you!"

"If ye plaze, sorr," cried Officer Donahue and Officer Cassidy in chorus. In the course of their professional career they did not often hear their superior make many suggestions with which they saw eye to eye, but he had certainly, in their opinion, spoken a mouthful now.

"No, honestly, my dear old thing, nothing was farther from my thoughts."

He would have spoken further, but at this moment the world came to an end. At least, that was how it sounded. Somewhere in the immediate neighborhood something went off with a vast explosion, shattering the glass in the window, peeling the plaster from the ceiling, and sending him staggering into the inhospitable arms of Officer Donahue.

The three guardians of the law stared at one another.

"If ye plaze, sorr," said Officer Cassidy, saluting.

"Well?"

"May I spake, sorr?"

"Well?"

"Something's exploded, sorr!"

The information, kindly meant though it was, seemed to annoy the Captain.

"What the devil did you think I thought had happened?" he demanded, with not a little irritation. "It was a bomb!"

Archie could have corrected this diagnosis, for already a faint but appealing aroma of an alcoholic nature was creeping into the room through a hole in the ceiling, and there had risen be-

"Well, see that you don't. Come along, Donahue, now. Look slippy."

"On the spot, sorr!" said Officer Donahue.

A moment later Archie had the studio to himself. Two minutes later he was picking his way cautiously down the fire escape after the manner of the recent Mr. Moon, but he had seen enough to know that in certain crises his methods were sound and should be followed. Elmer Moon was not a good man; his ethics were poor and his moral code shaky; but in the matter of legging it away from a situation of peril and discomfort he had no superior.

The Spring Rush for Bobbed Hair

One of the interesting phases of the springtide rush to the barber shops is the heavy percentage of candidates that will never see the fortieth milestone unless they turn around. At one large New York shop 70 heads were bobbed in a single afternoon and more than half of them belonged to middle-aged women.

When grandma is missing from her rocking chair these days she is not down at the dry goods store buying more wool for little Alfred's sweater. The family is much more likely to find her in a curtained beauty parlor having her roof reshingled.

"For the bob there is no age limit," said a prominent bobber. "Last week I cut the locks of a woman of 70. She told me that the rheumatism in her hands made it difficult to arrange her hair, and that she thought a bob would help very much. I cut it in a nice, boyish shingle. After she looked at herself in the glass she bought a lipstick and two kinds of rouge."

Middle-aged husbands, according to an observer behind the scissors, usually throw three or four fits in rapid succession when their wives come home without their hair. They dislike, it seems, to have their spouses look younger than they do. One woman tearfully told a hairdresser that her husband had flown into a passion and ordered her to grow long hair again because someone had mistaken her for his daughter.

Husbands, however, can go just so far in expressing disapproval of the garconette, the tailor-made or the Joan of Arc. Frank O'Donnell of Harlem found that out when he tried some Pleistocene tactics on the recently bobbed Mrs. O'Donnell.

"A woman's hair is hers, just as much as a man's is his," ruled Magistrate Renaud. "No man has a right to beat or desert his wife just because she tires of using hairpins."

As for the recent rumor that cut locks lead on to baldness, a prominent expert declares that he keeps a record of each head of bobbed hair that he permanently waves, and that at every new waving more curls are required. This proves, he says, that the shorn hair is continually growing thicker.

Though such disinterested parties as the Association of Human Hair Importers decree amid pontifical thunder that bobbed hair is as dead as the dinosaur eggs, the snip of the scissors continues to mock them from Old Point Comfort to San Francisco Bay. The Ladies' Home Journal is fast running the Police Gazette out of the barber shops, the barbers are learning to talk about handcrocheted doilies and the new flamingo coats, and the masculine patrons no longer await their turns in shirt-sleeved comfort.

Anyway, here's to the bob! Long may it permanently wave!

Tea Hour Is "The" Hour in Luxor

Fortunately, I was able to turn the conversation to the lateen sails of a boat on the shimmering river below and the gorgeous twilight—not to mention the arrival of an encore of "double dry Martinis"—distracted the attention of my overcredulous companion.

An inspection of the shops near the Winter Palace—the most important stores of Luxor are located here on the bank of the Nile—revealed the greatest collection of junk—gimcracks and geegaws—I ever saw outside of a 5 and 10 cent store. Yet they were filled with tourists who bought Birmingham antiques and Sears-Roebuck tapestries at prices that enable the shopkeepers to live for nine months without working. Occasionally, after a great deal of haggling, an American of the cloak and suit manufacturing type will strike a fair bargain and get 10 per cent off for cash, but the majority of the purchases have only a sentimental value.

Between tea and dinner is the shopping time, for the day is taken up with sightseeing, and, after dinner, one rarely leaves his hotel—or his Nile steamer if he is visiting Upper Egypt in that fashion. The night train for Cairo, 13 hours away, leaves at 7 p. m., and the departing tourists have to purchase souvenirs for the "folks at home."

Dinner at the Winter Palace—and as I pointed out before, everybody who is anybody puts up there—is an 8 o'clock function. It is distinctly formal in respect to dress and only a resident of Los Angeles, where cafeterias and toothpicks are in vogue, would dream of entering its dining room without a fried shirt, or, if of the opposite sex, a low and behold gown.

The meal is a table d'hote affair of the Grand Hotel type, served by Nubians attired in white costumes that look like a cross between a nightgown and an ill-fitting pair of pajamas. The courses are interminable and even if you enter the dining room when the doors are opened, it will be long after 9 before you reach coffee and cigarettes. The coffee, by the way, is excellent, if you are fond of cafe a la Turc, and the cigarettes, if you enjoy Egyptians, are the last word.

And right here I might as well debunk the Egyptian cigarette. Strictly speaking, there is no such thing as an Egyptian cigarette. No tobacco is grown in Egypt. The cigarettes that are made in Egypt—Dimitrinos, Masperos, etc.—are made of Turkish tobacco. But that doesn't prevent them from being the finest cigarettes in the world—handmade of the choicest tobacco grown in the richest soil in Turkey. And a cup of superlatively good Turkish coffee, followed by a superfine Turkish—pardon, I mean Egyptian—cigarette, not forgetting a monk-brewed cordial, makes one forget the flies, dirty donkey boys and blind beggars and complaining tourists that one has encountered during the strenuous sun-scorched day.

If one is fortunate enough to be in Luxor during the full moon there is nothing more impressive in all Egypt than an after-dinner visit to the Great Temple at Karnak, less than two miles away. It is alone worth the trip to Egypt—the most massive and imposing ruin in the world. A walk through its long rows of gigantic columns makes one see the little tomb of Tutankhamen and the squabble over its tawdry effects in their true proportions. How absurd and inconsequential the whole affair has been—how little it will figure in the future history of Egypt when the bunk about it has been dispelled!

When I returned to the Winter Palace after my visit to Karnak, with its marvelous temples, pylons and pillars of Rameses the Great, I encountered Mohammed Bey Fahmy, the Governor of Luxor, enjoying a cigarette in the moonlit terrace.

"You have been to Karnak?" he asked, guessing how I had spent the evening.

"Yes," I replied.

"Then you will have something to write about when you get back to America," he added, with a genial smile. "For you have seen the most marvelous sight in Egypt."

And before I called it a night under the mosquito bar of my bed in the hotel, I was tempted to take a drink of Nile water, having heard that he who has drunk of it must return to the land of the Pharaoahs. But the memory of the tomb of Tutankhamen and Howard Carter flashed through my mind, and I ordered a Scotch and soda instead.

I don't want to take any chances of returning—until I am ready to lie down beside King Tut for a long, dreamless sleep.

O, So Sad! China Boy Is Waiting for Beer and Umpire to Come Back

By W. H. JAMES.

DEAR EDITOR, who are always ready to lend your ear with interest for listening to all kind of troubles which can be published. O, what to do? Somebody has killed the umpire. I have bought nice new deflector tube, marked up to five dollars. Man who sold it to me said it was best kind because all that was needed for running it was one quarter of one umpire, which is very small force. After attaching more wires than are used for political convention I put on ear blinkers and listen. What I hear is like this: "Hello, old man." Right back I exclaim: "Hello yourself." Then party at the other end of the ether come back like so: "Hello, old man! Hello, hello, hello. Da di da dit; da dit; da di da; da da dit." This is very great puzzle for me. I have read in Homely Ladies' Journal about universal language for radio. This must be it, I say to myself with some difficulty of hearing myself on account of earmuffs.

"But not so," say my cousin, who has made close study of prohibition from all sides, especially from wet side. He say this is not universal langauge for radio, but is very mysterious code which is being used by all those who would like to see two-six-bits beer come back pretty quick if not sooner.

I say to my cousin I think two-six-bits is very high price for beer, which make him chuckle with all many giggles.

"O, such ignorance," he say with superior expression of left eyebrow. "Two-six-bits is not price, but content of beer which is expected to come back by all who think it is able to do so. If you will take down blinds from your ears for letting in sunshine of intelligence I will make you wise, if possible.

"Take nice new battery which you have bought for example. Battery has umpire content. Beer has alcohol content. If you get one quarter of one umpire from battery then your radio sit has nice kick. All same for beer, which has no battery and no umpire but runs by alcohol power if at all. All many persons think two-six-bits of alcohol would be nice umpirage for putting kangaroo punch in beer. Maybe so, maybe not. How to tell?"

I put on earmuffs again and am about to turn all many dials for tuning in when my cousin exclaim:

"O, see, one of your battery wires is loose. I shall fix it." Which he proceeded for doing. Is very funny crackly, poppy noise in ear harness and then I can hear nothing though I turn dials around in all possible directions.

"So sorry" fulminate my cousin. "I have burnt out deflecto. tube."

"Then you have killed the umpire," I sob.

"O, too true,' he ejaculate.

"And will it come back?"

"Maybe so it will when beer comes back," he elucidate.

So, Mr. Editor, I am asking to know how soon will that be. Until then I cannot hear any more delightful da-di-da-dit. I am waiting for beer to come back. Hoping you are the same

CHINA BOY.

The Real Tragedy of Eleanora Duse's Life

The poet wrote the novel, "Il Fuoco" ("The Flame of Life"), out of the events of his own immediate experience. His affair with Duse made brilliant emotional and esthetic stuff for writing, and he wove it into a fabric of a strange and baffling magnificence. He did not show the manuscript of the work to Duse until he had completed it. She saw herself portrayed to the very soul. The literary flash and abandon must have enchanted her, but in the portrayal of herself and her love with D'Annunzio were elements that struck her with anguish. D'Annunzio had ruthlessly embodied in his tale intimate confessions of her past life that Duse had made to him, details of her earlier days that she had concealed for years with silence and had hoped, with her neurotic sensitiveness and shrinking, were lost from other memories. And then he had dissected their mutual love with the coldest of scalpels, laying open to the light the secrets of the mature actress and the younger man, the moods and demeanors of the woman of 41 and the poet of 37.

"Will you publish this?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Why will you do such a thing?"

"I need the money."

"How much can you get for this manuscript and how much do you need?"

"Ten thousand lire."

She got 10,000 lire for him and kept the manuscript.

D'Annunzio spent the money, and then again upon him came the crazy need for cash. He had kept a copy of the manuscript he had given to Duse. This copy he took to a publisher and sold it.

The book was published and made a great sensation. Knowing readers readily understood that it portrayed D'Annunzio and Duse. The celebrated Parisian critic, Marcel Prevost, wrote a scathing condemnation of D'Annunzio and called him a cad. The Italian replied with a telegram of insults. Later he denied that the woman in the book was Duse, and then admitted the identity and wrote a remorseful apology. A certain understanding of the value of publicity is to be observed here. D'Annunzio is a good press agent for himself.

And Duse? The publication of the book maddened her. She vowed she would kill D'Annunzio.

Soon she was with him again, and now with a greater submission and abjection than ever. Her love now was increased to a craze, to an immense and unbreakable tenderness. The tragic coil had grasped her relentlessly. A pit of doom was before her.

Alice Nielsen, the famous American prima donna, who played in the same theater with Duse at this time and who lived for a while at the villa where D'Annunzio and Duse lived, tells of the deepest and darkest injury that the poet inflicted upon the actress.

"It was that he made her feel old," the singer tells. "With a ceaseless inference in his speech and attitude he forced a palsying sense of age upon her when she was really in the very flower of her genius and beauty. To me she seemed the more youthful and joyous of the two.

"I remember one evening at her villa in Florence. D'Annunzio was sitting in a big, thronelike chair (he always affected the pontifical) at the head of the table. Duse was at his right; myself at his left. He was holding forth about women, and expressed the opinion that all women after 40 should be chloroformed, as by then they had lost all attraction for men and therefore were, according to his warped viewpoint, useless. He also said that no girl should remain a virgin after she was 16. With my American background and training, I could not restrain myself from laughing aloud at this preposterous idea. Mme. Duse turned a reproachful face toward me and said:

"'You must not laugh when the great maestro gives his opinion.'

"The man seemed to glory in hurting women. The last time I saw D'Annunzio and Duse together was at my house in D'Anzio, where I was giving a musicale. A young and very beautiful Russian matron was there. D'Annunzio immediately turned his attention upon her. He flirted with her, spoke his usual flowery gallantries. Duse sat in a corner on a hassock (she always loved to sit near the floor, on a footstool, a cushion or a low chair). She was watching D'Annunzio's every move with sad but unreproachful eyes, with a Madonnalike expression on her face."

Duse was willing to endure everything save parting, but it was parting that she had to endure. D'Annunzio left Duse, and never returned. Grief broke the woman. She felt that no blessing could come to her again. Abruptly she quit the stage and retired to a nunlike seclusion. She became as one dead, a wraith.

Duse brooded in her silence for 20 years. Then, in the shadow of her life, she came forth with a new courage and returned to the stage. She had prodigious success. Money and acclamation were showered upon her. Her American tour attracted great audiences of her old-time admirers and of the younger element that knew of her fame as an actress and had read of her infatuation for D'Annunzio, of his philanderings.

And now Duse is dead. D'Annunzio is reveling in new honors.

GLEANINGS FROM THE WORLD OF SCIENCE

AN INDUSTRY UNCHANGED FOR OVER 2000 YEARS.

THERE are very few manufacturing businesses that are still carried out in exactly the same way as they were when Julius Caesar was winning his way to power at the head of his legions in Gaul. But there is one. It is the manufacture of gold leaf, of those unbelievably thin and fragile sheets of gold that painters use to make the signs on glass windows.

These sheets of gold tissue are so thin that as many as 200,000 of them have to be piled one on top of the other to make a thickness of one inch. They are still made by beating out the gold with hammers between layers of a special kind of skin made from the gut of oxen. Gold leaf has never been made any other way. Doubtless the gold decorations on the shrines of Tutankhamen were beaten out in exactly this same way.

THE NOSE IS OUR OLDEST SENSE.

MANY millions of years ago the highest type of creatures that lived anywhere in the world were little jelly-like things that swam around in the sea.

They had no eyes nor ears. So far as we know they could not see light nor hear sounds. Indeed, they had only one sense. They could smell.

The entire surface of their bodies was sensitive to any evil-smelling or good-smelling thing that was in the surrounding water.

These little creatures were all nose.

In the long ages of evolution these creatures developed into the higher animals and into man. They brought their smell sense along. Our smell organs are the descendants of it.

There still live in the sea, says Prof. Agersberg of Williams College, some creatures who smell just as the ancient ones did, with the entire surface of their bodies.

SHAVINGS THAT THE CARPENTERS LEFT.

INSIDE the tomb of Tutankhamen, between the very walls of the shrines, Mr. Carter has found loose shavings left behind by careless carpenters when the King was buried, more than three milleniums ago.

Was this mere carelessness?

Or were the workmen hurried and distressed by fears of hovering supernatural powers?

Or was, perhaps, their carelessness deliberate? Did they slight purposely the memory of all that regal magnificence which they, being slaves, could never hope to share?

For in those days the artisans of the world were held in slavery. The good things of life went only to the Kings and priests.

We have gone far. A Government of artisans and carpenters now rules an empire beside which the kingly realm of Tutankhamen would scarcely be a dooryard.

AN EXPERIMENT YOU CAN DO.

TAKE an ordinary paper bag and fill it about half full with water, being careful, of course, that the bag is small enough, so that the mere weight of the water in it does not burst the paper. Then heat the bottom of this water-filled bag over a gas flame (like a stove burner) or over a bed of coals in a coal or wood fire. You will be surprised, if you have never done this experiment before, to find that you can heat the water until it boils, without burning the paper bag at all.

The science of this is quite simple. So long as paper is wet it will not catch fire. The water in the bag keeps the paper wet. If the surface layer of the paper on the bottom of the bag dries off more water instantly soaks through from the inside and wets it again. Gradually the water in the bag gets hot enough to boil, but the paper has never once been dry enough to catch fire.

But if you heat the bottom of the bag too fast, so that you dry the water out of it faster than more water can soak through, or if you let the heat of the fire touch the upper part of the bag, where it is dry, the paper will instantly burst into a blaze.

SCIENCE TRIES RIPE APPLES.

THE proof of an apple, like a pudding, is in the eating, but it is not always convenient for an apple grower to use this method of putting his fruit to test. One cannot bite into all the apples one intends to sell.

And so the scientists of the Agricultural Experiment Station of the State of Washington have devised an instrument that will measure accurately the ripeness of an apple. By applying the instrument to a selected number of the apples on his trees a fruit grower can tell whether or not they are ripe enough to pick and ship.

The instrument acts by determining the exact degree to which the apple is dented by a definite amount of pressure. It is a scientific way of applying the old-fashioned test with the thumb nail, a test that has been used by growers and market men for generations.

Ten Greatest Discoveries of Human Race

horse, or pony, attached to a rude affair made of poles and hides, wheelless, dragging along the ground after the faithful animal that pulled it. No brave buck, it seems, ever took thought of making a mere two-wheel wagon out of his drag. But over in Europe and in Asia and in Africa the same opportunity to promote transportation of freight and of humanity never occurred to mankind until the race had been discovering and inventing things for ages. The wheel for transportation and for manufacturing—think again of a wheelless world before you buy another set of tires for your 1924 automobile or speed up your modern sewing machine. Sewing was invented long before the wheel, and there may be those who would displace one of Dr. Free's 10 for the discovery of that useful art. The wheel made sewing swift and easy.

The discovery of printing (No. 6) was of obvious importance. "The great achievement of the modern world," says Dr. Free, "is the wide distribution of information and the storage of this information in libraries. The schoolboy of today is incomparably better informed than the wisest man among the Greeks or the Babylonians. All this can be traced to the discovery of the art of printing from movable types."

The last two in the list are those mentioned as being the only ones of the 10 that can be credited to the modern "scientific" period of which we boast. Says Dr. Free as to No. 9, the discovery of the principle of the electric dynamo: "The principle amounts to this: it is a way of converting ordinary mechanical power, like the power of the steam engine, into electricity; or, conversely, of converting electricity into mechanical power. The dynamo is one side of it, the electric motor is the other side of it. It is certainly the greatest discovery of modern times."

But in his brief comment on No. 10, the discovery of the germ theory of disease, the doctor seems to discount that last statement, by saying it is more than possible that this tenth discovery will prove, in the future, to have been the greatest human discovery of all. He says: "This discovery marked the beginning of man's control of his own body. It gave humanity, for the first time, a real weapon for the defeat of disease. Already the knowledge that has grown out of the germ theory has swept many diseases out of man's path."

And yet it is hardly half a century since Louis Pasteur, the centenary of whose birth we celebrated only a year ago, enunciated and proved the germ theory of disease. This modest French chemist already has saved more lives than all the Attilas, the Genghis Khans, the Napoleons, the William Hohenzollerns of all the ages have destroyed. Pasteur's discovery has resulted, to name but one thing, in the lengthening of the average duration of human life by about 15 years.

Bearing this fact in mind, is it not pertinent to suggest that No. 10 is considerably more important than No. 1, even though the majority of us may be devoted to Shep or little Mimi? Of course, No. 1 resulted also in the taming of the cow and the production of what scientists deem the best of human foods: milk; but No. 10, it may be pointed out, has extracted the disease-producing microbes from milk, in addition to rendering innocuous the bite of old Shep when he is afflicted with rabies, if the remedy is applied in due time.

HEAD NOISES?

4-DAY Treatments FREE

The pity of those Head Noises, those wearing—annoying sounds in your head! You have thought at times that life was hardly worth living.

Perhaps your hearing is already failing. Even if it is still good, you have the added burden of knowing that these Head Noises may be only the signals of approaching Deafness.

You may have the Noises in the head occasionally or when you have a cold, but you are in danger of a more serious development all the same. You need immediate treatment.

Ear Specialist Sproule has studied and originated a Method of treatment which has brought happy relief to many people troubled with Head Noises. This treament has, in these many cases, stopped the sounds and left the head clear as a bell. To show this Method he offers a 4-day treatment Free.

The First Step in Beauty is more beautiful teeth

Look about you. Note the glistening teeth you see. Note what they add to beauty.

This offers you a ten-day test of the method which brings these results. Millions now employ it. In justice to yourself, learn what it means to you and yours at once.

Film forbids beauty

You feel on teeth a viscous film. It is ever-present. That is what causes most tooth troubles and the wreck of pearly teeth.

That film is clinging. No ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat it. Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. That is why teeth lose their beauty.

Film also holds food substance, which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Even among careful people, 45 in 50 suffered these film-caused troubles.

Dental science has now found two ways to fight that film. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Many tests have proved these methods effective. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Leading dentists everywhere began to advise it. Now careful people, of some 50 nations use Pepsodent every day.

Other benefits

Pepsodent brings other benefits. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva—there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva—there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

These multiplied effects are bringing to millions a new era in teeth cleaning. Let it bring these same effects to your home.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

The New-Day Dentifrice

Watch it act

Send this coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

You will see new beauty in the teeth. You will realize new protection.

Unique Pleasures

in a perfect summer vacation-land. Come and see

IT'S the complete change and the numberless new things to see and do that make a vacation here the finest that you can imagine. For Southern California is a strange land, unlike any other that you have ever visited.

The weather is ideal, for one thing. Days are delightful, nights cool. The forty-seven year record taken in a central city in this district by the U. S. Weather Bureau shows the average mean temperatures to be:

47 Junes ..... 66 degrees
47 Julys ..... 70 degrees
47 Augusts ..... 71 degrees
47 Septembers ..... 69 degrees

Summer is the rainless season, too. Each day is perfect for outdoor fun.

Climb the twin peaks, Mt. Lowe and Mt. Wilson, and from a single vantage point see the great San Fernando Valley, a desert like Sahara, unending miles of orange groves, historic Spanish missions, progressive cities and towns and the blue Pacific shimmering in the sunlight.

Nearby sources of raw material, an unmatched year-round climate, the cheapest hydro-electric power in America, and contented workers have brought an amazing industrial growth here with untold opportunities for manufacturers and investors.

See the Hollywood Bowl. Motor into Santa Ana Canyon. Stand on a rocky headland at Laguna Beach or sun yourself on a sandy beach. See acres of oil derricks on Signal Hill. The matchless Yosemite National Park is but a short trip away.

Motor over 4,000 miles of paved boulevards that lead to all these beauties. Truly, this is a different land. You'll love it. Come and see.

Spend days and weeks doing those things you love to do—that bring the finest kind of rest and relaxation. Find complete change that builds you up and makes you fit for another year's activity.

Come now, or come this summer. Special Summer round trip railroad rates make it easy.

Ask about them today at your nearest railroad ticket office, or send the coupon below to us. But plan now to come here for your finest summer. You'll find accommodations here to fit your purse and a new joy in vacations.

May Breath

For a purer breath—an added charm

May Breath is an antiseptic mouth wash in candy tablet form. A purifier—not mere perfume.

Whether bad odors arise in the mouth or the stomach, May Breath combats them. It substitutes the odor of spring, the inviting scent of purity. It also aids digestion.

Offensive breath may come from smoking. Or from decaying food between the teeth. From some tooth or gum trouble, some stomach disorder, some odorous food or drink.

It is very common, as you know. Yet the offenders can seldom detect it. They do not realize why people turn away.

Guard against this grave offense, in fairness to yourself. Not by mere perfume, to overwhelm one odor with another. That suggests concealment.

Not by a liquid purifier one can only use at home. In every contact, all day long, you want a sweet and purer breath.

May Breath is the method dainty people everywhere are using. It comes in thin metal boxes you can always carry with you.

It does what should be done—what must be done—to make the breath truly inviting.

Eat one whenever you meet a friend. Whenever you greet the home folks. Whenever you dance or converse. Eat one in the morning to correct bad tastes and odors, for your own delight.

You will never go without them when you know. Let us send you a free box to try. Cut out coupon now.

Be careful In close contacts, let the breath offend.

The kiss At home coming—be sure that the breath is sweet.

May Breath is candy tablets, designed to deodorize both the mouth and stomach. Not a mere perfume, but an antiseptic purifier, in form to carry with you.

Let this simple food bring back your health

"I KNEW my headaches and unwholesome complexion were caused by constipation. To take frequent cathartics was my regular program and even by doing this I was tired and dopy. 'I like what yeast does for me' said one of my customers and asked if I had ever tried it. I acted on this suggestion and began to drink yeast in milk regularly. Soon people began to comment on how well I was looking—my husband said I grew younger—the mirror told me my complexion and eyes were clear and bright. Cathartics are now a thing of the past."

(A letter from Mrs. Mabelle Conomikes of Marathon, N. Y.)

"I AM office manager for a large mercantile corporation. Two years ago I began to develop 'nerves,' stomach trouble, insomnia, and worst of all to me, an irritable disposition towards those under me. Chatting with a friend I spoke of always feeling so rotten that life was hardly worth living. My friend urged me to try Fleischmann's Yeast, attributing his own excellent health to its daily use. At the end of a week I was eating it with a relish, and feeling a great deal improved. Now a day never passes that I don't eat at least three cakes—using them as a between-meal snack—with the result that I am in the best of health with an eager zest for my work."

(Extract from letter of Mr. G. A. Dempsey of Winnipeg, Canada)

THESE remarkable reports are typical of thousands of similar tributes to the power of Fleischmann's Yeast.

There is nothing mysterious about its action. It is not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense. But when the body is choked with the poisons of constipation—or when its vitality is low so that skin, stomach, and the general health are affected—this simple, natural food achieves literally amazing results.

Concentrated in every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast are millions of tiny yeast-plants, alive and active. At once they go to work—invigorating the whole system, clearing the skin, aiding digestion, strengthening the intestinal muscles and making them healthy and active. Health is yours once more.

"I WATCHED her crumble the crisp cake into the milk. We drifted into conversation. She sang of the magic of Fleischmann's Yeast. Many months before, her doctor had recommended it and she confessed she owed the clearness of her complexion to its use.

"I was persuaded to try the yeast in milk, and prepared to swallow an obnoxious dose. I was pleasantly surprised. It proved a delightfully palatable drink.

"Fleischmann's Yeast waged a successful battle against the canker sores, dried up the existing ones and cured the stomach condition which was causing them. I faced my winter's work with enthusiasm, and came through triumphant."

(Extract from a letter of Miss Grace S. Baumann of Philadelphia)

Dissolve one cake in a glass of water

(just hot enough to drink)

—before breakfast and at bedtime. Fleischmann's Yeast, when taken this way, is especially effective in overcoming or preventing constipation.

Or eat 2 or 3 cakes a day—spread on bread or crackers—dissolved in fruit juices or milk—or eat it plain.

Fleischmann's Yeast comes only in the tinfoil package—it cannot be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it! Start eating it today! A few days' supply will keep as well in your ice box as in the grocer's.

Write us for further information or let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Address: Health Research Dept. 527, The Fleischmann Co., 701 Washington Street, New York.

"FIVE years ago I had a serious breakdown due to strenuous war work, irregular food, loss of sleep, etc. I was a physical and nervous wreck. Then I saw Fleischmann's Yeast cakes advertised for loss of strength and energy and decided to try them. I started with four a day taken regularly with my meals. I liked the taste. In a short time my headaches disappeared, I slept better, my bowels functioned regularly, my flesh took on a healthy appearance. In a few months I felt like a new woman."

(A letter from Mrs. Edith Beamer of Detroit)

"TWO years ago I was a sufferer from an affliction of every kind of boil imaginable. At one time I had nine. Imagine playing football with a great boil on the back of your hand, or attending a dance with one right beside your nose.

"I gave up candy and pastry—but the boils continued. Then a friend—you bet he was a friend—suggested Fleischmann's Yeast. I tried it dubiously, but it did the trick! The boils ceased. Since that time I have never gone without my occasional cake of Fleischmann's Yeast."

Quaint, dainty designs for little girls' dresses in

NORMANDY VOILE

ITS colors are so charming and clear, its designs are so dainty and original, that Normandy Voile makes the most attractive little "dress-up" frocks imaginable! But it's just as popular for school and general wear — it tubs so well, is so easy to iron, and its little dots are absolutely fast.

In back of the very charming ready-to-wear Normandy Voile Frock shown above, are four of the numerous patterns especially appropriate for children's dresses.

The many poor imitations make it advisable to buy only when you see the words "Normandy Fabric" on the selvage, or a "Normandy Voile" label in the dress.

Durability Makes Lingette Ideal for Men's Wear

WHEN you look at its lovely colors and lustrous texture, you may not realize how wonderfully durable Lingette is. But extensive tests and long experience have proved that Lingette resists wear and washing to a remarkable degree!

You will find no fabric more serviceable for men's shirts, pajamas and athletic underwear—no fabric more exquisitely dainty for women's lingerie, bloomers, princess slips, petticoats and a score of other articles.

And the Colors!

Tints as dazzling as sunset skies, as delicate as flower petals, are among Lingette's new colorings. They suggest all kinds of lovely clothes—do see them at one of the good stores!

To make sure of the genuine, look for the name Lingette on the selvage, or in the label of the ready-to-wear garment.

8 Women in 10

of the better class have adopted this new way of solving their oldest hygienic problem

BY ELLEN J. BUCKLAND, Graduate Nurse

CHARM, immaculacy, exquisiteness. Peace of mind under circumstances impossible a short time ago . . . . and better health. These, modern science is bringing to women everywhere.

Correcting a bad habit

80% of the lack of charm, the loss of the immaculacy expected of a woman, according to hygienic authorities, is due to the common use of makeshift "sanitary pads." There is one secret every woman wants to keep.

60% of many ills common to women, according to numerous medical authorities, are due to the same cause. Using these unsanitary ways is a bad habit.

* * *

Millions have turned to a new way. Foremost doctors advise it. Eight in every ten women in the better walks of life have adopted it.

Charm, immaculacy, exquisiteness, under all circumstances, is one reason. Greater respect of self, better health is another.

This new way is called KOTEX—a discovery of a nurse in war time France. It supplants the old time sanitary pad.

Made of Cellucotton—the war's super-absorbent — it absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture.

Hygienically prepared, it does not invite the germs of disease to breed and multiply. Hence it is important in modern health precaution.

No trouble disposing of

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—simply discard it. No embarrassment, no difficulty.

Women who seek daintiness, peace of mind, exquisiteness and safety under all circumstances, use it. Once you do, no other method will ever satisfy. And millions will tell you this.

All drug and department stores have KOTEX in plain packages. Get it without embarrassment simply by saying "Kotex." 12 snowy white, immaculate folds, in the medium package.

I would like to send you a new book for women on this subject, written by a doctor. Just write for it. And if you have never tried KOTEX, I will be glad to send you a sample free. Write today for book or sample to your headquarters for that 1924 Pacific Northwest Vacation

Seattle

SEATTLE, fascinating city on picturesque Puget Sound, offers incomparable vacation delights in a cool, evergreen playground of amazing scenic wonders, blessed with a mild, invigorating climate the year round.

Here you will find all the recreational advantages of an interesting, expanding, metropolitan Western city, whose one generation's growth to world city stature is an epoch in American enterprise. Seattle will surprise you and you will stay longer than you expect to.

The lure of Seattle's immediate out-of-doors and the witchery and diversity of its beauty cannot be told in words—woods and greenery, surf of the Pacific, inland seas, the lovely San Juan archipelago, majestic snow-clad and glacier-girt mountains, mountain lakes, rushing streams, and tumbling waterfalls.

Get away from the summer heat. The Puget Sound region is green the summer through. It is unique in the absence of ground pests and poisonous reptiles, of cyclones and violent storms. It is famous for its cool, pure water everywhere.

Enjoy cool, balmy days and cool refreshing nights always. The average June, July and August temperature in Seattle is 62 degrees. Sleep under blankets every night. Rainless days are the rule in this remarkable summerland. There is radiant health here, for Seattle holds the world's record for the low annual mortality rate, both infant and adult.

A Wonderful Vacation Land

Nowhere else in the world on a June day can you bathe in the sea at noontime and five hours later, 5700 feet up on the side of Mount Rainier, coast on a glacial system exceeding the combined glaciers in Switzerland. The diversity of attractions is surprising.

Adjoining the snow fields on Mount Rainier are hundreds of acres of brilliant-hued Alpine blossoms—daisies, anemones, geraniums, columbine and larkspur, among which one wades knee deep—the richest subalpine garden ever found. John Muir called Rainier "a perfect floral elysium."

Come to new scenes and new joys. This surpassing vacation land is your heritage as well as ours. To you of the Middle West this will prove an alluring wonderland. Every day something new to see and to do—motoring over paved roads, golfing, fishing, yachting, bridle paths, steamer trips, mountain climbing, surf bathing. All these joys are but a few hours from your hotel in Seattle, which offers every accommodation and the city attractions you know back East.

No other vacation land affords so much of interest and recreation at so modest an expense. You will be surprised how little it costs. Our Hospitality Bureau will help you plan your vacation.

Seattle, in the "Charmed Land," is only 71 hours and 45 minutes from St. Louis. See your ticket agent about the low summer fare of $81.50 from St. Louis to Seattle and return, on sale daily until September 30—a choice of routes returning. They are real bargain fares.

Travelers to any other part of the Pacific Coast should come via Seattle for there are liberal stop-over privileges on both round-trip and one-way tickets.

If you go to Japan, China, the Philippines, Honolulu or Alaska sail from Seattle, the gateway to Alaska and the Orient.

Decide early, decide now for the Pacific Northwest vacation in 1924 with Seattle as your headquarters. It's America's Supreme Vacation Land.

Blackheads

Keep your skin free from blackheads by this treatment

Perhaps your skin is especially susceptible to blackheads.

If so, you must use a special method of cleansing, in order to overcome this trouble.

Follow this treatment, to keep your skin free from blackheads:

EACH night before retiring, apply hot cloths to your face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough wash-cloth work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly, always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear hot water, then with cold. If possible rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

Within a week or ten days you will be surprised to see how your skin has improved in clearness.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for this treatment and for regular toilet use.

A Surprise Package for the Ladies of St. Louis

NOBODY would suspect what this handsome steel case contains. It looks more like a jewel box. Enameled in Delft Blue, edged with gleaming bands of nickel-plated steel—the daintiest yet the most practical and most substantial thing you ever set eyes on!

Handy, too. Couldn't be more so. Opens up in a jiffy—the lid falls back, the front drops down. Out comes your Sunbeam Electric Iron, in perfect condition, ready for instant use. The cord is always with it—kept in a heat-proof compartment of its own. Then, your work done, set your hot iron back in the case. It's quite safe there. No need to wait for it to cool.

Think of the convenience! The freedom from dirt and stain on the iron. Such attractiveness in so much-needed a combination! An ironing set women have been wanting for years—permissable in any room—an ornament, distinctly so, wherever you please to place it.

An iron as fine as the Sunbeam should have just such a permanent and appropriate container. Then it will remain a thing of beauty, and last forever.

COALITION TO BACK DAWES REPORT WINS IN GERMANY

Moderates, Consisting of Socialist, Clerical, Democratic and People's Parties, Pledged to Execute Reparation Plan Will Control New Reichstag.

COMMUNISTS AND RADICALS MAKE GAIN

Seventy-Five Per Cent of Electorate in the Reich Goes to Polls — Ludendorff Elected, but His Party's Campaign Fails.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 5.—The promised "big coalition" by the Moderates, comprising the Socialist, Clerical, Democratic and Peoples' parties, is regarded as assured on the basis of partial returns from yesterday's parliamentary election.

Returns received up to 3 p. m. today gives the coalition 229 seats, or 10 more than the total of all the seats filled by the numerous other parties combined.

The Socialists lost between 50 and 60 seats, chiefly to the communists, but are still the strongest party in the House, with about 110 Deputies, as compared with 172 before the election.

The German Nationalists will stand next in strength with 90 Deputies, or a gain of from 20 to 25. The communists will have 45 or 50 Deputies, an increase of from 30 to 35, and the Extreme Nationalists probably will have 20 seats, as against three in the last Reichstag.

Thus the people apparently have placed their seal of approval on the Dawes reparations report, as the leaders of the Moderates, including Foreign Minister Stresemann, based their campaign on the adoption and execution of the report as a sure cure for the country's ailments.

Radicals' Campaign Fails.

While the counting of ballots is necessarily slow, due to the large number of party tickets in the field, indications are that the coalition will have sufficient seats in the Reichstag to force through the enabling legislation required by the Dawes report, with little help from the independent factions.

The Nationalists and Communists made some gains, but the vote polled by General Ludendorff's ultra-monarchists did not come up to expectations, and the result indicates decisive failure of the reactionary and radical campaigns. Ludendorf was among the successful candidates.

The balloting was heavy and it is probable that at least 15 new deputies will be added to the Reichstag, increasing the membership to 475.

Returns from 22 of the 75 electoral districts showed election of 244 candidates, including 58 Socialist Democrats, 33 Communists, 32 Democrats, 39 Centurists, 25 German Peoples' party, 42 Nationalists and 13 Bavarian Peoples' party. The remainder were distributed among the various other parties.

About 75 per cent of the electorate voted throughout the Reich.

Coalition Has Safe Majority.

Whatever opposition will confront the four-party coalition on its Right and Left wings, its active working majority will not be imperiled, so far as concerns its ability to force ordinary legislative measures, and old Reichstag leaders today predict that sufficient outside aid will be at its disposal to more than offset the intransigent attitude of Nationalists of all categories and the communists.

The task of allocating votes to more than a score of parties will require another 24 hours, and the Federal Election Commissioner believes that a definite tabulation, which will indicate the ultimate party line-up, will not be available before tonight. The German Nationalists, Socialists and communists are running a close race in Greater Berlin. The communists led all other parties in the early returns at Cologne.

Few Disturbances Reported.

Only a few disturbances were reported in and outside of Berlin. The voting in the occupied areas proceeded without obstruction. A
